LEST WE FORGET

Cos County voters should not forget that the Democrats are making a very bitter fight on Binger Hermann. They seem to think that they have some chance of electing their candidate, and they will move heaven and earth to make as many votes as possible.

While it does not seem reasonable to suppose for an instant that this district would be crazy enough to turn down Binger Hermann, still when the Democrats are putting forth special effort is no time for Republicans to lie down. Here in Cos county all Republicans and hundreds of Democrats will vote for Hermann. The only point that seems to require emphasis is the advisability of every one of Mr. Hermann's friends getting out to the polls. Let the largest possible majority be given him in this section, not only for the sake of making assurance doubly sure, but to show that Cos knows her friends and is not apathetic in backing them.

Make your calculations to get out and vote and have your neighbor do the same.

THE PORTLAND WAY

With a heavy cargo, composed of general merchandise and lumber, the steamer Alliance, of the California & Oregon Coast Line, arrived up this morning and docked at Couch street, coming from the Bay City by way of Coos Bay. She brought a passenger list of 70. The Alliance was 12 hours late in reaching the Columbia River owing to being ordered to the bay and making a slow run from there—Portland Telegram.

The Mail would suggest to the Portland Telegram that it instruct its young man who does the marine news that Coos Bay has an established and unassailable position on the map; also that the regular run of the Alliance is by way of Humboldt and Coos Bay, and that the bulk of her business is to and from this port.

The item quoted above is the second one of the kind with which the Telegram has diffused misinformation regarding this one trip of the Alliance. It is not to be supposed that the agent of the C. & O. C. line is trying to kill its business with Coos Bay by giving out such statements, and the Telegram reporter must have obtained his information from some loafer on the dock, or else this is a part of the Portland system of belittling Coos Bay.

As a matter of fact, the latter is more likely to be the case, for it is directly in line with the Portland system. As a mere matter of accuracy in its news department, however, if that is any object, the Telegram should brace up and try to hit it off a little closer.

KICKING AGAINST THE PRICKS

The News says: "Hon. Binger Hermann's managers pulled the political wires and had an invitation issued to ride on the President's train through the Willamette valley" etc. It is amusing to see the contortion, of the Democratic press in their efforts to minimize the effect on the voters of the President's cordial treatment of Mr. Hermann, which irretrievably spoiled the only piece of campaign thunder with which they could raise a respectable rattle.

The Portland Journal even went so far as to run a line in red across the top of its first page, trying to place the President in a false position, as having been bulldozed into inviting Mr. Hermann; as though Theodore Roosevelt were amenable to that sort of treatment.

However, nothing better could be expected of the Portland Journal, which is trying desperately to rally, and make itself indispensable to, the scattered forces of Democracy in Oregon. With Coos county papers and Coos county Democrats the case is somewhat different. They know, or at least they ought to know, that Binger Hermann is distinctively Coos county's candidate; that he can and will do more for Coos county in one session than young Mr. Reames could do in ten. Then why not lay aside party prejudice and blindness in favor of loyalty to their own section to the extent that they could accord Mr. Hermann decent treatment.

REAMES ON HARBOR IMPROVEMENT

"We might as well throw our money into the briny deep as improve our rivers and harbors, unless we tear down the tariff walls," said A. E. Reames in his speech at Salem. Can you swallow that, Coos Bay Democrats? Do you want to send a man to congress who will work against river and harbor improvement, as a dead waste of money, until the tariff walls are torn down?

The Democratic nominee has been making the childish plea, that as Congress is strongly Republican, he couldn't do any harm during his term, if elected. His utterance above shows that he could and would do a great deal of harm to Coos Bay. At this time it would be nothing less than a calamity to have a man in congress who would oppose river and harbor improvement on principle. If Mr. Reames means what he says he is not entitled to a single vote from Coos county. If he doesn't mean what he says, but is simply talking through his hat, he is not a man for any body to send to congress.

As a matter of fact, Reames seems to be an exceedingly lightweight proposition. If he has made a single utterance during his campaign which shows any depth, any grasp of the situation, any ability fitting him to represent this district in Congress, his words have not been reported to the press. He has been talking the old, hackneyed, stereotyped glop which everyone knows by heart, and whenever he has ventured on something original, like the utterance quoted above, he has given himself dead away as a man of exceedingly small calibre.

But if he had the ability of a Webster, it would be suicidal for Coos Bay voters to support him, after his utterance quoted above.

HERMANN VERSUS HITCHCOCK

Aside from all party reasons, says a Salem exchange, Hermann is proving himself the most available and desirable man to send to congress.

In his controversy with Hitchcock he is found to be on the popular side—opposing the extension of the forest reserves in Western Oregon.

The people have got to vote Hitchcock or Hermann down, and the old Oregon

Congressman will down the Wall street theorist.

Is there any sense or decency in yutting all Western Oregon under forest reserves? Yes, that is what Hitchcock is doing since he got Hermann out of the land office.

Forest reserves may be all right on the east slope of the Cascades, to protect streams flowing into the arid regions.

But they are not needed all over Western Oregon. Western Oregon has too much rainfall if anything, and the rivers are not drying up.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

In speaking of the adverse reports of government engineers, on the continuance of the harbor improvements at Coos Bay the Corvallis Gazette says:

"Recent dispatches from Washington state the government engineers reported adversely to making further appropriations to continue improving the harbor at Coos Bay, and the secretary of war has ordered the improvement discontinued. When Mr. Hermann was in congress through his efforts Coos bay obtained regular appropriations, but Portland and the Oregonian steadily opposed them.

"Oregon can only get a certain amount through the general appropriation bill for the improvements of her rivers and harbors. Whatever amounts are appropriated for Coos bay, Yaquina bay and other Oregon seaports, that much less remains to be devoted to the Columbia river. While Mr. Hermann was in Congress appropriations were regularly made for the improvement of Yaquina bay. Mr. Hermann was able and strong enough to overcome the opposition of the Oregonian and Portland influence to these appropriations. After Mr. Hermann's time expired in congress the efforts of the Oregonian prevailed and the government engineers were induced to report adversely to continuing the improvement of Yaquina bay and all other rivers and harbors of Oregon. But the Oregonian and Portland influence from the first strenuously opposed Mr. Hermann because he would not ignore every other part of the state, and devote his whole energy to obtain all of the Oregon appropriations for the Columbia river. The Democratic press have joined hands with the Oregonian and Portland influence to oppose the election of Mr. Hermann. This combined opposition, means if successful that for the next several years the Columbia river will get all the appropriations which Oregon is entitled to receive for the improvement of rivers and harbors, and that every other part of the of the state get none.

"All of the state should move along in harmony together and every location should receive its proper portion of public favor, and it will be Mr. Hermann's effort to represent all interests when elected. His large and long experience in congress will enable him to accomplish more than any other new man."

INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Battle of Colleges for Field Honors is now on at Berkley.

New York, May 29 :—The battle of the colleges for track and field honors commenced this afternoon at Berkley Oval in the presence of an immense throng of spectators. In accordance with a custom that has prevailed for the past three or four years and made necessary by the large number of contestants two days have been allotted to the meeting.

No previous meeting of the Intercollegiate Association has attracted more attention than the present one. The Yale men are doubtly anxious to win this year. If they are successful the cup will belong to Yale for good, while if Harvard wins it, it will remain in competition another year. Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania have entered all of their veterans and smashing of records will probably result. Besides these four big universities the crack athletes of Amherst, Williams, Union, Columbia and other colleges will figure in the different events.
