of trouble in Portland, one criminal suit already and a civil suit is to follow. Besides the dog has been illustrated in the papers.

An Albany man is said to have traded a dog for some mining stock three or four years ago, and sold half of it for $600. That sounds good and the DEM-OCRAT hopes it is true.

The normal schools will all stay, not because of the popularity of education, which would be better off with one or two first class schools, but because of the popularity of graft in Oregon.

The lie passed between two men in the state capital yesterday and one was about to strike the other when Sonator Wright stopped proceedings. This reminds the Democrat of a game of base ball in Albany over twenty years ago between Albany and Salem, when Wright, one of the Salem players, and the Albany pitcher, were attempting to mix up when stopped by the players.
