Each Fighter Gets Well Paid

The receipts of the fight were $62,340 of which the fighters got $43,638. Jeffries taking $32,803 and Corbett $10,835.

BIGGEST MILITARY PARADE

Ever Seen on the Pacific Coast

Entire Regular Army at 'Frisco

(Special to the Coast Mail.)
San Francisco, Aug. 18—This was the day the veterans looked on, but tomorrow they will have a chance to march as they marched in '01.
This morning witnessed the biggest military parade San Francisco has ever seen. Never before has the entire force of the regular army been stationed here, and it turned out in one big procession.
The most interesting part of the parade was three battalions of field artillery with an array of formidable guns. Two battalions of coast artillery followed them. The nine divisions marched smartly with no delay.
After the Regulars came the National Guard, the Naval Militia and Citizen Soldiers under General Dickinson.
Governor Pardee rode with General McArthur, in the second carriage. General Shafter and Black were in the third.
General Miles was cheered to the echo, in fact the ride was one continual ovation. It was a great day for him.
One of the most picturesque features of the parade was a large company of Red men.

The Best Way to Preserve a Body.
There is no other way in which a body can be preserved so long, leaving freezing and mummification out of the question, as by burial in a lead coffin. If the receptacle is airtight, lack of oxygen brings putrefaction almost if not quite to a pause, and the face of a defunct person may be recognizable after a long period of time. The attempts frequently made to destroy bodies by covering them with lime usually have the opposite effect, preserving them by keeping out the air.—London Answers.

The 14-year-old son of Dr. Bailey, port surgeon at Fort Columbia, died very suddenly at that place Wednesday from ptomaine poisoning, the result of eating wild berries.

Sunset Bay

From Wednesday's Daily.
The Big creek crew have arrived home. The party consisted of John O'Malley, Fred Johnson, Nick Richert, Carl Goodman, John Snyder, Capt. Santa Ana his first mate McDuff and second mate Frank Tanner, brother of Dr. Tanner who fasted for forty days, but Frank could not fast forty minutes when Mulligan was in sight. Dr. Heckels accompanied the party as special physician and surgeon. The ladies of the party were Mrs. O'Malley and Miss Nellie Wasson. They report a good time. When Dr. Heckels spied a deer, he told them to watch a man that could shoot. As the deer approached near him he raised his gun, but got nervous and he shook his gun in the same way he shakes up a gin fizz. When Chas. Kronholm from Alaska, late of the Geodetic survey, made a display at sea of how they catch fish in the frozen regions but suddenly was attacked by sickness around the abdomen and but for the timely services of Dr. Heckels he would have thrown all of himself away. The star fisherman of the party was John O'Malley, he caught fish all around the others and gave them to understand that was the way they caught fish in Michigan. When the shades of night fell, they built a bonfire and indulged in dancing. The dance was odd for the reason that no two of the dancers had the same step. John Snyder was a boy again and limbered up to the music in a style that was wonderful. Nick Richert danced as he never danced before. It was voted that Fred Johnson was the most graceful waltzer of the crowd. Everybody danced—they could not help it under the soul stirring strains of Cape Santa Ana's fiddle. Capt. H. P. Score entertained the party at the light house in a hospitable manner they will not soon forget. The most entertaining feature of the camp amusements, was the witnessing of the splendid marksmanship of Mrs. O'Malley, seven bottles were put up at a distance of 125 yards and with a 22 rifle she broke six out of the seven, off hand, no sight being taken. If Dr. Carver had been there he would have been loudest in his applause. Miss Nellie Wasson proved herself to be an adept at cliff climbing. McDuff and Tanner entertained the crowd at night by singing old time sea songs. Nick had bad luck with his bread and Carl Goodman was going to hang him, but he had set his bread the night it thundred and lightened so bad and he explained this was the cause of spoiling the same. This cleared him. Thus ends a chapter of fun and jollity, by a good, natured crowd down by the sad sea waves.

Grieving that he should compare so ill with the moderns, he went on his way lamenting.—New York Tribune.

Too Much Argument.

Robinson Brothers Hold First Reunion in Forty Years

At a recent reunion at the home of Milton Robinson, a few miles west of Junction City, five brothers of the Robinson family, with their wives and numerous friends, congregated to rest and spend a day relating stories of childhood days. The five brothers together weigh 964 pounds and their combined ages amount to 357 years. The heaviest weighs 232 pounds and the smallest 170. Seventy-years is the age of the eldest, while the youngest is 64.
These men are all old pioneers, George having crossed the plains in 1849, the others following with the trains in 1850-2 and '53. Over 40 years have elapsed since these brothers have all met, and a special effort was made to bring about this reunion.
The names of the brothers are Milton, Samuel V., James A., William and George D.

The Difference.
Miss Langush—Mercy! You don't mean to say you destroy all your love letters! I save mine religiously.
Miss Pertly—Of course; but, then, you know it makes a difference where one has only a few.—Boston Transcript.

His Mission.
"Yes," said the would be poet. "I started as office boy for an editor. I used to help empty wastebaskets."
"Indeed!" said the girl who had seen some of his effusions, "and now I suppose you help fill them?"—Philadelphia Record.

Misunderstood.
"Sir, you look like an optimist. You have a happy countenance. Lend me a dollar."
"My friend, do you know why I look happy? It's because I haven't any wealth to bother me."—Exchange.

Inappropriate Quotation.
The following is a good example of inappropriate quotations: A clergyman appointed to an East End living found his parish church sadly in need of repair and gave orders for its renovation. While this was in hand the idea occurred to him to visit the mission halls in connection with it to see what might be needed there. In one of them which was used as a mission chapel he found a state of indescribable filth from end to end and an accompanying effluvia. In disgust he raised his eyes toward the roof and could hardly repress a fit of laughter on reading the text stenciled on the wall behind the pulpit. "How dreadful is this place!" Another story is of an old Presbyterian clergyman who, away on a preaching engagement, found above the bed on which he was to sleep the singular advice, "Occupy till I come."—London Chronicle.

Drinks and Droops.
"Jenkins must be a pretty straight fellow. Dobbins tells me he never drinks a drop."
"So?" You probably misunderstood Dobbins. What he said must have been that Jenkins never drops a drink."—London Chronicle.
