M. E'S. WON

The second game of the Twilight League was played last night on the College grounds, between the Presbyterians and the Methodists, an interesting contest. The Presbyterians were weakened by the absence of a couple of their men, Berry being unable to play, and the Methodists put up a strong game, both Berry and Lyle Bigbee, who pitched, doing some effective work.
The line-ups were:
Methodists.—Yates c, Berry and Bigbee p, Wilbur, Marquam, and M. Bigbee basemen, Bigbee and Berry ss, Smith, Schumate and Cummins's fielders.
Presbyterians.—McLennan c, Flo p, Ralston, Birtchett and Towne basemen, Fortmiller ss, Fongle, Hodge and Martin fielders.
Nutting umpire, Patterson scorer.
The next game will be Friday evening between the Bankers and P. O.

White House Oxfords FOR MEN

THE character that is noticed in "White House" Shoes is born of the knowledge that people of the present day do not go into the first store they pass to simply "get" a pair of shoes—the word is "select." They now use discrimination, insisting on certain merits of certain shoes. The "White House" shoe is the evolution of this discrimination.

Shoes that fit without the hurt, the style you like, at very reasonable prices.

The Odd Fellows.

From the Journal: The three links with their mystic meaning have the freedom of the city at Albany today. It is the annual gathering of the Odd Fellows with the outpourings of good feelings always incident to the occasion. The assembling is in a city famed for its hospitality, and esteemed for its invariable rule of never doing things by halves.

For several days the affiliated organizations of the order will review the work of the year that is gone and plan for the years that are to come. Congresses and parliaments plan for the world's alleged welfare by spending millions in armaments. Their thesis is that the way to make men and nations is by preparing to maim, murder and slaughter them. The Odd Fellows teach none to arm or slay. They create the ties of peace and build for the universal brotherhood of man. Their influence is for humanity, Charity and protection and against the cruel strife that shakes and rends the world. They withdraw the mind from the strained and harsh lines of commercialism, and fix it for the moment on the nobler and gentler phases of existence.

Wouldn't Go to Jail

Down in California an expressman committed suicide rather than go to jail. That was a foolish thing to do. Nevertheless going to jail is a decidedly serious matter, and every young man does well to remember the fact before getting much of a start in life. He may well sit down and study the future before he settles upon a course in life which through any possibility may lead to any kind of a jail, big or little, for short or long term.

This is a fact, every man does well to live a clean life, honest and upright, keeping away from evil as a rule of his life, not simply because it might land him in jail, though that is to be considered, but because it is the right way to do.

This isn't sentiment. It is a fact.

They Come Back.

Few people ever go away from Albany who are not glad to get back. When they get a real contrast they find the balance overwhelmingly in favor of this city. It is one of the best places for a home anywhere, and that is the verdict of those who live here and go away to find a better place. There have been dozens of such experiences.

This is a fact whether from a climate standpoint or a business standpoint. There are big cities offering opportunities for great investment, but for steady, reliable business condition there are few better places, with a more reliable surrounding.

This is the result of experience, not booster sentiment.
