Every advertiser must determine the one thing about his goods or his business methods that will interest the public. If he selects the right thing, talks it in the right way and persists long enough he will get the benefit in a financial way for he will have the features in his advertisement which will create the business for him.

Enterprise.—Master Fish Warden Van Dusen was in Myrtle Point the first of the week for the purpose of examining the river above here to learn whether it will be advisable to put in a fish rack this fall. If a good site should be found a hatchery will be erected on the Coquille next season.

Coquille Bulletin.—The Fourth of July celebration in Marshfield is under the management of the minstrel company—one of the features being their stupendous street parade which was given at this place. It goes without saying that an affair of this kind managed by this company will be a grand success.

Some sweet-voiced female called our marine reporter to the phone yesterday and tried to make love to him, and suggested that he bring up some ice cream. But he was proof against such blandishments and sternly bade her hurry up if she had anything to say as he couldn't stand there all day. Then he hung up the phone and went back to his case. This is a very proper spirit in the marine reporter. He knows that the editor is paid for handling all such cases.

Bandon Recorder.—There is another prospect better way to prospect the old Lane mine, back of Randolph, C. R. Zike who arrived here some weeks ago is superintending the work and is having the engine moved from the place where C. M. Howard was prospecting up to the mine proper. When you have decided to advertise don't do it in a half hearted way which would indicate a half hearted conviction that the right method was being pursued. Be sure of the position and then keep pushing along the right line until success or failure is realized. If the mistake has been made don't be discouraged but rectify the error and then sail in for success along the new line. The advertiser must first convince himself and then he will be more likely to convince others.

The strong wind Monday was too much for the canvas awning on the front of George & Tibbetts' store, and some of the castings gave away, letting the whole business come down. The awning is nearly forty feet long, with a heavy iron rod at the outer edge, and it is fortunate that no one was underneath when it came down.

A New Home Enterprise

R. C. Lyons is in town gathering up empty barrels in which to cure cucumbers in his pickle factory at Coquille City. This is a new enterprise which Mr. Lyons is establishing, and it will be a notable addition to the minor industries of Coos County. Many hundred of dollars are sent away every year for pickles, and this demand can just as well be supplied with the product of Coos county farms, furnishing employment for Coos county people, and keeping the money in circulation here.

Mr. Lyons is an uncle of the Lyons brothers, of the Coquille City sawmill. He came here last December from Alaska where he still has extensive interests. He was suffering at that time from a broken leg. This still causes him some trouble, but Mr. Lyons' activity is not to be suppressed by small inconveniences like that, and he is devoting his energies to the establishment of the home industry mentioned, which should receive the patronage of the people and merchants of the county, as soon as the product is placed on the market.

SAD CASE OF ### MENTAL ABERRATION

A lady whose name is given as Mrs. Blanche Flower, and who came from San Francisco to the Coquille on the Mandalay, and then came over to Marshfield has since developed a case of insanity and has been placed in charge of Mrs. Edward Fliteroff.

The case is a sad one as the young woman, who is evidently a lady of some culture and refinement, has three children with her, the oldest about 3 years of age and the youngest a baby in arms.

She registered at the Blanco on her arrival here and nothing wrong was noticed at first. On Saturday she went out with her children and went to a house on 4th street, where the people were entire strangers. Word was sent down town and Marshal Carter went out and persuaded the woman to come down to Dr. McCormac's office.

As it happened, Capt. Anderson of the schooner Joseph Russ knew the lady, and from him was learned her name, which she was unable or unwilling to give, and also the address of her relatives in San Francisco.

Telegrams were sent to these, and in the mean time Mrs. Fliteroff is caring for the unfortunate lady and her children.

TAKING POSSESSION.

Today, July 1st, the new mail contracts go into effect, and there will be quite extensive changes on some of the routes.

He expects to get stages to running all the way through in about a week.

C. P. Barnard, the original contractor will carry the eastern end of the route.

G. Swan, Jr. of Lookingglass who took the sub-contract for carrying the mail on the Marshfield-Gardiner route, was in town Saturday. He brought horses and paraphernalia for commencing his contract, but the breeze happened to be drawing up the bay and ruffling the surface of the water, and when he found that his route crossed that same water, which looked quite frightful to him, he threw up the job and started back home.

Andrew Olson, the present carrier, was deputized by Postmaster Curtis to supply the route for the present.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians for judges. Up to August 24, eighty seven per cent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being only thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction.
