The Two Vaughans

(Original.)

It was just 9 o'clock when I entered my office. The clerks were busy at their various duties, while my typewriter was reading a morning paper, waiting for work. I was surprised to see my desk open and a man sitting in my place. There was something familiar about the man. The fighter is heart and soul with us. One of Howe's staff is in love with her, and her father is trying to force her to marry him. She has sent me a message that she needs to see me on a matter of great importance.

"But if you enter the enemy's lines in civilian clothes and you are caught you will be hanged for a spy."

"I will take the risk."

"Very well. If you insist I will give you permission in the general's name. You might as well be hanged for an old sheep as a lamb, so keep your eyes and ears open for information of Howe's movements."

At 9 o'clock the same night Major Tarbel of General Howe's staff was sitting with Marjorie Hastings in her father's house at Trenton.

"There must be some reason, Marjorie," he said, "that you have not given me why you decline my offer."

"There is, but I cannot give it to you without incurring a risk of my father knowing it. If it should come to his ears he would send me to England."

"I promise on my honor to hold it sacred."

"Well, then," replied Marjorie, "I am betrothed to an officer in the Continental army."

With a sigh the major arose and, respectfully touching Marjorie's hand with his lips, was about to withdraw when both were startled by the sound of shots without. Marjorie turned pale. Major Tarbel strode to the door. As he threw it open he saw two orderlies who were awaiting him standing without and between them the figure of a young man of refined features dressed in the clothes of a countryman, his coat being of the coarsest texture and his hose of common yarn.

"Who are you?" asked Tarbel of the captive.

"Lieutenant Ralph Tower of the Continental army. I am neither spy nor skulker, but am here at the bidding of my betrothed, Marjorie Hastings."

Tarbel looked from one to the other, then directed his orderlies to remain without while their prisoner was invited to enter, and the door was closed.

"Marjorie," said the major, "I am myself in a position from which I would gladly be free. It is my duty to turn over Lieutenant Tower to be dealt with by court martial."

During this brief interview Marjorie had stood pale, her hand on her bosom to still the violent beating of her heart. When Tarbel announced his intention she drew a few convulsive breaths, preparing for a desperate move, then said:

"Major Tarbel, if you hold Lieutenant Tower he will be hanged for a spy. He is not the real spy. Yesterday I sent him a message to come to me. He doesn't know what for."

"Marjorie," said Ralph, "I am sure I know. Your father is about to force you to marry against your will."

"You are wrong, Ralph. Only a few moments ago I confessed to Major Tower that I was your betrothed, and he was about to leave me, like the gentleman he is, free to act my own pleasure. It is for another matter I summoned you." She thrust her hand into her bosom, drew forth a paper and handed it to Tarbel. He opened it, scanned it and saw that it contained important information concerning General Howe's army, then looked up at Marjorie in consternation.

"Do your duty, Major Tarbel," she said. "I confess that I summoned Lieutenant Tower without his knowing my purpose to send this paper by him to General Washington. I am the real spy."

Tarbel stood spellbound for a few moments, then began to rapidly think. "Marjorie," he said presently, "give me that paper."

"Now," he continued, when she had handed it to him, "you must leave our lines at once. It would be criminal in me to permit you to remain here after what has occurred."

"And Ralph?"

"Upon your confession I am not bound to detain him."

Ten minutes later one of Major Tarbel's orderlies called a dominie who lived close at hand. Ralph Tower and Marjorie Hastings were made one, and at midnight passed the British lines. The next morning they stepped into Colonel Hamilton's office.

"Colonel," said Tower, "I have no military information for you, but I have brought a wife. Permit me to introduce Mrs. Tower, nee Marjorie Hastings."

"He who gains a woman," said Hamilton with a smile, "gains information as well. Doubtless Mrs. Tower will tell us all we need to know."

But in this Hamilton was mistaken. The lady was too honorable to take any advantage of Major Tarbel's magnanimity.

A Poor Bureau.

"Yes," apologized the old citizen, "our town is pretty dirty, I know, but we have a street cleaning bureau."

"Bureau!" exclaimed the unsophisticated stranger. "I should think that would be about the poorest implement you could use for cleaning streets."

"Well, it is."—Chicago Tribune.

The Sacred Plants of the Druids.

The Druids held many plants sacred, as, for instance, vervain, selago, mistletoe, and among trees the oak and the rowan. There is, I think, no serious doubt as to the identity of any of these except the second (selago), which is generally thought to be the club moss. Oak mistletoe is certainly rare, and that may have been the reason why it had an especially sacred character, but it does exist.

THE DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Theodor's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Theodor's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Morgan, Ark., May 29, 1901.

I cannot recommend Theodor's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up.
