A LESSON FROM A READING.

The story of the Servant in the House, presented in a reading this week, is a somewhat hard one to understand completely. As we pass along there may be some things in it that deserve to be considered. In fact one matter is of intensely vital importance to the people of the world, particularly to Christian people, and that is the necessity of living the Christian life daily. A great many people nowadays are Christians one day in seven, and it is because of the laxity in Christian living that socialism is growing. More powerful than any sermon preached is the exemplary Christian life. In fact it is this life that is causing more conversions than sermons; but there are not enough of them. It is telling particularly along the lines of integrity in business and purity in the personal life.

And the ministry. Now the ambition is to shine in the pulpit, so that it may be said, "he preaches a splendid sermon," which is good, but it is not enough. The great need of the church is a thorough organization of working men and women who show their love for their fellow men in business, socially and in politics.

There is a looseness to-day, that is alarming, and the laity is not entirely to blame for it. It is not going to be remedied by lowering our heads and attempting to butt the train off the track, but it is going to take patience, tact and good judgment.

The need is for royal ministers, business and professional men, who, though possessing blue blood, are willing to serve faithfully, like the servant in the house in the story, so graphically portrayed, forgetting their personal ambitions in their love for their fellow man.

WON'T LIVE LONG ENOUGH.

All who anticipate the purchase of a fine new piano in the next two years should hustle to Eilers Piano House as soon as possible and select one of the remaining choice pianos, all of which must be disposed of at the earliest possible date. We are closing out our retail business and will confine ourselves to wholesaling in this vicinity hereafter. No one in this city will live long enough to ever again see a combination of circumstances which absolutely necessitates such merciless price cutting on high-grade instruments. If we get cost or near it out of our local stock, we'll be satisfied. If you want to benefit by this sale, come in at once—do not wait a moment longer—they're going fast now.

Don't let the question of terms defer your purchase, we'll accept any reasonable proposition as to terms—a little down and a little each month is all we ask. Eilers Piano House, Biggest, Busiest and Best. 333 West 1st St.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Bach, of Lebanon, went to Portland to take the Shasta Limited for a months stay in California.

V. W. Brown, of Great Falls, Mon. has been in the city. He is an elevator man and thinks some of coming down this way.

Mrs. Loveall, who has been with her mother Mrs. W. A. Cox, went to Lebanon this afternoon. She will return in a few days. Her mother is doing well.

W. F. Read, of Portland, formerly of this city, passed through the city to Portland, on his way home from Lebanon, where he had been called by the illness of his mother.

Mr. Bert Stevens, son of Mr. W. B. Stevens, and Miss Vera Woodworth, daughter of Mr. D. O. Woodworth, two of Albany's most prominent young people, will be married at 4 o'clock this evening, at the home of the bride's father, with a few relatives and intimate friends present.

The Rebekahs.
About thirty Rebekahs, some of Albany's best women, met yesterday afternoon with Mrs. E. M. Merrill, 639 W. 9th street, in a very enjoyable social session. The contest of the day was the guessing of advertisements in the magazines from the pictures. Mrs. Frank Powell had evidently been looking for bargains, for she hit twenty-one out of twenty-six, while Mrs. William Hand pays more attention to local news and the issues of the day and got only two receiving the booby prize.

FEB. 16. FORCED SALE.

In no other of his plays has Shakespeare introduced so much genuine fun as in "The Taming of the Shrew." The poet appears to have abandoned himself to a work of unrestrained hilarity, in recognition of the maxim, "A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men." "The Taming of the Shrew" has long been a favorite play with Charles B. Hanford whose eminence as a representative tragedian is so well established that he can descend to this unreservedly merry mood without loss of dignity. Hanford as Petruchio is one of the stalwart figures of the modern drama. The play is a classic of fun, and he has realized the principal character in a manner which preserves both its humor and its dramatic interest. The character of Katherine is one of the most dazzling of Shakespeare's feminine creations and in it Miss Marie Drofna has won a celebrity which makes her appearance in it an event of great theatrical interest.
