Inauguration Days.

Washington, July 29.—For many years there has been on foot an agitation in favor of changing inauguration day from the 4th of March to some later date when the skies were more apt to smile propitiously on the proceedings and less likely to deluge the spectators with rain, sleet or snow. With each recurrent inauguration at which the weather was bad, this agitation was renewed only to die away shortly afterwards.

After this it was decided by the inaugural committee that a concerted and sustained effort must be made to alter the day, preferably to April 30, the day on which Washington was inaugurated. Formal steps have now been taken with this end in view, the Commissioners of the District having been formally requested to "appoint such a number of persons, as in their judgment and discretion may be necessary, to constitute a committee of national character, to consider the question of, and to take proper steps to secure a change of the date of the inauguration of the President of the United States, from the 4th of March to some date, as in the judgment of said committee, would be more suitable for inauguration day."

Commissioner McFarland, who was a member of the last inaugural committee, will present the matter to his associates of the District board.

There have been twenty-nine inauguration days. Fourteen were pleasant, thirteen were stormy and there is no record of the weather on the other two days. Most of the pleasant inauguration days occurred during the earlier history of the republic. Of the last fifteen inaugurations twelve were stormy and only three were pleasant. An examination of the newspaper reports from Washington to McKinley shows the following:

Washington—At New York, April 30, 1789. A beautiful spring day.

Washington, March 5, 1793, at Philadelphia. Pleasant.

John Adams—March 4, 1797, at Philadelphia. No reference to weather.

Jefferson—At Washington, March 4, 1801. "The sun shone brightly."

Jefferson—March 4, 1805. Cold, rain, and snow; very disagreeable.

Madison—March 4, 1809. A beautiful day.

Madison—March 4, 1813. "A perfect spring day."

Monroe—March 4, 1817. "A radiant and delightful day."

Monroe—March 5, 1821. Snow and rain.

John Quincy Adams—March 4, 1825. "Good."

Jackson—March 4, 1829. "One of the balmy days of spring."

Jackson—March 4, 1833. No reference to weather.

Van Buren—March 4, 1837. A beautiful day.

William H. Harrison—March 4, 1841. "Weather cold and cloudy, very disagreeable."

Polk—March 4, 1845. Wet and disagreeable.

Taylor—March 4, 1849. A bright day.

Pierce—March 4, 1853. Heavy snowfall, raw northwest wind.

Buchanan—March 4, 1857. A faultless spring day.

Lincoln—March 4, 1861. A clear bright day.

Lincoln—March 4, 1865. Cold, cloudy and threatening.

Grant—March 4, 1869. A raw, dismal, rainy day.

Grant—March 4 1873. The coldest inaugural day ever known. Thermometer four degrees above zero.

Hayes—March 4, 1877. Rain.

Garfield—March 4, 1881. Ground covered with snow.

Cleveland—March 4, 1885. Favorable day for March.

Harrison—March 4, 1889. Rain and snow.

Cleveland—March 4, 1893. Rain and snow in early morning; streets covered with slush.

McKinley—March 4, 1897. Almost perfect weather.

McKinley March 4, 1901. Rain all afternoon. Cold and disagreeable. C. M.

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarh. Hall's Catarh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarh Cure is taken internally, and directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Bright Inhabitants.

The following from the World gives a sample of some men who wish to become American citizens:

Judge Aspinall, of the County Court, in Brooklyn, does not turn out naturalized citizens like chickens from an incubator. A long line of hopeful ones lined up in front of him yesterday, and with confidence in their ability to answer all questions proceeded to tell him that Cuba was one of the States, that Richard Croker discovered America and that Tammany was the first President.

"Who is the President of the United States?" asked Judge Aspinall of Genesee Consolazio.

"Sampeon," promptly responded the ambitious one.

"Can you name some of the states?"

"New Jersey," began Consolazio, slowly.

"Good! Go on."

"Chicago and Harlem."

"Stop there," said Judge Aspinall.

"Do you think that Chicago is a state?"

"Yes, sir," said Consolazio, enthusiastically. "And the Bronx."

"Who makes the laws for the State of New York?" asked Judge Aspinall.

"Richard Croker," promptly responded Consolazio.

"What is that you say—Richard Croker?"

"Yes," responded the man, with the air of one who is sure that he has answered one question rightly at least.

"Humph!" said the Court to himself, "he knows more than I thought. Rejected."

Giuseppa Mora was getting on first rate. He had named five states and said that the Philippines were to be connected with New York by the East River Bridge. But incidentally he said his family was still in Italy and he might go back when he got money enough.

"Back to stay?" asked the Court.

"Yes, I go back all rights!"

"Rejected," said Judge Aspinall with a sigh.

The next candidate surprised the Court by declaring that we were at war with South Africa, but when he said that George W. was the first President and that Theodore Roosevelt was now Vice-President he was forgiven and accepted.

After he accepted he added sotto voce. "Teddy Roosevelt be de next President."

"Didn't ask you that!" said the Judge as he took up the next case.

Curious Facts.

In Liepsic the tramcars are furnished with some weekly journal and a leaflet giving particulars of theatrical and music hall performances. The reading matter hangs on a hook at one end of the car, and passengers may take it to their seats for perusal.

In Victoria a sick voter can record his vote by post; it has been enacted that he can obtain his ballot paper through the local postmaster from the returning officer, fill it up in the presence of the policeman, who must not look at the name he is writing and post it.

The oldest authentic specimen of the bagpipe now in existence is believed to be that now in possession of Messrs. J. & R. Glen of Edinburgh which bears the date 1450. It is very much the same as the Highland bagpipe of the present day except that it wants the large drone.
