THE OHIO MIX-UP AND OTHER THINGS.

Told in a Delightful Manner by Rev. J. C. Elliott.

44 Chapman Ave., East Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 25.—Dear Daily Democrat: You will be interested in political mix-up in Ohio. I was here when Mark Hanna built his machine, the most complete and efficient political machine this country has ever known. It could grind out the results desired by the manipulator, no matter what the principles declared in the party platform or the qualifications of the candidates.

Senator Charles Dick, who had left his feed store to become county auditor in Summit county, became his secretary and my most active woman his assistant. This little woman was a power behind the throne, the tug that towed the hulk. When Hanna died Dick had his hand upon the lever and gripped Ohio by running himself, a little man, into a big man's place. He has the machine still in the U. S. senate. But the machine is now creaking terribly. In the convention the machine downed the progressive Jimmie Garfield and lauded Dick and then nominated Harding for governor at the command of the notorious boss Cox of Cincinnati. Then came confusion. The progressives took a hand and some of the candidates for the state assembly had to promise not to vote for Dick for senator to secure their nominations. Boss Cox had to be ignored for decency's sake. The report is started that Cox has sold his property worth five millions and is about to leave the state. The central committee called Garfield from Indiana to repeat his progressive speeches in Ohio. To balance matters they also made ex-Senator Foraker the sworn and bitterest enemy of Roosevelt to stump the state. They are both at it. The same day in separated parts of the state the directly opposed doctrines are all labeled Republican. The old machine is wobbling under this load but many think will carry Dick once more into the senate.

The Democrats also have their troubles. Gov. Harmon is not in harmony with many of Bryan's favorite stunts like the popular election of U. S. senator and the initiative and referendum. While Oregon may regard these as settled policies, there are many, even democrats, in the East who regard these as crude vagaries from the wild and woolly west and Harmon is one of them. For this reason he is not an ideal democratic candidate in Ohio and nearly an impossible candidate for president before the national convention. I may add that he is a mad man in character and in private life and so also is Senator Dick and his wife and children, who gave me such a hearty greeting the last time I saw them.

Talk about Portland and other coast cities growing, this Cleveland, Ohio, has grown like magic, is now the sixth largest in the U. S. Where I now write I knew as a country town called Collimer. It is now a residence section. I take a car and run seven miles into the heart of the city and then take an express elevator, am shot up ten stories to my son's office in a skyscraper. The Weddell house has disappeared. The dear old Weddell house, where I first registered as a married man, six hours after the ceremony, "J. C. Elliott, Nebraska City, and wife." I was not used to it yet it did not look right and after thinking it over I came back and scratched out "wife" and wrote it after my name so that it read all right, "J. C. Elliott and wife, Nebraska City," but the register was marred in the correction and I had a tingle of regret every time I have thought of it for the past forty years, but it is all gone now. The great John D. has torn it down and erected in its place a sixteen-story office building. Yes, and the old spot where I first heard D. S. Moody preach is now covered by a fourteen-story building of white marble. It was then a tabernacle very like that erected in Albany for similar purposes. While Cleveland has grown to such immense proportions, many think the era of development is just begun. There has been no frost here up to this date, and the haws are beautiful. In our travels this far I have only seen one woman wearing a really truly hobble skirt.

NOVEMBER SUGGESTIONS

Helps For the Woman That Does Her Own Sewing and a Timely Christmas Suggestion.

The Gift Problem.

Not too early to begin thinking of ways to solve this problem. It seems too that the longer we wait the harder it becomes.

But now while there is lots of time you can accomplish much.

In the whole range of Christmas remembrances nothing equals those gifts which are the work of loving hands. If you are puzzled now as to what token you will give to some friend just step into our needlework department and see what a host of suggestions present themselves.

We illustrate two beautiful designs found in

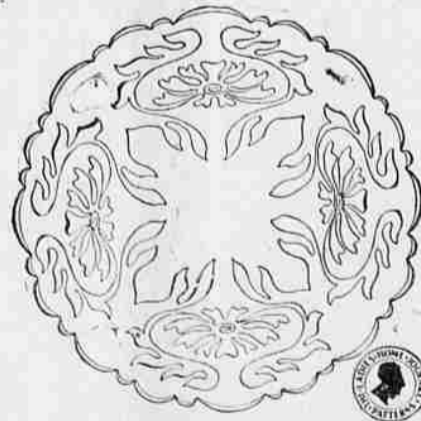

The Ladies' Home Journal Transfer Patterns.

No. 14229—design for a center-piece in braiding; size 22 inches in diameter. Design may be used for sofa pillow by eliminating the scalloped border. Developed in carnation, cord, soutache or round cord and French knots or long and short stitch may be combined with the braiding.

Price, 15c.

No. 14091—Design for Fowel-end. Trans for two towels in the pattern, each 24 inches long. A two-inch initial or monogram may be placed in the wreath. Also appropriate for embroidering pillow cases and bureau scarfs. Price, 10 cents.

The Ladies' Home Journal Transfer Patterns are not only the best on the market, but they are so easy to use and so sure of perfect results that a child can use them.
