ANOTHER MURDEROUS CRANK

Tries to Reach President Roosevelt

Arrested and Disarmed After a Fight

(Special to the Coast Mail.)

Washington, Oct. 5—A man who later gave the name of Peter Elliott, from Milwaukee, by occupation a machinist, attempted to gain entrance to the White House this morning and upon being told that he could not see the president he became violent and fought desperately.

He was armed with a revolver and knife and used the latter on Guard Ciale, inflicting a severe wound in his elbow. The door keeper finally overpowered him, inflicting on him a bad scalp wound, also a cut in his hand.

Elliott was removed to the emergency hospital and later to the police station. A hour earlier he had demanded to see the President and when asked what was his business he claimed he had been sent for, then said the President wanted to see him. The man seemed harmless and was not detained. Yesterday he attracted attention by trying to reach the president in church, but was turned away by the ushers.

Then I began the use of Electric Bitters and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years." If you want a reliable medicine for Liver and Kidney trouble, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by John Freuss, Only 50c.

OTHER CRANKS EXPECTED

To Try to Reach the President

Precautions Taken to Thwart Them

(Special to the Coast Mail.)

Washington, Oct. 5—Arrangements have been made for an extra guard for President Roosevelt at the memorial service in honor of Minister Herbert, at St. Johns church today. These precautions are the result of the attempt of the crank, Elliott, to enter the White House yesterday.

Secret service men say that it is almost invariably the rule that the publication of an attempt to reach the President is followed by the appearance of other unwelcome guests.

Officer Cicelo, who had an encounter with Elliott yesterday, was more seriously injured than at first reported. A piece of glass two inches long and half an inch wide was taken from his arm, where it had severed an artery.

GOULD IS NOT INTERESTED

Backers of Western Pacific Known

From Tuesday's Daily.

The mystery which has hung over the Western Pacific road as to who is backing it has been cleared by a Denver dispatch and the information is now gathered that the road is a Moffat-Burlington link between Denver and San Francisco. This was learned from statements made to friends by W. J. Barnett, one of the men largely interested in the road.

Mr. Barnett declared that the road had been financed from beginning to end, and that solid trains would be running from Denver to San Francisco, over the new rails in less than two years. This is construed with David H. Moffat's statement concerning the operation of Burlington trains from Chicago to the coast within the same period to mean that the Burlington and the Denver Northwestern and Pacific were the real backers of the W. F. Hills surveys, and that the auxiliary companies in Colorado are turned over to Mr. Moffat. Facilities were given the Moffat road and Burlington engines and Burlington tracklaying machines have been used in the early construction work.

For months the newspapers have been surmising that the Western Pacific was a Gould project, and though Gould repeatedly denied it they persisted in the statement.

More consignments of Oregon apples are going forward to Vladivostok. One consignment, 350 boxes, was started Tuesday by W. B. Glafke & Co., via Tacoma. The varieties included in the shipment were Ben Davis, Gano and Kings. The fruit is sent on steamers making the port direct in order that as little time be lost as possible in landing it in good shape.
