A CAMPAIGN LIE NAILED.

Jesse Metcalf, of the Wanskuck mills, of Providence, R. I., writes to a friend in Massachusetts apropos of the report that a Massachusetts republican manufacturer had stated that Mr. Metcalf had said that if the Mills bill passed he expected to reduce wages. Mr. Metcalf says: "The report of my conversation with Mr. — is a campaign lie, as I believe I have not talked upon the subject with that gentleman for many months, and I am sure that I never said that I expected a reduction in wages under any circumstances. I am certainly in favor of the Mills bill and of free wool. Under the present tariff we have practically free trade in our spring goods, and yet we continue to run, and at a small profit. With free wool and 40 per cent. duty, we should have all the protection that the most selfish interest ought to ask for, and far more than the consumers ought to grant us. More than that would be a premium on ignorance and laziness. As you well know, there has been a revolution in the manner of working wool, from carding to combing, and while the consumption of fine staple wool has increased enormously, the production has steadily fallen off, necessitating the importation of both wool and goods to supply the demand. Land is too valuable on this side of the Mississippi to grow fine wool, even with a duty of 50 to 60 per cent., and on the other side such wool cannot be grown under any circumstances owing to the soil and climate. With free wool, we have not half enough machinery in this country to supply the demand for goods, and certainly we could not expect lower wages with such an increased demand for labor as would result. In the event of the passage of the Mills bill I have promised the president to erect a new mill, as I can conceive of no more profitable investment for our stockholders." These are the words of an honest, conscientious, unselfish man and behold the admission. Consumers ought to have a voice in determining how high the tariff should be according to this gentleman. He admits that the Mills bill gives a higher rate of duties than consumers ought to grant.

The Chicago Herald speaks largely for the Democracy of the West at present, albeit it is a journal of independent proclivities in matters political, hence the following extract from its columns is unusually forcible: Common sense and logic show that Grover Cleveland will carry New York. No Western man worries over Gov. Hill's affair. He is a man of undoubted popularity, and his re-election is practically conceded. He is supporting Mr. Cleveland loyally. There is no call for an expression from the President. The noise on this subject proceeds from sources that secretly oppose the President's success. The ends sought are to embarrass the Democratic party, Hill as well as Cleveland. Such tactics are always annoying, but never effectively dangerous.

Some time ago an "old junk tidal-wave" in favor of Harrison was discovered in Massachusetts by the Boston Advertiser, and now the Providence Journal says to the enterprising discoverer:

It might start an investigation to determine the velocity and temperature of the wave now that the Senate bill proposes to put rags on the free list. Will the rag men have to vote the Prohibition ticket as the only one at all likely to help the rag industry?

Adam Forepaugh, the great showman, has wagered $18,000 on Cleveland's election and wants to bet more.
