E. R. SKIPWORTH, of Umatilla county.

WILL BLAINE EAT CROW?

When President Cleveland's message reached Blaine in Paris, he rushed in hurriedly and sent his tariff message by cable line to be published by the American press. In that message he outlined a policy on the tariff that was hailed with delight by the leaders of his party as embodying the policy upon which it would go into the presidential contest. What was his attitude on the question of repealing the tax on whisky and making it free? Here it is: "I would not advise the repeal of the whisky tax. Other considerations than those of financial administration are to be taken into account with regard to whisky. There is a moral side to it. To cheapen the price of whisky is to increase its consumption enormously. There would be no sense in urging the reform wrought by high license in many states if the National Government neutralizes the good effect by making whisky within reach of every one at twenty cents a gallon. Whisky would be everywhere distilled if the surveillance of the Government were withdrawn by the remission of the tax, and illicit sales could not then be prevented even by a policy as rigorous and searching as that with which Russia pursues the Nihilists. It would destroy high license at once in all the states." Now his party stands upon a platform that pledges dear food and clothing and free whisky to the people. Blaine is an artful dodger and every one is anxious to know in what shape he will take his crow.

SUMMERSAULT.

Only last December the Oregonian declared that the "repeal of the duty on sugar was the prime necessity of revenue reduction." It further declared that "coal and salt and lumber should go on the free list also, and so should bags and bagging of hemp and jute. Now, since that time the republicans met in convention and adopted a platform whereby it pledged the Oregonian and all other humble organs of that party to favor the policy of not changing the tariff duties on these articles, except to increase the duty for the purpose of checking their importation from foreign countries, and further pledges them to the policy of removing the tax from whisky and tobacco, thus giving the people highly taxed clothing and food and free whisky and tobacco. The Oregonian, with a spirit of humility, that, (if it were bona fide and candid,) would have challenged the admiration of the "meek and lowly one" in the pentecostal days, now proceeds to eat its crow with a relish that is at once a wonder and surprise to all outside barbarians. How meek! How humble! How much religious-like subservience. How submissive! and all for the sake of the g. o. p. It now stands squarely in favor of nearly everything that it squarely opposed only a few months ago. It was honest and candid then. It is dishonest and uncandid now in its position of free whisky and dear clothing and food.

Differing widely from Mr. Randall in some respects, we greatly regret the temporary loss to the country of his always patriotic services through the illness which now confines him to his residence at Washington. In the most trying days of Democratic contention in Congress Mr. Randall was of great advantage to the Democratic party by keeping the Federal expenditures within the needs of the Government economically administered. To this fundamental maxim of Democratic faith he has ever been true in word and deed.

Republican papers through the state have been stating that the Elmira Iron and Steel Rolling Mill Company had shut down in consequence of the Mills proposition. Mr. Rathbone, the president of the company, being in New York the other day, was asked by a friend what had caused the closing of his works. He replied that they had not closed, but were in full operation. To the further question how the report had arisen, he ventured the conjecture that the newspapers had to get up some "racket" about the Mills bill, and that this bit of "news" was probably as good for the purpose as anything else.

The Irishmen who would have voted for Blaine are not apt to give many ballots to Harrison. Already anti-Harrison clubs are being formed. The gentlemen from the old sod do not love a man who wants to bring them into competition with Chinese cheap labor.

I did vote with the great body of the Republicans in the Senate against the Chinese Restriction bill—Benjamin Harrison's Letter, Feb. 29, 1888.

A FATAL STEP.

The republican platform declares that—"We favor the entire repeal of the internal revenues [whisky and tobacco taxes] rather than the surrender of any part of the protective system."

This means that General Harrison prefers free whisky to free salt, or lumber, or wool, or clothing. He disagrees plumply with Mr. Blaine, who declares that to cheapen the price of whisky would be to increase its consumption enormously and "destroy high license at once in all the states." To know that Harrison stands on that platform which Mr. Blaine and every man of sense condemns will be enough to turn thousands of voters from him. He has taken a step which he ought to have avoided and which a brighter man in his place would have avoided. He has committed himself to a platform declaration which is against good sense, good morals and the public welfare.
