SCRUBS AND GRADES.

Words Which Are Often Improperly Used by Breeders.

The words "cross bred," properly speaking should refer to an animal the result of crossing two distinct breeds, as, for example, a pure Short-horn bull on a pure Hereford cow. If, however, a Short-horn bull were used on a cow that was three-fourths Short-horn I should call the cow a "grade" and would say that this breeding was grading up rather than crossing. But when men who have Poland-China sows that are pure bred or nearly so and they mate them with a Chester White boar then they are crossing breeds, says C. S. Plumb in Rural New Yorker.

The word "scrub" is often unfairly used. This word is meant to apply to a very low grade class of animals. There are many very fine grade animals representing really a good deal of careful breeding and possessing considerable blood character. Such animals ought never to be called scrubs. They are grades, and in cases where pure bred males of the same breed have been used on the females persistently for some years they are high grades, though according to the modern ideas of breeding associations they will never become pure bred. I wish to go further, however, and state that the word scrub, in my opinion, should mean any animal of inferior type and character. On this basis we have many pure bred registered animals that are scrubs of the truest type, far worse in every sense than many grade ones. It is too bad that this is so, but such is the fact, as any person who is fair minded, familiar with many pure bred animals, will testify. Consequently it need not imply that because an animal is pure bred and registered it is a superior individual. It may yet be a first class scrub.

THREE SIMPLE QUESTIONS.

And the Librarian Could Not Answer One of Them.

One day two well dressed young women approached the desk of the reading room of a big library. One of them took a memorandum from her pocket-book.

"Can you tell me how many yards—oh, that's the wrong list," she said, hastily bringing forth another slip of paper. "Here it is. Will you please tell me who is Rudyard Kipling's favorite author?"

"I am unable to tell you, never having heard that he had one," admitted one of the librarians.

"Dear me!" said the young woman irritably. "It is one of the questions for our next club meeting. Well, which one of Thackeray's books brought him the most income?"

"That you can probably find out by consulting a book, the number of which I will give you," said the official.

"Oh, I can't stop to look it up!" she said hurriedly. "I thought you could tell me at once. Well, there's one more thing, Bessie Cunnock, my cousin in Manchester, and a splendid book when I was there last year for anecdotes of famous people. I can't remember the name of it or who wrote it, but it was about so big"—illustrating with one finger on the desk—"and it has a dark green cover. Now, can you tell me what it is? Some day when I have time I would like to get it out. Of course you must have it in the library."

For the third time the official was obliged to confess his inability to give her desired information. She looked at him with a piercing gaze and turned away saying audibly to her companion: "There, that just shows what all this talk about their being examined for positions in libraries amounts to! Three perfectly simple questions, all on literary subjects, and he couldn't answer one of them!"—Savings Journal.

How to Whiten Piano Keys.

Cotton flannel cloths wet with a saturated solution of oxalic acid and water and laid upon piano keys will remove all stains. Care should always be taken in the use of such a solution as this that it does not touch anything from which the color is not to be removed, for it does its work with more certainty than discretion.

How to Live and Die.

To live like a soldier and to die like a philosopher should be the resolute aim of man. M. M. Mangasarian, Ethical Culturer, Chicago.

The Boy Who Turned Out Bad.

The boy who turned out bad was raised by parents good and true; They pondered what was best for him and what they ought to do, And they at last decided they would keep him home at night. So he could not take part in all the other boys' delights. They never let him play with boys who went in their bare feet; They kept him from the swimming hole and kept him off the street. He never had a single fight, and on All Hallow-even He with the other little boys was never, never seen. He never stole an apple from a neighbor's apple tree Because his mother's eagle eye was on him constantly. He never saw a "show," because his parents always said They didn't want extravagance in Tommy to be bred. But when he grew up into years he signed one day, "I see The very sweetest joys in life have been denied to me," And all the poor up spirit of the fellow broke and ran, And what if mischief in a boy is criminal in man. —Indianapolis Sun.
