MISFITS.

Root would be a dangerous man in the supreme court.

The Oregonian's mud throwing is making votes for West.

The supreme court of the U. S. should not be filled with corporation lawyers.

A drawing card will be moving picture films of the championship baseball games.

The high school and Willamette academy were playing football this afternoon.

Portland's population is to be placed at 207,000 according to reports. That is going some.

Reelecting Sheriff Smith is just as much a business proposition as it is for a merchant to hire a clerk who understands his business and has business qualifications.

An Albany man says it is refreshing to get back in Albany with our clean appearance after being in dirty Portland. That beautifying committee should get to work on the streets.

Senator Chamberlain has never claimed to be non-partisan, regardless of the infidelity sheet down at Portland. These caricatures are the work of a diseased brain seeking to create prejudice.

Stayton Mail: In its feeble way The Mail has been trying to support the republican ticket. However, this paper does not endorse the dirty politics being played by some politicians and papers of the state, notably the Oregonian.

The Oregonian continues to bellow at these 32 measures to be voted on. It is a good thing for the people, an educator, and most of the people know what they are doing better than the average member of the legislature, and they are IT.

The editor of the Democrat appreciates a neat bouquet thrown by the editor of the Jefferson Review. We differ on the temperance question, but the friendship of thirty years has never wavered. The Democrat man began his newspaper career in Oregon with Tip Humphrey of the Review down at the corner of Second and Broad/bim streets, and the years have not shaken the ties of the 'stick' days.

Appears Barefooted.

In "The Woman He Married" Miss Harned will be seen as a barefoot model as in "Trilby" the role that she originated and in which she made her first great success. She plays a highly emotional character, an actress-artist-model-wife but there are many light scenes in which she shows new and unexpected developments of her art.

Death of Peter Cramer.

Died at his residence at Gates, Oregon, on October 25th, 1910, Peter Cramer, aged 64 years.

He was born in Sinico Co., Ohio, on March 7th, 1846, and moved in his early youth with his family to Marshall Co., Indiana. He was married to Alice A. Lear in 1871, and in 1890 moved with his family to Oregon, where he has since resided. Peter Cramer was an honest and noble citizen, an indulgent father, a good neighbor and was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew his many sterling qualifications.
