

MARSHFIELD ONCE MORE Defeats North Bend By Small Margin

From Tuesday's Daily.

In the hottest game of the season Marshfield defeated North Bend Sunday by a score of 6 to 5. It is called the hottest game advisedly, for while it was not perhaps the most perfect exhibition of scientific playing that has been seen this season, it certainly kept the crowd at fever heat from first to last. In fact every body was hot in the collar and the prevailing height of the temperature was responsible for two short scraps during the game.

The thing that made Marshfield mad was the appearance of Kostal in the box for North Bend. It was generally understood by the crowd that he had accepted a retainer from the Marshfield team and had agreed to pitch the game for them, and then skipped out for North Bend Saturday night. This aroused a personal feeling against him that caused a constant cross fire of light and heavy artillery to center on him, and the rooters taxed their ingenuity to think of insulting cries to hurl at him. This seemed to have little effect for the first six innings, but it evidently wore on his nerves and he went to pieces before the game ended.

The two other Roseburg men who had been added to the North Bend team did not come in for any such measure of abuse, though Bradley had to take a little chaffing on his failure to bat as was evidently expected of him.

It looked for ever half the game as though the Marshfield boys were up against it good and hard. With one of the crack pitchers of the state, the best first baseman and the best batter of the Roseburg team added to North Bend's force, they certainly had their work cut out for them. Three times during the first six innings they got a man to third only to be shut out by the lively work of the North Bend boys, who in the mean time ran up a score of four. It was enough to discourage any team, but our boys kept their heads and their nerve and stayed with it like bull dogs. Too much credit cannot be given Captain Byrnes, for the way he kept his men in line through this trying ordeal. He kept up his own courage and that of his men, so that when the opportune moment arrived they were ready to take advantage of it, and to work five men across the home plate in the seventh inning. The untried rooters with their apparently exhausted lung power also helped to keep up the confidence of the home team when the chances looked hopelessly against them. When the first score was made by our side, bedlam broke loose, and when the inning ended with Marshfield one ahead, the capers indulged in indicated the strain under which the crowd had been laboring.

In the eighth neither side scored, but in the first half of the ninth North Bend made it a tie. Then Heilmuller took the box in place of Kostal, but Marshfield found him often enough to get a man across the plate while yet the lamp held out to burn.

It would be impossible to give an adequate round-up of the incidents of the game; there were too many of them.

The most showy exhibition of ground and lofty tumbling was given by Geo. Farrey, in the field when he stopped to bore a hole in the grass with his head while he waved all his legs in the air, but came up triumphant with the ball.

Manager Short had his hands full to keep the excited crowd back to a line and in one case had to enforce his authority by his physical prowess.

Then one of the North Bend players allowed his temper to give away at what he considered an ungentlemanly act of one of Marshfield's enthusiastic rooters and came out in the crowd to emphasize his protest. In a few minutes he again took his place on the diamond with his cap pulled over one eye and his serenity of temper apparently restored.

The decisions of the umpire caused several whiffs of excitement, when it looked as though there might be something doing, but fortunately the boys kept their heads. As a matter of fact Umpire Griffin had an exceedingly difficult place to fill, but he filled it remarkably well.

In fact, it is not far-fetched to say that, considering the state of feeling to which the crowd was wrought up, it is creditable to both sides that things passed off as smoothly as they did.

Druhoh, in the box for Marshfield after the first two innings, covered himself with glory.

Marshfield had signed Newell, Roseburg's short stop, and his work proved his ability to hold his own with the best of them.

He has a good pair of lamps and they don't fool him when it comes to hitting, he is also a past master at short stop, and is familiar with all the tricks of the trade.

That Marshfield's aggregation of ball players did credit to their town yesterday is a fact that cannot be disputed. It seems that in the last four games that Marshfield has played that she has improved in every game, and now shows a fair shade of getting the pennant, or if that is not possible, that she will stand second at least. It only remains to be seen, after they have met Bandon a week from the coming Sunday.

North Bend has secured the services of Joe Kostal, the Roseburg pitcher. Some say that Kostal has not been pitching his usual game here in Coos county, but it is hoped that he will show what he can do before he leaves the diggings.

North Bend's rooters were out in good force, Sunday, and certainly did their share toward keeping up the spirits of their players.

If those who attended this didn't get their money's worth they need never expect to be satisfied in that regard. One lady was heard to exclaim: "Oh wasn't that splendid! I wish I had paid a dollar for my seat."

The following score was kept by a bystander. If in the excitement he made any mistakes, they were unintentional:

THE DRAUGHT

THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. The Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by The Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than The Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Mullins, S. C., March 10, 1901.
I have used The Draught for three years and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints.
