Mad at Uncle Sam.

From the Prineville Journal. A party of several Idaho timber people returned Tuesday from the timber. They came back without locating owing to the establishing of the Warner Mountain Reserve. Among the party was B. L. French, of Moscow, state representative, who is much impressed with our country, and intends stay on in our section until he succeeds in landing one of our valuable timber claims. L. E. Allingham was in charge of the party, and his wild goose chase has embittered him against Uncle Sam's ruthless way of creating forest reserves. How thinks he should at least notify a person, before they start for the timber.

Died at Shedd.

Lawyer Gale Hill, W. Lair Thompson, George Anderson, Frank Overholser and Mr. Goddard returned Saturday evening from Marion Lake, where they endeavored to catch the wiley trout and kill a few deer. They stopped at Breitenbush hot springs to recuperate. Hunting and fishing was not very glittered.

On the editorial page is a poem of marked merit, written by a former Linn county young man, and an excellent editorial on education, written by a friend, who desires to see the cause of education advanced, and particularly an increased interest taken in our own worthy college.

ARMSTRONG FOUND.

The decomposed remains of a body, were found several days ago in the river near Buena Vista. It had evidently been in the water several months. It was thought to be the body of George Armstrong, who disappeared from across the river about the first of March, and an investigation resulted in the identification of the remains from the clothes worn.

A Fight at Newport.

When the boat was getting ready to leave Newport yesterday three or four men, including a gambler down the river, got into a fierce fight, making things tropical for a few minutes. Sheriff Ross was on board and after some resistance fired the men from the boat. It caused some excitement for awhile.

There were eleven car loads of people on the excursion to the Bay yesterday, the largest of the season.

Mr. Toney Austin dressed in a new suit of overalls left this morning for the wheat fields with a large list of threshing contracts ahead.

Man, of the people of the Dalles take their summer out in camp at the Cascade Locks, said to be a fine place. Among those there this year are Rev. Poling and family.

Prineville Journal: R. E. Gilchrist, a Michigan capitalist, has purchased, so we are told, about 100 claims situated in Crook and Lake counties. The average price is $800, which is altogether too small. The purchases have all been made during the past ten days.

Prineville Journal: The Georgia Harper Co. has been in our sister city, Burns, for the past couple of weeks and each evening they have put a play on the boards a full house has greeted them. We understand it is the intention of this company to soon be in Prineville, and our people will then be treated to fine theatrical performances.

The DEMOCRAT tomorrow will contain an original poem by an Albany man, well written and full of interest, as well as suggestive of human experience. The columns of this paper are always open for original productions of reasonable length, either in prose or verse. This will be the first published effort of the writer in this line of literature.
