OSWALD WEST, THE MAN OF THE HOUR, AND WHY.

Portland Journal:—
Than Oswald West, no man ever offered for the governorship was more fit. He came from the lower levels. His early life was a struggle with poverty. He knows all about "the huts where poor men lie and the chores that poor men do."

He was a butcher's boy when other boys were at play. He was a banker's messenger when other lads were at school. He fought against adversity at the age when the average child is at his pastimes.

Wherever fate placed him, West the boy or West the man made good. From butcher's boy he went to school, and from school he became bank messenger. From messenger he rose swiftly from one position of trust to another. This life is survival of the fit, and he was fit.

From position to position in one bank, he passed to a higher place in another. Promotions awaited him at every turn, because in every place with which he was entrusted, he delivered the goods.

From bank official he became state land agent, and the first thing he did was to clean up the state land office. There has always been scandal before, but there has never been scandal in the office since he entered it. He did not go about his work with a brass band, but as a quiet man of action he drove out the graft and made system and sanity out of chaos. It was such a discharge of duty as men admire and as men are wont to reward.

Because he was splendid as state land agent, West was made railroad commissioner, and in four years the Oregon railroad commission has done more for the shippers and the public than was ever done by any railroad commission in any state in the same length of time.

It is a splendid record. West's is a career, private and public, that is a guaranty. It is a lifework about which there is no doubt, and of the meaning of which no man raises question.

As a man, the former butcher's boy has become skilled in the law, well rounded in education, polished in the manners of the world and a person of large affairs. Some time ago, he was admitted to the bar, and his first effort was a case conducted by the railroad commission against the Southern Pacific, in which the state won. He studied law and studied books of science and literature when other men slept. His growth in affairs is testimony of what the lad in the lower walks can do if he only has the vim, nerve and grit.

PERSONAL

Clyde Laughhead returned this noon from a commercial trip to the Bay. Father Datin and niece, Mrs. J. I. Springer arrived this noon from Brooks. Rev. Laurence arrived this noon from Portland, on a visit with his friend, Rev. Marsden.

Miss Bertha Beck left last night for a year and a half visit with relatives in Nebraska and Michigan.

W. S. Gregson, of San Francisco, is in the city for a few weeks, investigating conditions here.

Mrs. Elsie Brooks, of Portland, arrived this noon on a visit at the home of her father, W. W. Francis.

Rev. McLeod, of Mill city, returned last night from Pendleton. He says that omitted thrown by the liquor people will be an expensive thing for them in Oregon.

Ferry Palmer and wife and Victor Palmer have been up on a visit and hunt at the Palmer farm. They are both car men of Portland but formerly of this county.

Senator Ruth Spoke.

The band played and Senator Ruth, of Washington, spoke at the opera house last night, to a small audience, including a number of ministers and temperance people. It is said to have fallen decidedly flat, a poor showing even from the liquor side of the question. A man posing as the friend of temperance working in the interest of the saloon hasn't much influence with any one.

Senator Ruth scored the search and seizure act, No. 344 in a live manner; but the act is word for word the same as that now in the local option law, in which Ruth pretended to be in favor of, with the exception of a few words that are immaterial. A sample of the inconsistency of the liquor men.

So far the indications are that this campaign of the saloon, under the name of Home Rule, has done the saloon interests a good deal of harm. It has made solid the masses for the home and the boys and girls against the whole infamous business, and has caused an investigation that is decidedly against liquor interests.

A New Name.

A deed was filed today transferring all the property of the Tri State Railway and Power Co. to the Northern Idaho & Montana Power Co., in fifty nine counts. This includes the Albany Water and Electric light plants, including the canal and all rights of way and real estate, the Corvallis, Independence, Springfield and Eugene plants and power lines. This suggests the legal name under which M. Bylesby & Co., the new owners of the different plants, will do business, though it is probable that the Northwestern Corporation will be used in a business way.

Was there ever a woman that did not love fancy work? It may be that there are women who do not care to do the work, but we believe there are few but whom find a great deal of pleasure and delight in beautiful fancy work.

Then there are the embroidered pillow cases and linen guest towels in either of which you will find a large assortment. Of flosses, hoops, needles, stilletos and all accessories we show a large and complete line.

The showing of pillow tops and table runners is new and large and comprises the newest effects in embroidery stitches and designs.

May we aid you in thus beautifying your home?

GARMENT DISTINCTION.

It's the dressy styles and attractive materials, the careful selection of trimmings and buttons, the inside finishing and high class tailoring that give the suits and coats distinction.

ESKAY KID GLOVES

This famous and excellent line of high class and durable kid gloves is now shown in our glove department.

After much study and search of the markets we believe this to be the best kid glove value that we have found.

The firm, yet soft stock of which they are made—the careful workmanship and shaping and the beautiful color in which they come make them, we believe, superior in every way.

The price, though, is no higher than for inferior gloves. Give them a trial once and we believe you will always be a friend of the ESKAY GLOVE.

Per pair, $1.50.
