A Touching Romance

That Marshfield can sport a coming great novelist in embryo seems to be proven by the following pastoral novelette, which was "made up" and told by a Marshfield six-year-old, and written down by her mother verbatim:

Once there was a little calf and its father and mother, and they were very lonely, and one day the cow looked in the calf's little bed and found another little calf and soon there was another and another till there were 29 and they were all boy calves. And then came another and that was a girl calf and then another and then there were 32, and one day the cow called the first 29 to her and said now you are old enough to take care of your selves and go away and have some calves of your own. And then after a while she called the girls to her and told them now you are old enough to go away and have some calves of YOUR own like I had of you. So they had children of their own and they grew up and had children of THEIR own and then the old cow died. And THAT was the first old cow.

Pittsboro, Sept. 25.—Slight disturbances this morning were promptly quelled by the soldiers. Reports from the various coal fields show an absence of rioting. The strikers are evidently over-awed by the presence of the troops.

President Mitchell says the presence of 5,000 troops in the valley makes no difference in the situation. The strikers stand cold and are confident of ultimate success.

Afraid this Country Intends to Gobble the Isthmus—Department Reassures Her

Special to the Mail.
Washington, Sept. 25.—Concentration of 2,000 marines and blue jackets at Panama has aroused serious fears in Colombia as to the real intentions of the United States.

Several telegrams were received today asking the reason for the imposing demonstration by the powers, and declaring that the belief is growing among the Colombians that the United States intends to seize the isthmus, thus gain possession of Colon territory without payment.

Secretary Moody replied that there was not a word of truth in the rumors, and that the United States has no ulterior motive, but the discharge of treaty obligations, in maintaining isthmian transit.

American interests were jeopardized by making the railroad districts the theatre of action, hence the action was forced on the United States.

EMPLOYEES MUST KEEP THEIR MOUTHS SHUT

Kansas City, Sept. 25.—The packing houses have issued orders forbidding the employees to discuss the beef trust, under penalty of discharge.

Omaha, Sept. 25.—The taking of inventories in the packing houses here was stopped on orders from Chicago. This leads to the belief that the proposed merger is off for the present, owing to President Roosevelt's hostility to trusts.

New York, Sept. 25.—The taking of testimony in the suit of the United States Government against the Northern Securities Company was begun this morning before F. G. Ingorsoll, the special examiner appointed for that purpose by Judge Lochren of the United States Circuit Court of Minnesota. The parties to the litigation were represented as follows: Solicitor-General J. T. Richards appeared on behalf of the Government; M. D. Grover, counsel for the Great Northern Railway Company, and C. W. Bunn, counsel for the Northern Pacific Railroad. The Northern Securities Company and its directors, who are made co-defendants in the suit, were represented by an array of able counsel, headed by former Attorney General, John W. Griggs.

Although there are four suits now pending against the Northern Securities Co., the suit in which the United States is plaintiff is the only one that is regarded with special interest. There is no question that the case will be carried for final review to the United States Supreme Court, and the importance of that decision as affecting future combinations similar to the Northern Securities Co. cannot be overestimated.

COOS COUNTY MEN HELPED BY GOV. GEER

Remits Fines Imposed on Wooley and Olson For Selling Liquor Without a License

Special to the Mail.

Salem, Sept. 26.—Governor Geer today remitted the fines of Chas. Wooley and Andrew Olson, convicted and fined $200 at the last term of Circuit Court in Coos County. Judge Hamilton, who convicted the men, recommended the action, as they were induced by others to commit the act, and are too poor to pay the fines in full.

(Wooley and Olson were residents of Dairyville. Olson ran a small saloon there. Having no retail liquor license, he thought he was evading the law by agreeing to sell a man a gallon of whiskey and then letting him have it by the drink until it amounted to a gallon, when it would be paid for. He sold out to Wooley, who continued the practice, and at the last term of circuit court both were convicted of selling liquor without a license. The minimum fine of $200 was imposed. A petition has since been sent to Governor Geer, asking that half of the fine be remitted, and this is probably the action he has taken—Ed MAIL.
