WASHINGTON.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 11th, 1888.

Enthusiastic is a very mild word for describing the condition of the democratic members of Congress who have just returned from the St. Louis Convention, and there is ample reason why every democrat in the United States should be as enthusiastic as they. Cleveland and Thurman, and a platform broad enough and strong enough to hold every democrat in the country, are sufficient causes for universal enthusiasm.

Never before in the history of the democratic party has it entered a Presidential campaign with such good prospect of victory; never before was the party so thoroughly united. That much credit for this very flattering state of affairs in the party is due to Mr. Cleveland cannot be denied. He has given the country a good, honest, painstaking administration; one that has been conservative and steady; no fireworks; no bunkum; just plain, everyday, good, old-fashioned, democratic ideas of business, applied in a business way, and the result is an administration that has pleased the people so well that they have concluded to have four years more of it. The American voter knows a good thing when he sees it.

Every true democrat will take pleasure in honoring that old wheelhorse of democracy, Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio. The red bandanna is the symbol that will lead us to victory.

The republicans are in a pitiable condition. Their National Convention at Chicago promises to be in marked contrast to the St. Louis Convention, which was thoroughly harmonious. There is every indication that they will have a bitter and prolonged fight over the nomination which may result in a deadlock between the leading candidates, and the nomination of Blaine in spite of his positive declination, or the nomination of some entirely new and unknown man. In either case the fight is likely to be of such a nature as to virtually disrupt the party.

Congress continued in session all last week, but owing to the absence of many members at St. Louis very little business of importance was considered. Owing to a trick on the part of the republicans of the House, by which they tried to get the arrears of pension bills before the House, the tariff bill was again taken up under the five-minute rule, though it had been agreed previously to pass it by until to-day. Unless something is done to expedite this measure, it is difficult to see how it can possibly be finished during the present session of Congress.

The President has approved the act of Congress providing that pensions heretofore or hereafter granted to widows of soldiers of the war of the rebellion shall commence at the date of the death of their husbands. This law affects favorably all claims of widows of the late war, which have been filed in the Pension Office since July 1st, 1880, and which have been allowed to commence from the date of the filing of the claims, but it will not affect the claims of widows filed before July 1st, 1880.

Notice is given by the Pension Office that in the settlement under this law of claims already allowed, no formal application will be required, and the services of attorneys will not be necessary. Widows entitled to back pension under this law, need only write a letter giving name, post-office address, and certificate number, and the claim will be allowed with as little delay as possible.

Mrs. Cleveland is delighted at the re-nomination of her husband, and says she feels sure he will be elected again.

Judge Thurman is expected in Washington this week. He comes to invite the President and Mrs. Cleveland to attend the Ohio Centennial to be held at Columbus next September. He will be given a grand reception by the democrats of this city and Congress. The Capital will be painted red with bandanna handkerchiefs. "The Old Roman" and the President "came to know and love each other well" about a year ago when Mr. Thurman made a visit to Mr. Cleveland, and was entertained at "Oak View," the President's country residence.

The torchlight procession and ratification meeting will take place in this city on the evening of the 26th inst., the day on which the democratic national committee meets here for organization.

Attorney General Garland, who has been quite ill, is convalescing, but General Sheridan's condition continues precarious. His death may be expected at any moment.

Representative Oates, of Alabama, has introduced a bill in the House which imposes a tax of $25 on every immigrant arriving in this country.

All the ex-soldiers in the employ of the Government, both Union and Confederate, will be given leave of absence to attend the reunion at Gettysburg on the anniversary of the battle at that place.

The State Board of Agriculture under authority of a law of the state has prepared and published a pamphlet of 100 pages, showing the resources of the state of Oregon. We were not aware that this pamphlet, published by authority of the state, was to be made the medium by which certain political cranks were to air their tariff views, but it seems that such is the case. If Minto and McLean are so anxious to promulgate their protective tariff views, let them do it at their own expense and not at the expense of the state.

At the republican primary in the Third ward of Portland the other day to nominate a candidate for Councilman, there were 820 votes cast and counted in two hours. The contest was between Holman and Farrell, the latter winning by 200 majority. The defeated faction accuses the other of high frauds, and no reasonable man doubts it, as the judges and clerks could not register and count that many votes in two hours. But that's the way republican majorities are made in Portland.

Mark this: Whether Sherman, Gresham, Blaine, Harrison, Hawley, Depew, Mahone or Riddleberger shall be nominated at Chicago, all the same, the regulation organ will set up the refrain that it is the best and strongest ticket that could possibly have been nominated.

For a Cold—Squeeze part of the juice of a lemon into a teacup, and pour hot water over it. Sweeten if you like, and drink hot, or leave it alone until you get a stick.

The Supreme Court of Georgia has just heard argument in a case involving 15 cents.

BY THE BY.—The Indian War Veterans presented Col. Kelsay a fine watch the other day. The presentation was done in elegant style, and the Colonel responded in his usual happy way. There are few, if any, in Oregon who do not know Col. Kelsay, and who are not familiar with his quaint jokes. He is still in a state of fine mental and physical preservation and likely to outlive many of the younger generation.—Portland paper.

TO THE THINKING PEOPLE OF ALBANY—Friends: Inasmuch as this is the day and age of sensational advertising and every business man is racking his brain trying to concoct some scheme whereby he can get ahead of his neighbor. We wish to deviate from that rule and make the following statements, knowing that they will be appreciated by all lovers of truth and justice. We are here in business for the purpose of making money and we realize that in order to accomplish that object we must have a continuance of our large patronage. Furthermore we know that this can be assured only by extreme effort on our part and we wish to state that we will at all times give you first-class goods at prices as low, or lower than any house in Albany and in addition allow you 5 per cent off on all cash purchases. The statement made by some dealers that they can buy cheaper than others is folly in the extreme as all cash buyers have equal advantages one with another. What we are striving to do is to merit your patronage and we hope by square, upright dealing to do so and be of mutual benefit one to another.
