Things That Move Things.

When Secretary Garfield was in Medford the people of that city made things hum by turning out with about fifty automobiles and giving the secretary a reception that was rather remarkable for a town of that size, a place which for several years was considered as sleepy as a woodchuck. Such things attract attention and advertise a city in a remarkable manner. Medford has almost gone automobile crazy. While its bank deposits are less than those of Albany it makes a bigger display in some things, and one thing is automobiles. It is said the place has very few industries and hardly a factory of any kind, and yet it has been going ahead a little faster than any of the southern Oregon towns. The DEMOCRAT will wager that Albany can make Medford take a retired seat when it comes to cement sidewalks. From a business standpoint the cement walk is a much better thing for the city than fifty automobiles, the money for which has nearly all been sent away, while the cement walks have created labor and added wonderfully to the appearance and stability of the city. Take your choice.

Extravagances of Life.

Some one has discovered that the present prosperity of the country is due simply to the extravagance of the people. This can be figured out. The enormous use of automobiles and many things merely for pleasure and beauty may be cited in corroboration of it, all these things creating an enormous business which puts the money in circulation. If everybody was miserly there wouldn't be much money spent. People with plenty of money do well to spend it liberally, not only for their own enjoyment but much better for the enjoyment of others. A good many factories would stop if people at once shut down on what are known as the extravagances of life.

Frenzied Thoughts.

An exchange announces: "Foraker in the Field". When we last heard from him, we supposed he had taken to the woods.

Jack London now runs the risk of being called a mollycoddle, in admitting that he does not know much about animals.

It will be observed that Carrie Nation waited until the President left Washington, before beginning her strenuous campaign.

A Lee for Governor of Virginia! He ought to win in a walk!

A pugilist known as the "Human Anvil" was arrested in N. Y., on the charge of theft, but was acquitted when it appeared that a number of people had their hammers out for him.

A RAILROAD

From Corvallis to the Alsea Country.

Times.—If all plans work out, Corvallis will soon have another railroad. The initial shipment of rails for the track is expected to arrive by tonight's freight. It consists of four cars, and it is to be followed by an additional six cars to be transferred in Portland today. Fifteen miles of rail are enroute. Surveyors are now at work locating the line. They have been in the field on preliminary surveys and otherwise for four weeks.

The road is to run from Corvallis along the foothills via Muddy and Bell-fountain and thence to the head waters of the Alsea river. It passes then to Blachly postoffice in the Lake Creek country on the head waters of the Siuslaw, and will be 38 miles in length. The promoters announce that work will begin as soon as the right of way is secured, and the line finally located. It is to be standard gauge, and the section to the head of the Alsea, which is expected to be completed and in operation this fall, is estimated to cost $225,000 or about $9,000 a mile.

The promoter of the road is Stephen Carver. He built the line from Ontario to Vale, in Eastern Oregon, 16 miles in length. He bought the Medford and Crater Lake road at the first sale, and bought rails, to complete that line.

Corvallis and its neighboring country have already raised $30,000, to be taken in stock. The phenomenal part of the incident is that all the work was done without the facts becoming public. The work was almost wholly in secret, except where publicity was obviously necessary. The matter was handled through the Commercial Club, with the following general committee, A. J. Johnson, Virgil E. Watters, Dr. Withycombe, J. R. Smith and W. D. DeVarney.

New Town of Hoover.

Postmaster R. N. Hoover, of the new town of Hoover, at the end of the C. & E., was in Albany with his commission in his pocket, having just received it from Washington. The Hoover saw mill has become the center of a settlement, there being about hundred people around it.

MISFITS.

A Mixture of Things and Thought

There is nothing like a straightforward square deal in any business.

Suppose the R. R. Com. were to order the depot moved would the S. P. heed the order.

The Portland newspaper men were equal to the occasion, and not one of them got frost-bitten.

Anything is a booster which helps the appearance of a city. Therefore the weeds should be kept down.

In Corvallis one tap of the fire bell is a call for the police, and by going to a telephone he can learn what is wanted. That's firing things along.

A Philippine Warrior.

Lieut. Floyd Williams, once a famous athlete of the O. A. C., who has been in the Philippines the past year or two, will return to Oregon next January, preparing to work on his father's farm. The Times tells of a picture of him received in Corvallis. He is mounted on a pony a little larger than a shetland. In his belt is a big revolver which gives to horse and rider a warlike appearance. He is clad in his khaki uniform, and is about starting for a neighboring town. Palms and other tropical shrubs and plants and a yard fence form the background of the picture add to its interest.

Died in Portland.

Silas A. Gentry, of Lebanon, died in a hospital in Portland yesterday, and the remains were taken through Albany for Lebanon for burial, where a funeral was held today under the auspices of the A. O. U. W., of which he was a member. He was an old and highly respected resident of Lebanon.

The Condenser Stock.

H. H. Olmstead went to Scio this morning with the stock book for subscriptions for the Linn Condensed Milk Company. $45,000 had been raised last night, and at least $65,000 will be secured before the adjourned meeting.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnetic tresses have become thin and faded. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced.
