4 CARRIERS.

More Than the City to Be Covered.

A fourth carrier has been granted Albany, and David H. Patterson has been appointed, being first sub, to begin work on February 1st, an extension of service desired for some time. Under the new arrangement Irvin Cady will take in the western part of the city, including Wright's addition, Will Patterson, the middle section, east to Montgomery, Roland Hackleman to Main street, and Dave Patterson east into Bryant's addition into the proposed new city limits, both on the east and west.

A requirement will be the numbering of houses and the building of sidewalks. So get busy.

A NATIVE OF LINN

Invents a Flying Machine.

The Oregonian tells about the flying machine work of John C. Burkhart, a former Albany boy, born on the Burkhart farm near this city:

Two aeroplanes, one which has already flown, and another, which is expected to fly, will be exhibited at the Portland Automobile Show.

For three months, J. C. Burkhart, of this city, has been quietly at work in a building near the Armory constructing a biplane in accordance with his own ideas. The machine is now nearly completed, and on Sunday will be moved to the airship room in the Armory for exhibition beside the Curtis machine, just purchased by E. Henry Wemme.

The machine that Mr. Burkhart is constructing is of the biplane type, but differs materially from the Wright or Curtiss models. Like the Wright machine, it will start from skids and not from wheels, and the engine arrangement is something like that of the Curtiss models. It will be driven by a 40-horse power, eight-cylinder, air-cooled motor, designed for aeroplanes by Curtiss.

The two sets of wings have a spread of 34 feet, which is greater than that of the aeroplane purchased by Mr. Wemme. The engine is supported between the planes immediately back of the aviator's seat. The total weight will be about 450 pounds, of which 150 pounds is the engine.

Mr. Burkhart acknowledges that he has made other experiments with aeroplanes. He built one at Ithaca, N. Y., with which he made short flights, and has seen and made a study of all the successful models. No trial of his new aeroplane will be attempted until after the automobile show.

Shakespearean Recital.

On next Tuesday evening Frederick Warde, who has won the distinction of being one of the foremost Shakespearean students of the United States will appear at the United Presbyterian church in a lecture and recital of Shakespeare's plays. It is with a great deal of pleasure that the management announces Mr. Warde's appearance before an Albany audience for we are assured on every hand that he is an absolute master of his subject and presents it in a scholarly and delightful manner.

At the United Presbyterian church Jan. 25, at 8 p. m. Seats on sale Monday morning at Woodworth's Drug Store. Admission including reserved seat 75c. Season ticket holders may have seats reserved without extra charge.

Halley Seen.

J. C. Irvine, J. G. Crawford and others have at last sighted Halley. They had the right place all along, but Halley had not yet come close enough to be seen. He isn't much of a show yet, and when you have seen him you only see a little now, but he is coming right along at numerous miles a second and about the first of June may be seen by the naked eye.

Will Go to Europe.

Mr. Kola Neis went to Salem this morning, and on Wednesday will leave for Europe on a six month's trip, combining business with a trip to his father-in-law, most of the time being spent in Germany, where he was born.

The Weather.

Range of temperature 49-33.
The rain fall is .28 inch.
The river has been rising and is 58 feet.
The prediction: rain tonight and Saturday.

DOINGS OF THE WORLD.

Judge Bryson, of Eugene has raised the price of drunks to $20 straight.

Everybody takes all the Eugene papers, good ones, and then some more.

Eugene business men are paying $250 a month for special festoon street lighting.

Lebanon is having a big discussion over the site of the proposed new city hall.

That high school debate has been placed in the hands of the executive committee.

$1.85 has been bid for asphalt paving in Portland. That is more like it. Paving for residence sections should not be higher.

On January 25th, next Tuesday evening, at Eugene, Strangler Smith of Portland, and Jess Van Doozer, of this city, will have a wrestling match.

Ezra Meeker was in Los Angeles with his prairie schooner, with which he flew across the country. It has a speed of two or three miles an hour.

H. C. Mahon, of Eugene has been paid his judgment of $42,470 against M. B. Rankin, for a commission for the sale of timber land, making him a rich man.

Harrisburg Bulletin: Mrs. E. E. Upmeyer who went to the ranch near Harrisburg for a day or two returned to Eugene yesterday. Mr. Upmeyer is recovering from his operation at the hospital in fine shape.

Policeman Stahl, of Portland last night killed a fellow named Roney who was attempting to hold up a saloon. Stahl was in the saloon, where a Portland policeman can generally be found, when the desperado entered. Stahl shot behind the stove and did good work.

Jefferson Review: Quite a scare has developed in this vicinity on account of a few case of smallpox of a mild form, but as yet none has appeared in town. Many of our people were exposed to the disease, however, owing to a Linn county man being in several business houses after he had broken out with it, so every precaution should be taken.

The McKenzies.

This will be the last night of the McKenzie Merry Makers, who have been drawing packed houses during the week, a live body of comedians, doing good work.
