THIS MORNING

News from Albany's Six Early Trains.

A sloppy morning, but the depot was well filled.

Prof. J. B. Horner, after attending a meeting of the commandery, left for home. Prof. Horner is enthusiastic over the effort he is making to secure for Oregon a publishing house for Oregon productions, not dependent upon the East, a move in the right direction.

Prof. Kent and another O. A. C. man, left for Portland to attend the state dairy association's annual convention, which Albany might have had but objected to the big expense account attached to it.

Assessor Bruce McKnight went to Salem to attend a session of the state tax commission, before which all the assessors of the state have been cited to appear. No assessor in Oregon comes closer to doing his duty according to the laws of the state than Mr. McKnight.

Mrs. H. M. Palmer and Mrs. Junkin and daughter went to Portland, called there by the dangerous illness of Mrs. Small, a daughter of the former and sister of Mrs. Junkin. An operation was performed upon her Monday and her condition is reported critical.

Messrs. Scott and Freerksen came down to attend the monthly session of the Albany Creamery Association, one of the best in the valley.

Dr. J. C. Booth, of Lebanon left for Portland.

OBSERVED

By the Man About Town.

A bare spot on the pavement in front of Chas. Knecht's, reaching across the street, the only one along the boulevard.

22 hoboes coming out of the city jail at one time. Some one remarked that whenever a man has a roll of blankets it is a sign that he is a laboring man and will work. Three or four out of the twenty-two had blankets.

That the carpenters are taking a rest where the roofs are not on.

That Pendleton cast a smaller vote than Albany. Perhaps had worse weather.

That the Eugene papers have hardly mentioned the snow, evidently not considering it a booster for the valley, and perhaps out of sympathy for that girl in the glass of water. But those are things that have to take their own course. People who are not willing to stand a week or two of snow here in stead of months of it with blizzards thrown in, back east, for the general good weather, had better hunt the equator.

From New Zealand.

Wherahiko Rawei, Hine Tainoa, his wife, and Little Rae, who give an entertainment, "The New Zealanders in Song, Story and Picture," or "From Cannibalism to Culture," are native Maoris. Mr. Rawei was born in the wilds of northern New Zealand and lived for a time among the most savage cannibals.

The Weather.

It rained .40 inch in 24 hours, with enough warmth to make the snow gradually go, but there is some left yet.

The range of temperature was 42-32. The river has remained about stationary at 7 feet.

The barometer was down to 29.29, indicating a storm of some kind, it is to be hoped without snow.

The prediction: rain and warmer tonight and Thursday, high south-east winds along the coast.

Ten inches of snow make one of rain.

A Snow Woman.

A white woman, with a well chiseled face, black flashing eyes, and hair done up in the latest style, was seen in the yard of W. H. Rhoades yesterday. Mr. Rhoades was the sculptor, and this piece, the best snow subject the Democrat man has seen, shows Mr. Rhoades to be an artist of talent.

Olde Tyme Concerts.

An old time concert will be held at the Christian church next Monday night that will be worth attending. It will cost two shillings to get in if grown, a little more than a shilling if a child and a little less for some victuals, that is 25c and 15c to get in and 10 cents to eat.
