There is an Irish clergyman of our acquaintance who has deservedly a considerable local reputation as a wit and story teller. He nees everything auce, his voice and manner are all mirth provoking, especially his laugh. The present writer heard him speak mating in the church. "No, madam," he replied, "we can't afford that, but we put down cocoanut every Sunday." This official is close at hand at all eptisms and marriages and instinctrely answers all the questions asked sponsors and couples being marof, so that the rector says he is godfather to innumerable children and has married himself to a considerable numor of brides, for when the question is put, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he always audibly answers, "I will."
