or President—GROVER CLEVELAND, of New York

WILL ALBANY TAKE ACTION.

As it is with a thorough going, active, successful business man, so it is with an enterprising, progressive city. Each watches with keen vigilance to take the flood-tide that leads on to growth and wealth. These opportunities present themselves alike to individuals and communities. They are often not taken advantage of by cities and towns as too many persons are too apt to think that others, and not they, are the ones who should look after these public interests, and what is every one's business soon becomes no one's business, and thus golden opportunities laden with vast benefits are allowed to pass unheeded, often never to return. Albany to-day is presented with one of these opportunities, and yet her citizens apparently with one accord are lying supinely upon their backs hugging the delusive phantom of hope, until others less favored, but with more energy, enterprise and pluck are likely to step in and reap the benefits so invitingly held out to us. We refer to the projected enterprise of constructing a railroad from Albany to tide-water at Astoria. It would require prophetic vision to see and comprehend the vast benefits Albany would receive in the next decade following the construction of this road. Without underestimating or decrying the benefits accruing to Albany from the construction of the O. & C. R. R. or the O. P. R. R. we hesitate not to say that the immediate results following the building of the proposed road to Astoria would be far more important to Albany than the building of either of the former roads. The new proposed road would give us another outlet to tide-water where the fruitage of the rich harvest fields of Linn and other valley counties could be loaded in sail vessels bound at once for Liverpool and thus save the expense of reshipment at San Francisco which is now necessary. The dangers of obstructed navigation on the Columbia river and the heavy expense of towage would be avoided in shipping to and from Albany. In addition to all this it would secure to Albany that safe, permanent and healthy competition in transportation facilities so essential to the future, rapid growth of the city. It would not be Albany alone that would be the recipient of the benefits of the building of the road. The farmers of Linn county would receive the greatest share of the benefits of the road. It would be their grain that would find this additional outlet to the sea. By this route, if cheaper and better than others, their supplies might come from San Francisco and the east. And, now then, what do the farmers of Linn county and the citizens of Albany propose to do in the premises? Will they take action, or wait until it is taken by other points? It is an opportunity that should not be lost sight of. Let every man talk of it and discuss it with his neighbor. There is no time for delay. Act, act in the living present.

Who but this plumed knight, oblivious of the multitude, could ride intrepidly against the Grangers as Blaine did in closing his Indianapolis speech? "Why did your wheat fall?" Because you have to meet, in the markets of Europe, the wheat of Russia which is raised in that vast country by labor that is paid not more than eight cents per day per man. Fatal admission Mr. Blaine. Every high school boy is striving to understand why the farmer, selling his wheat at the world's price, should not desire to buy his goods at the world's price also. If protection make goods cheap, why are goods twice as high in America as in Europe, while the farmer's product must sell in competition with vast Russia?

The Oregonian keeps standing in its columns daily the evidences of its own depravity in the shape of a mutilated and misquoted resolution from the democratic platform of 1886. In order to detract attention from its own cowardly desertion of the principles which the conscience of its editor once so heartily approved, it attempts by falsehood and misrepresentation to discredit the position of the democratic party on the tariff question. Its efforts are proving a miserable failure.

The Democratic heads of families in Indiana are naturally indignant that Mr. Blaine should claim the growth in population at the West as due to the Republican war tariff. They say that the population might have been greater if the babies were not taxed from the cradle to the grave.

The idea that a people can be enriched by heavy and unnecessary taxation, that a man's condition can be improved by taxing him on all he wears, on all his children wear, on all his tools and implements of industry, is an obvious absurdity.—Thurman's Letter of Acceptance.

Now, here is something in the St. Louis Past Dispatch which Mr. Blaine or Butter worth really ought to take notice of: "Some clever little dicky bird should be able to tell why it is that two Southern products have to bear nearly all of the tariff reduction in the Republican Tariff bill, when the North has made a thousand dollars where the South has made one dollar out of the tariff."

From our Eastern Oregon exchanges we learn that Mr. Bilyen's meetings are largely attended and that his arguments in favor of tariff reform and good economic government for the people are unanswerable.
