

SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

Another race riot back east. A negro snatched a woman's purse, was arrested and jailed, when a mob formed to lynch him. The officers very properly protected him, and a war followed, a number being killed. Law may be slow, it always has been as a rule, but that doesn't justify any one getting in such a hurry as to take life for a small offense, even a serious one.

A big strike of gold up in Idaho this week has been causing a stampede. Gold will do that quicker than anything. "These days people everywhere are running madly after the Almighty Dollar, as it runs about in different shapes, and often Character stands meekly by unnoticed by the mad, rushing mob."

The daily at Corvallis this week asked whether The Dalles with thirty saloons or Corvallis with none is the better place for a college with 1400 students. The answer is easier than sliding down hill, and everybody knows it. If a saloonless city is the best place for students it is for everybody else.

A whole week for the better education of the farmer has been the program at the O. A. C. this week, one deserving a note is this Saturday night. It has been one with good speakers and splendid thoughts. There has been a decided spirit of independence in the remarks made. One man, Walter Pierce, from La Grande, made this noticeable remark:

"One of the greatest dangers threatening the youth of our state comes from the state papers that urge adherence to party organization. I would rather vote for a great republican statesman like Lattalette, or a just and fearless democrat, like Judge Lindsley, than to be one of the puppets of party organization." There is a splendid thought in this to end the week with.

AGAINST THE ASSEMBLY.

Henry McGinn, of Portland, is decidedly against the assembly. He says:

"The only thing you can depend upon in this country is the judgment of the people after full discussion. I don't want to see the party in charge of self-appointed saviors."

The direct primary law came to us in Oregon as a result of the most corrupt politics any state had known in the union, bar none. If there ever was an honest election for United States senator, an uncontrolled convention, or decent politics of any kind under the old system, there would have been no direct primary law, no Statement No. 1 and no initiative and referendum. These things came to us as the protest of the people against the rottenness of the old plan, old politics and the old leaders of the state without regard to faction. When the pendulum swung from old conditions it went way over to new and clean ones. I know that, you all know it, because I was a part of it, he it said to my shame. As a young man I was trained in the school of this old corrupt system and I trust that no young man of the present day may ever have to go through the same experience that I went through before the passing of the regime and the coming of the new. For this reason, if for no other, I am against the assembly and all that it means.

ABOUT A LINCOLN STATEMENT.

A veteran of the civil war calls the attention of the Democrat to an article in the Oregonian in reference to a famous statement credited to Abraham Lincoln, in which it is claimed he said that "as a result of war corporations have been enthroned and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong the reign by working upon the prejudices of the people, until all wealth is aggregated in the hands of the few and the republic destroyed." It began with congratulations over the fact that the cruel war is nearing its close, which the Oregonian declares could not have been known at the time, a few months before it did close; but the old soldier says it was known for months before that the war was certain to close soon. It further says that people then were not talking about the enthronement of corporations and the money power; but the old soldier says they were talking about such things in a very emphatic manner, particularly the railroads, it being a time when work was in progress on the Union Pacific and there was a great deal of agitation over the railroads getting control of affairs. Whether the article was written by Lincoln or not is another question, but the veteran, an educated man, a college graduate, is confident the Oregonian is wrong on the points stated.

Flagged at Mrs Bowersox's.

The Leisure Hour Book Club yesterday afternoon held a delightful session at the home of Mrs. A. W. Bowersox in honor of George Washington. The decorations were in keeping with the birthday of the Father of his country, to occur on Tuesday, patriotic. An interesting contest was the putting together the parts of a flag. Mrs. L. L. Swan being the first to succeed, receiving a pretty cut glass dish, with Miss Evelyn Marshall a close second, her reward being the flag. The refreshments were fine, the feature being brick ice cream in the shape of a flag.

The Weather.

Range of temperature 35-34. How was that for evenness. Rainfall .44 inch. The river is rising and is 7.5 feet. Prediction: Rain and Snow flurries tonight and Sunday.

BRIGHT OREGONIANS.

At Salem Wednesday evening Prof. J. B. Horner, of the O. A. C., delivered his lecture on The Legends and Literature of Oregon, which the Statesman gives in full. It is a splendid tribute to Oregon's literature, and shows in a striking manner that this state has furnished some brains of a high order. Here are a few:

Sam L. Simpson, author of the Beautiful Willamette, penned at Albany, and mentioned beside the poems of Homer from Athens to Albany, says Mr. Horner.

Joaquin Miller, author of the Sierras, who receives more for his lines than Long fellow. One of Mr. Miller's early poems first appeared in the Democrat. Edwin Markham, a former Oregon City man, author of The Man with the Hoe.

Jan. G. Clark, once of Grants Pass, who wrote The Holy Cross. Col. E. D. Baker, who besides being an orator, wrote many fine things, a poet of merit.

Mrs. Higginson, of La Grande, afterwards of Oregon City, who wrote short stories, and many poems of much beauty, Sunrise on the Willamette, Four Leaf Clover, etc.

Frederic H. Blach, of Hood River, author of The Bridge of the Gods. Mrs. Dye, of Oregon City, The Conquest, of wide circulation.

Homer Davenport, America's greatest cartoonist, who has also written some bright things. Harvey Scott, author of the Oregonian editorials, which compare favorably with those of Dana. Abigail Scott Duniway, a writer for half a century.

OUR YELLS.

The yells of the Albany boosters are simply a part of their work. Albany is doing things in a decided manner these days, making an unexampled progress; but because once in awhile it talks a fair of its own the Scio News is looking for something as an excuse for a whack. Here is a sample:

Because the News criticized Albany business men for using school boy methods to create enthusiasm in the "Get acquainted" visits, Editor Nutting of the Democrat, thinks the moon may be disturbed somewhat and that Scio needed some of the "yell" spirit. No doubt, Brother Nutting, Scio does need to enthrone some more; but she believes in doing things instead of mere empty yells. Albany once had a county fair; but her business men allowed it to starve to death. Scio now has a flourishing county fair, which, barring the late purchase of the grounds, is out of debt. Albany talked milk condensery for two years and the "yell" was all it amounted to. Scio talked milk condensery for two weeks only, resulting in the building of a condensery and which is making the best condensed milk in the state. Scio owns and operates her own electric light and water system. Albany pays a private corporation for her light and water service. In fact, Albany has nothing in the way of a public utility which has been built by her citizens by volunteer contribution. You will have to "yell" some more Bro. Nutting.

Oakville.

Mr. Fred G. Smith and wife of Halsey were visiting Mrs. Smith's relatives here last week.

The snow storm was too much for our telephone lines last Monday morning and for twenty-four hours our phones had a much needed rest. We can do without meat, but "the telephone we cannot do without, trust or no trust."

Our mail carrier is always on deck. The bad roads don't stop him.

A new bridge at Corvallis is talked of and it is needed. The ferry boat is too small for the increased amount of travel and people have to wait on both sides of the river.

Mark Butler with his gasoline boat is towing large rafts of logs down the river from Peoria.

The steam dredger at Corvallis is doing a big business and many train loads of gravel got out every day. This deepens the channel and at present is the only chance to get gravel, as the engineers have forbid the taking of gravel from this side of the river.

LITTLE ROSE BUD.

SATURDAY.

THIS MORNING

News From Albany's Six Early Trains.

Editor T. L. Dugger came down from a trip to Lebanon, one of Linn county's loud towns, to another city of yells.

A Mrs. Hayes was brought down from Brownsville on a stretcher, ill with tuberculosis, and taken to the hospital at Salem.

W. E. Rodgers returned from Lebanon, where he had been to see his father, C. E. Rodgers, seriously ill, but somewhat better.

J. W. Swank arrived from Tallman. A. W. McGilvrey left on a Portland trip.

Prof. Franklin, of the college, left for Portland.

Father Lane went to Salem on a short trip.

A woman in a heavy fur coat arrived from Corvallis and took 16 north. Her husband also had a heavy fur coat in a package, and it wasn't very cold. Such apparel always excite alarm in a valley town.

AH SWILL FRIGHTENED.

There was some excitement last evening over the report that Louis, better known as Ah Swill, had been held up and shot and was in a serious condition. Sheriff Smith and Deputy Del Smith went down and made an investigation of the affair. Ah Swill was alive yet, but decidedly frightened. Some boys had been out around his place, and he frighten him fired their gun four or five times, and the dirty Celestial thought his time had come, and another hold-up was about to take place, and he rushed out screaming like a Comanche Indian or the Albany Booster Club on a visit to a neighboring town. Boys and others should leave Louis alone so long as he observes the law. Mr. Hornback, who lives near Ah Swill, thinks it was a genuine attempt to hold up the Celestial. He and another neighbor rushed out and saw a couple of persons disappearing in the dark, firing again a couple of times. Ah Swill claims they had masks on.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. W. W. Allingham returned this noon from a visit with her brothers in Salem.

Agent Montgomery and daughter returned last night from their Goldendale trip.

ALBANY'S LIBRARY.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Albany Library Association was held at the library last night.

The report of the treasurer showed no money on hand.

The old officers were reelected for the coming year, Judge H. H. Hewitt, president, Miss Lucy Gard treasurer and F. P. Nutting secretary.

The first Friday in each month at the library was set for regular meetings.

The matter of a regular monthly fund for library expenses, including a paid librarian, was discussed and Mrs. S. E. Young, Mrs. J. K. Weatherford and F. J. Miller were appointed a committee to secure the same, with authority to secure assistance.

A couple of rooms in the new city hall was considered a desirable thing, and Senator Miller, A. C. Schmitt and Mrs. J. K. Weatherford were appointed a committee to look after it. The city health officer was asked to report contagious diseases to the librarian.

The library has proven a popular institution, a need in the city, and it deserves the hearty support of the people of Albany. $500 worth of new books will be added during the year if possible.

ALBANY

MISFITS.

Albany people appreciate a high-class performance.

It seems natural to blame other people for everything.

Another blizzard back east; but that's one thing we never have.

It is a rare thing for a foreclosure suit to be begun these days.

Wonder if Candidate Sol Lindley will send all the editors the first strawberries.

Of course you are going to take advantage of that three per cent discount.

Some women who powder and use face dopes seem to be in the wholesale business.

People will have a long time to think about the candidate who jumps into the ring early.

The principal thing about Oregon weather this winter is that it has been worse elsewhere.

Booster Richardson down in Roseburg is making things jump. Likewise their pocketbooks.

It has been discovered that in Umatilla county school teachers are just as young as five years ago. Nothing like climate.

Col. John Martin, of Missouri claims to have invented the saying: "Show Me." Perhaps, but Show Smith started in Albany.

Mr. Taft is pictured saying to the Senate: "Now you make good." It is in order for the Senate to also say to Mr. Taft: "Now YOU make good."

Not a person in the county jail this year, nor a suit begun in the circuit court for 18 days, is the report sent out from Albany, but wait, our day may come.

A dog's license tag was found in some sausage in Los Angeles, and the dog having the number cannot be found. No wonder. Dog sausage is evidently no joke.

The Spruckles paid a New York lawyer who knew his business to draw up a will that would stick. It has been found full of defects. If they had hired a $5 lawyer they would have had a good job done.

The editor of the Corvallis Gazette-Times should go into partnership with Brother Dugger of the Scio News. The Taming of the shrew was a little too loud for him. Well, doesn't one have to be loud to tame a woman.

A Dayton merchant has received some notice by making a violin which really plays. That's nothing. Albany has three men who have made violins of splendid workmanship. H. S. Richards, Dr. George Collins and Bert Davis.

What's in a name. Mr. Hanford always has packed houses at Hanford, Calif., where besides he is very popular. At Corvallis one in his large audience was Dr. Hanford, who recognized in the Old Guard a striking resemblance to his aged father buck east.

A little colonist folder sent broadcast states that there are twenty-one railroad projects building in as many parts of Oregon. That Oregon is the goal of all the foremost R. R. construction enterprises of the United States. New sections are being reached, the great Deschutes valley, the Tillamook country, the Coos country and the Klamath country and lines are radiating out from the old sections. It looks good.

Some of these theatrical critics are great fellows, marvels in fact. Up in Butte they went for Warfield, perhaps the most popular actor on the American stage, certainly one of the most talented, so severely that Mr. Warfield was angered and refused to perform with any of the fellows in the theater. The average city theatrical writup is a very smart-aleck affair, a mere showing off, even though telling the truth.
