There is nothing like Asthmalene It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. B. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and Asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, Asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment, the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full sized bottle."

DRS. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your window on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the 1st of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can conscientiously recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours Respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO. Feb. 5, 1901.

OREGON'S NEWSPAPER LAW

In the laws of Oregon of 1889, appears the following on page 30, which protects every citizen from being imposed upon by publishers of newspapers or periodicals, either in the state or elsewhere. Everybody should save this copy of the law for protection against such attempts:

SECTION 1. That whenever any person, company or corporation owning or controlling any newspaper or periodical of any kind, or wherever any editor or proprietor of any such newspaper or periodical, shall mail or send any such newspaper or periodical to any person or persons in this State without first receiving an order for said newspaper or periodical from such person or persons to whom said newspaper or periodical is mailed or sent, shall be deemed to be a gift, and no debt or obligation shall accrue against such person or persons, whether said newspaper or periodical is received by the person or persons to whom it is sent or not.

SENATOR JONES COMES BACK

One by one the men who left the Republican party on account of the silver issue, are coming back into the fold. Senator Jones, of Nevada, is the latest prominent prodigal to return. In his explanation of his action the senator says:

"I am as sincere a believer in the doctrine of bimetalism as when I left the Republican party solely for that cause, and, were the conditions today as then, I would be numbered among those defending it. The enormous output of gold, however, has accomplished what bimetation would have accomplished. The silver issue is dead, and we are face to face with other issues. I have always acted with the republican party upon every question but silver. I believe that in alignment of political parties today the Republican party is the only one in touch with the economic progress of the 20th century.

Senator Jones is sensible in returning to the Republisan party when the only issue on which he stood at variance with the party is at last really dead and buried with no signs of an immediate resurrection.

In fact, no matter how strongly opposed a man may be to the course of the Republican party on any one issue, it is hard to understand how he can find any other excuse than habit for acting with the Democratic party.

If the Democratic party today has any definable principles, any definite policy on any public question, no man living can point out clearly what they are. Every one knew what Bryan stood for, and no matter how radically we differed with him we at least knew what his policy was. But Bryan has been deposed, and the Democratic party today is a headless, disorganized mob with no recognized leadership, and with no definite program or principles.

The would-be leaders can advance nothing more definite than talk about "Jeffersonian principles," which is simply a catch phrase without any fixed meaning. They can not formulate a policy on any live question except one. Amid the fog in which their beliefs and intentions are enveloped, their solution of the question as to who shall have the offices shines out with effulgent brightness. On that issue they are a unit. They are one and all willing to take office and that is absolutely the only question on which they really know how they stand.

The barber sometimes finds the sand soft and yielding to his feet. It does not trouble him and he goes on until presently he sinks to his knees and discovers to his horror that he has to fight for his life in a quicksand.

Disease is much like the quicksand. The first symptoms of stomach trouble do not cause anxiety. But when the body grows weak through lack of nourishment and disease of the stomach breeds disease of heart, lungs, liver or kidneys, the sufferer realizes his danger and seeks for medicinal aid.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc., when these diseases have their origin in disease of the stomach and its allied organs.

Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, Box 101, writes: "I was taken with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, and the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die. Then a neighbor said, 'Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles, in about six weeks, I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TO DEFINE THE STATUS OF THE MILITARY

(S. F. Argonaut)

Among the subjects which President Roosevelt is said to be studying in the preparation of his first message to Congress is that of the relations between the federal government and the military. It is a question about which there has always been uncertainty, and in some respects inconsistency. No one has known whether State troops were liable for duty in aid of the national government, and no one seemed to care to rake up the matter until an emergency arose. The occasion came in 1898, when the Seventh Regiment of New York refused to go to the Spanish war as an organization. The point was evaded in all the States by the enlistment of the individuals comprising State guards in the volunteer service. The theory popular among national guardsmen of the States has always been that they were not subject to the orders of the central government, and that they were liable to no duty beyond the boundaries of their respective States. The inconsistency of the position appears when it is recalled that the national government is relied on to help support the guards by equipment, by money, and by instruction, and that the universal theory of our national defense is that we do not need a large regular army, because we have a supplementary army in the State guards, always ready for national service. The country's reliance for defense upon its citizen soldiery has been the theme of much fervid oratory and fine writing. It is well now, in profound peace, to inspect the foundations, and to rebuild them on some well-considered and permanent plan if they are found insufficient. The President is securing the opinions of governors and military men about the State troops, and on the matter thus collected a recommendation will probably be made to Congress, and a bill prepared for consideration this winter.

VERY MUCH LIKE TREASON

James Jackson, of Cambridge, Mass. has been suspended from membership in the Second Reformed Presbyterian Church because, in becoming an American citizen, he took the oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States.

"We look upon the Constitution of the UnitedStates as an immoral document and as an insult to the Almighty in that it makes no mention whatever of God and claims for the people sovereign power which belongs to God alone. We refuse to accept the Constitution thus defective and cannot swear allegiance to it."

If the second Reformed Presbyterians undertake to ignore all laws which are not cast in the form of a prayer to the Almighty, they are very likely to fetch up in jail.

Rev. J. M. Foster, pastor of the church from which Jackson was suspended, is making the following statment in regard to the case:

A Violent Attack of Croup Cured

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Red Cross Drug Store.

THE LOVE THAT TAKES NO RETURN

For love he forfeited his friends,
For love he turned away
From honors such as men are glad
To strive for night and day;
For love he lost what nobler men
Would be most loath to lose,
And had no recompense, because
'Twas all for love of hers.

Barnum's Monkeys

"All well—all happy—lots of fun". That is the regular report from the monkey cage of Barnum's Circus ever since the keepers began dosing the monkeys with Scott's Emulsion. Consumption was carrying off two thirds of them every year and the circus had to buy new ones.

One day a keeper accidentally broke a bottle of Scott's Emulsion near the monkey cage and the monkeys eagerly lapped it up from the floor. This suggested the idea that it might do them good. Since then the monkeys have received regular doses and the keepers report very few deaths from consumption. Of course it's cheaper to buy Scott's Emulsion than new monkeys—and that suits the circus men.

Consumption in monkeys and in man is the same disease. If you have it or are threatened with it can you take the hint?

This picture, represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

Literary Notes.

The story in the Argonaut for October 28, 1901, is by E. F. Green and is entitled "The finger of the Sun: How Father Anselmo Stayed the Famine." It tells of the woes of a secluded Mexican parish, and of the answer that came to the unselfish priest's plea for aid.

The leading features of Modern Culture for November are "Emma Goldman and the Cleveland Anarchists," an account from an eye-witness of the meeting of Cleveland Anarchists at which the brain of Leon Czolgosz was fired by Emma Goldman's speech; "Reconstruction and After," by Frederick Austin Ogg, "The Drama and the Novel," by Ingram A. Pyle; "Husbands as Portrayed by women Novelists," by Nina R. Allen; "Glimpse of India" (Illus.) by Bella Hicks Hasset; and "Indian Handicraft" (Illus.) by Nevada Davis Hitchcock.

Photographs of materials full size of the design convey very little meaning to the eye. Recognizing this, The Delineator, beginning with the November number, not only shows dress fabrics full size of the design, but also shows in connection with that fabric the material twisted and folded as if it were a dress and photographed ⅛ of the design so as to give one the general impression of the dress as seen at a distance. To those who are wishing to select materials for garments, this very intelligent method of showing fabrics will be found useful, and will undoubtedly be appreciated.

"The Gospel of Destruction" is the title of the leading symposium of The Arena for November. Dr. Felix L. Oswald, A. M., discusses "Its Evolutionary Aspects" and Mrs. E. H. Roberts, the wife of a Congregational minister, presents what she conceives to be its only effective "cure." The Rev. James H. Batton writes on "The Failure of Freedom." Joseph Dana Miller considers the "Futilities of Reformers" and a distinguished educator of New England has a contribution on "The Ethics of the Land Question." Government ownership of the telegraph and telephone is discussed in a brief interview with Justice Walter Clark, LL.D. Other articles make up a good number.

Race Development.

The Department of Ethnology at the Pan-American Exposition will include a vast museum of archæological treasures by which the development of the races, particularly in America, may be traced. The Americas have proved to be rich fields which the students have neglected. Rude implements and vessels made by the mound builders, the Aztecs or the Incas many centuries ago and brought to light only in recent years will serve to introduce the first Americans to those of the present day. A rare opportunity will be given to study the progress of man in labor and invention by means of these priceless exhibits.

Battles In Greenland.

The bed of the baby Eskimo is not always one of eider down. There are times of famine now and then when the condition of the ice makes hunting impossible, and old and young starve to death. Cases have been known in both shores of Baffin bay where babies have been eaten by starving adults, but infanticide in Greenland is unknown because of a belief that the spirit of a murdered infant turns into an evil spirit called Angiak that forever haunts the entire village and brings endless misery and distress.

Called to an Easier Field.

We wonder if any men with white skins are called to the ministry after the fashion described by Booker T. Washington in his autobiography. He says: "A colored man in Alabama, one hot day in July, while he was at work in a cotton field, suddenly stopped and looking toward the skies said, "O lawd, de cotton am so grassy, de work am so hard, and de sun am not so hot dat I b'lieve dis darky am called to preach?'" —Chicago Standard.

Cured.

"No," said the man in the necktie, "my wife doesn't give away any of my old clothes or sell them to the ragman any more. I cured that habit effectually once."

"How was that?" they asked him.

"When I found that she had disposed of a coat I hadn't worn for several weeks, I told her there was a letter in it she had given me to mail the last time I had it on. And that was no lie either," he added with deep satisfaction.—Chicago Tribune.

RAISING YOUNG TURKEYS.

A Few Prudent Suggestions From a Successful Breeder.

The question confronting most poultry raisers at present is, "How can I manage my turkeys so as to reduce the death rate of my young flock?" First of all the breeders must be healthy, strong, vigorous and well mated birds, without which you can only expect weakly poults. I have hatched turkeys both by chicken and turkey hens, and of course those with the natural mothers grow faster, but I prefer the chicken hen, as the chicken always comes home to roost, and the turkey roosts wherever night may overtake her. The poults are always tamer with chicken mothers, as a turkey hen is always shy when with the young and is apt to cultivate the already wild nature in the young by her shyness and, not having a certain place to roost, cultivates bad habits in the poults. When the poults are hatched, if by turkey and she is not cross, remove poults as soon as hatched to give room for hatching eggs, but if cross let her alone, as she will only trample and kill the young. When the hen is through hatching, give her a reasonable number only and place her in a clean coop on high, dry ground and make a small yard for poults, so that they cannot stray away from the mother for about three days or until they learn to follow. Grease the mother hen on breast and under the wings and grease the poults on heads to kill lice, if any. Five drops of carbolic acid to a heaping teaspoonful of grease is sure death, but care should be exercised not to be too liberal with the grease, for too much is also death to the poults. Always look out for lice on neck, vents and quill feathers in wing, using the above carbolic acid and grease every two weeks on quill feathers on top of wing. A liberal supply here will not hurt. Remember that nine-tenths of the young die from lice and overfeed. Cleanliness is also very essential in raising. No filth whatever should be allowed to accumulate.

Young poults should not be fed for 36 hours after hatching; then give plenty of sweet milk in such a manner as they can wet the beaks merely (turkeys will live and thrive on sweet milk like kittens) and well cooked corn bread soaked in sweet milk and squeezed dry. Mix enough for one meal only, as turkeys do not want any sour old feed. Milk curd, oat groat, millet seed and onion tops are also excellent. Be careful and not overfeed, as it is a great deal worse than to underfeed. More turkeys die because they have too much to eat rather than not enough. When allowed free range, they will pick up all feed necessary and therefore only need enough to make them appreciate home and be gentle. Avoid all dampness, as it is nearly always fatal. High, dry and clean quarters, free from lice, with sunshine for a tonic and not too much feed will always raise good, healthy turkeys.—Woodlawn Poultry Yards.
