$3 FOR AN ALBANY APPLE

The Democrat recently mentioned the sale of three pecks of apples taken to Paris, Ill., by J. M. Hawkins of this city, for $51. Here is the interesting way a Paris paper tells about it:

The beautiful Oregon apples, which were on display several days ago at the Hodge hardware store have gone to help a worthy cause, a novel plan being adopted to make them yield the largest possible returns.

The fruit was taken to the Hawkins sale this week, where it was put up at auction, the money to be used for Christmas charity. There were fifteen apples and soon the good old farmers ran the price up to one dollar apiece. Each of them was knocked off at this price and then the purchasers handed them back to the auctioneer to be sold again. One farmer, whose heart is as large as a barrel, and who had already purchased one of the beauties, stated that he would outbid anyone present and paid $2 for the same apple which he had purchased before and returned. The other fourteen men were not to be outbid and they so repurchased the apples for $2. This made each apple bring $3 and together with several other apples sold, the total amount was $51, which will be used to purchase presents for poor children.

The ice was too thin or Helen too heavy, and it gave way, letting Helen clear to the bottom of the lake. At this place the water was at least a foot deep, perhaps a foot and a half. Her friends rushed to her aid and she was rescued and hurried home for a change of foot apparel.
