Warning to Parents
Great excitement was caused at noon today by one of the Jeffers boys falling into the bay from the Dean & Co. dock. He was pulled out immediately, none the worse for his good ducking.

Such little tots should be kept off the water front when not accompanied by their parents, and the latter would do well to take warning from the incident.

Size of the Ocean.
Most men seem to be as ignorant about the size of the sea as they are of the distance between the heavenly planets. Invention gives a few interesting facts: The Pacific covers 68,000,000 miles, the Atlantic 30,000,000 and the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic oceans 42,000,000. To stow away the contents of the Pacific it would be necessary to fill a tank 2 miles long, a mile wide and a mile deep every day for 440 years. Put in figures, the Pacific holds in weight 948,000,000,000,000,000 tons. The Atlantic averages a depth of not quite three miles. Its water weighs 825,000,000,000,000 tons, and a tank to contain it would have each of its sides 430 miles long and deep.

A Chinese Fish Story.
The fish editor of the Courier de Tientsin is going strongly at present. Gloat over this, O ye disciples of Munchausen, and call a passing pointer, O ye followers in the footsteps of Annias:
"Some days ago an enormous fish thirty-six feet long was caught in the vicinity of Peking, near Tangku. It was cut up and sold in the surrounding villages. The carcass of the fish was probably poisonous, as 300 inhabitants who had eaten of it are dead and many others are ill."

The Social Whirl

The wedding of Miss March Lily Merchant and Mr. Cramer Butford was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Merchant, in South Marshfield, only the relatives and a few intimate friends of the family being present at the ceremony. The parlor was most tastefully decorated for the occasion with white chrysanthemums, smilax, cedar, and Oregon grape. At 8:15 the groom and best man entered the parlor to the sweet strains of the wedding march. Mr. Cramer Butford, of Seaside, was the groom, and Mr. C. H. Merchant, of Marshfield, was the best man. The bride was Miss March Lily Merchant, of Marshfield, and the bridesmaids were Misses Lily Merchant, of Marshfield, and Miss Lily Merchant, of Marshfield. The groomsmen were Mr. C. H. Merchant, of Marshfield, and Mr. C. H. Merchant, of Marshfield. The wedding was a most successful one, and the bride and groom were most happily united.

rejected. We also find in almost every community some man who sets himself up as a weather prophet, and who prognosticates, year after year, hard winters, dry spells, and other calamities. Once in a great while he hits the mark, and then his "I told you so" receives public acknowledgement; all his previous misses are forgotten, and great is his fame throughout the land.

These men may be conscientious in their belief, or veritable tricksters, it matters not which, and does not change the fact that their sayings and doings are an inheritance of the dark ages, when all the world was veiled in superstition and ignorance. This we know, for by tracing back the mental progress of the human race we find that all savages today have their rain makers and their rain stoppers, and that the patriarchal tribes still believe that comets, eclipses and other unusual appearances forebode dire disasters. Also, anciently, the most civilized nations, such as the Chaldeans, Egyptians, Jews, Greeks and Romans, had their soothsayers and oracles, who imposed upon a credulous public.

Later, the astrologers of the middle ages had a large following, and from the beginning of the 16th century up to the beginning of the 19th century they flooded Germany, France and Great Britain with almanacs containing prophecies of the weather, as well as prophecies regarding the minutest details of conduct in the daily lives of the people. These prophecies were the merest twaddle, but it took a long time after Copernicus had exploded the theory that our little world was the center of the universe before the belief in astrology received a check. Now it has so far disappeared that none but artful plunderers and ignorant dupes give it the slightest countenance.

It is not so with the so-called long range weather forecasters. Unfortunately, many people, and some of the less careful publishers, are apparently in ignorance of the true character of the work of these self-appointed prophets. We cannot account for the continued publication of their utterances in any other way.

Characterizing them as fakirs and impostors avails us little. The people themselves must decide as to the true worth of their work. Let those who have any interest in the matter carefully compare the published forecasts with the actual weather day by day, for in no other way will the utter worthlessness of the whole mischievous business be exposed.

ous reasoning is necessary. The spongy fiber is converted into a compact lignous substance, and it acquires greatly increased durability and strength, with resistance to changes of temperature and moisture and even to fire. A special advantage is that the softer and cheaper and even defective woods can be made to serve many purposes in place of expensive hard woods.

Mr. M.
been thorough. One of his friends tells how it was proved and Mr. Balkcom says his friend's word is not to be doubted. The friend is a farmer living in his county. He says six years ago he was in the habit of keeping a jug of buttermilk in a well to drink during the day. One morning he let down the jug and the string broke. The water was too deep to think of fishing out the jug and it was allowed to remain where it fell. Recently the well was cleaned out and the jug was found. In order to see what was the condition of the milk the jug was uncorked and the milk was tasted. It was found to be just as good as it was the day it fell into the well, so it is declared.

Selecting a Good Cow.
When a breeder purchases cows for foundation stock he will always demand three points—individuality, performance and pedigree—says E. H. Sibley in American Cultivator. Cows with fleshy udders or small udders or poor fore udders or small teats are to be avoided, as are those also that have short and heavy bull-like necks. The model udder reaches well forward in a graceful curve and extends high up behind. Many beginners make the mistake of supposing that those animals are of a superior type that are dainty and delicate and lacking in size. As a matter of fact, slender, graceful animals are likely to be efficient in vigor and to prove disappointing.

The performance of an animal is one of the best gauges of her value. The average man cannot afford to buy world beaters, but he will do well to pay the additional price which is asked for superior as compared with inferior performers. The record of the animal to a large extent fixes the value.

Diversity of Tongues.
The diversity of tongues to be found in one country is often a matter of surprise. Last year the Bible society agents sold the Scriptures in 53 languages in the Russian empire, in 24 languages in Burma and in 30 in South Malaya and in 53 in the Egyptian agency.

Elastic Wood.
A cane cut from a sort of willow tree in Liberia can be twisted around the wrist like a piece of gutta percha, but will become straight when released.

Old Time Graves Robbers.
Under the laws of Draco, the most severe code ever drawn up, all grave robbers were put to death without trial. The old Athenian laws put a slave to death for disturbing a body after interment, but in the case of a freeman a "confession of a moiety of his possessions" was the penalty. Constantine decreed that a woman might obtain a divorce if she could prove that her husband had disturbed the remains of the dead. At one time (in the time of the seventh and eighth centuries) the English law held that "if a woman unwarrantably open a grave for a second person, except for a husband or wife."
