PRESIDENT CROOKS IN NEW YORK.

My dear Editor: Perhaps you—a New Yorker—are interested in an hour and a half's spasm of politics I've just had in New York.

I have just heard the prominent American citizen the New York Sun calls the "Only Honest Man" (don't omit the capitals). He spoke just after his candidate for governor, Henry L. Stimson said to him that he covets the opportunity to "fight for good in the same impartial manner in which he fought against evil" when he prosecuted Morse and the Sugar Trust.

I chose to hear Teddy at Ninth and Second Avenue, the heart of "de East Side." He was immediately preceded by a very able negro who was introduced by a Hungarian. On the platform were about twenty-seven varieties of Americans and near-Americans whose immediate ancestors probably came over in the steerage. I arrived about thirty minutes ahead of Teddy and one of the cordon of police told me the hall was "fill up," whereupon I proceeded to try a second officer who looked at me with doubt as he queried, "You're not a member of the club, are you. There's no way in." "A member," I responded, "I'm from the Pacific Coast," which magic utterance caused him to ejaculate, "For the Lord's sake, go in," and he pushed me in, though I wasn't sure my motive was so pious.

Part of us were standing up and most of us rose when the crowd at the door began to get nervous, and when the band began some sort of a tumult we all arose and began to ejaculate. Following soon after a crowd of newspaper men and a group of escorts and guards, the Colonel came. I neglected an opportunity, seized by a score, to slap him on the sturdy back as he brushed up my choice place in the middle aisle among my hosts the Huns and Hebrews and to cry "You're all right, Teddy," "give it to 'em, old boy," "we're with you," etc. He looked a little fierce anyhow and I didn't know that such coaching was expected or customary.

I should like to describe him but columns have been written about his teeth (which seem very real), and his bull neck (which is strong as a neck need be), and his muscular strength (which is most apparent), and his eyeglasses (which he wears). He looked brown and, I thought, worn. Perhaps he was worried. Indeed, I thought him lacking the exuberance I had expected. I've been reading a good many New York papers, most of which are against him and are full of dire prophecy for him and his friends, and I confess I expected him to be in a bad humor—perhaps he never is more exuberant. His talk was all for "square deal" and honesty. It was significant that in this Tammany district he talked about a non-partisan campaign.

By the way, the impression that I gained in Ohio was similar. There my friends in rockribbed Republican districts are voting for Harmon, the Democratic nominee. In Iowa men are insurgents first and Republicans afterward. In Indiana the Beveridge appeal is shaded with non-partisanship. In New York the interests are for Dix and Tammany is said to have not only the sinews of war but the fat of many large corporations' contributions to cheer the heifers. In Pennsylvania the Republican candidate, Tener, seems booked for slaughter at the polls because of a revolt of his own party men. (He is said to have lent his name, you have observed, to an alleged wild-cat railroad in Oregon from Astoria to Seaside and south.) The parties are broken up this year. Perhaps they are breaking more than we realize.

I followed Teddy out. His automobile took him to another of the nine meetings he addresses tonight before he goes West. My machine wasn't on the street so I walked up Third avenue. A socialist drew me as one of his fifty street corner hearers. From him I learned that it costs to live. He and I differ because I think that to live is worth all it costs. He talked for Charles Edward Russell, whose articles we have all read, socialistic candidate for governor. The high cost of living seemed to be his chief mental sorrow. I confess that twenty-cent beefsteak, nine-cent pork and forty-cent pickled eggs in New York would make a socialist out of me sooner than Oregon prices.

Turning west on Fourteenth street I successfully resisted alluring ten-cent shows, penny arcades and five-cent picture epigrams until I arrived at University place, a few blocks from the rooms where I am quartered on West Eleventh street. Here I was halted by a psychological recitation—that is, Prof. James would say I stopped and then was curious. Or perhaps I was curious and then stopped to see why the people on the other side of the street were so concerned with a smiling young woman near a fire plug. She was good to look at but I hesitated to manifest too lively an interest. Then I became aware that a solitary woman making her way to the opposite corner on Tenth street was a part of the occurrence, whatever it was. When I saw lady number two coming with a stone box something in the determination with which she came approached told me that I was about to be included in a "Votes-for-Women" campaign and I felt safe in approaching the attractive young woman holding down the fire plug. Indeed, I went quite close. A policeman spoke the first word, a firm recommendation that the lady be not distributed in violation of the city ordinance. The lady took the stone box and the policeman spoke the second word and I was arrested.

us off the more merrily.

The speaker—shall I describe her?—was a woman of well past thirty years, whose oratorical practice had doubtless increased the prominence of her mouth. I think she had other features but somehow the face of the younger woman near me leaning on the friendly fire plug was pleasanter to watch as I gave my ears to the lady on the box and my eyes to the lady on the fire plug, who showed friendliness by slipping me a circular telling me the multitudinous reasons why I ought to vote against Artemus Ward Jr., who keeps their pet bill smothered in committee at Albany. Artemus isn't at all a good man, I am sure. Indeed, as I learned from a third lady with a Votes-for-Women decoration, who passed circulars on the fringe of the crowd, but wasn't so good looking as the girl on the fire plug, he isn't good to men either. I didn't stay it out. I'm sure Artemus (spell it with an A, please—he isn't related to the literary chap who used "Artemus" as a pseudonym, although I've a notion that he too is a humorist) will be defeated.

There—all that in an hour and a half. Please don't imagine that Oregon has all the politics. There are scores of meetings every night and the monster Votes-for-Women rally on Thursday night will be worth while—it will probably fill up quite a portion of Union Square. Unfortunately I can't be on hand to vote for Prohibition in Oregon or against Artemus Ward in New York.

Yours very truly,
H. M. CROOKS.

WEDNESDAY.

DOINGS OF THE WORLD.

Chas. Miller, injured in an accident on the new road leading from Lebanon to Crabtree, has sued the S. P. for $50,000 damages. A timber fell upon him at the bridge and he lost one eye as a result.

R. E. Wills, a former Lebanon young man, with S. M. Garland for counsel, died at LaGrande. He resided in Roseburg for awhile, recently going to LaGrande. He was a resident of Corvallis for a number of years, a young man of splendid character.

Prohibition has probably been defeated in the state, and a report from Portland is that home rule has carried, though this is not certain. If so the law does not go into effect until there is a proclamation by the governor, after the official vote has been counted by the governor and secretary of state, too late for any votes this year, only applying to cities and towns, not precincts. It is said a petition is already out for an east end precinct going wet.

PERSONAL.

Miss Nellie Hart has returned from Portland, where she attended a musical given by Mrs. Alice B. Marshall, filling a number on the program.

Mr. John Jones, former nightwatch of Albany for seventeen years, is in the city for the first time in six or seven years. His non-Clem is now working for the Grand Central Tea Store, and he has three boys. Mr. Jones sees a great improvement here.

Shedds.

Farmers are through farming, so let it rain.

The Shedds band will give a concert in the W. O. W. hall Tuesday night.

Shedds has been working hard for the last six or eight days on a voting contest for the most popular young lady.

Mary Duncan and Zella Davis have the most votes. The proceeds are to go to the band boys.

Mr. Wilkerson and family have left again for Kansas, where they expect to make their future home.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan Oct. 21, a girl.

Ikia Johnson is back with the Shedds band, beating the drum.

Rena, at the home of H. J. Farwell, on Oct. 30, to Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Pugh, of Centralia, a girl.

Janet Arnold, daughter of Charles Arnold, got her hand caught in a cider mill and had one of her fingers badly cut.

Mrs. Lulu Large was returning to her home last Thursday from Shedds when her pony got frightened and upset the buggy throwing Mrs. Large and her three little ones out. Mrs. Large got off with a few scratches, and the children were just scared.

Rosa Connor has been quite sick but is better now.

Shedds school is doing fine. It needs another teacher. Shedds has enough for three teachers.

Harris Thompson of Albany made a visit to Shedds this week.

JUDAH'S SISTER.

It Went West.

Kingston must have heard the advice of Horace Greeley, who said "Young man, go West," judging from the vote there, which was 38 for West, 1 for Bowerman. That Bowerman fellow must be decidedly lonesome. Some one suggested that it was probably the republican committee man, but upon investigation it was learned that he is a democrat.

Social science had either 132 to 45, Science 63 to 21, South side 76 to 92, Fox Valley 44 to 18. In fact it is said since 1878 a Bowerman precinct in the county.

See you 'd not white Australian china. The Variety Store, 313 W. 1st street.

DEMOCRATIC LAND SLIDE.

The election in the east resulted in a great democratic landslide, a revulsion against the trust rule of the past years, an immense vote for progressiveness, in New York State John A. Dix, democrat, is elected by over 55,000.

In New Jersey, Woodrow Wilson, democrat, the able president of Princeton University is elected by 15,000 majority.

In Massachusetts Eugene N. Foss, democrat, is elected governor by over 30,000.

In Connecticut another democratic governor is selected, Judge Baldwin, by over 15,000.

Judson Harmon, democrat, has been re-elected in Ohio by 15,000 or more.

In Tennessee the fusion candidate, Ben W. Hooper, is elected.

Down in California Johnson, insurgent, is undoubtedly elected, by a good majority.

Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Michigan have elected republican governors. Alabama and South Carolina have elected democratic governors.

The next congress will be democratic, but the senate will be republican.

As was expected Joe Cannon was re-elected, but he will no longer dominate the house. A democrat will be speaker and his rule will stop.

Governor Stubbs has been reelected in Kansas, a splendid official.

Oklahoma has gone democratic, with Cruce for governor.

Of course Texas got there. It will be Governor Colquhoun by over 100,000.

Indiana is democratic with probably a democratic legislature.

West's majority is reported at 3,500, but it promises to be much more than that. Hawley is elected to congress, and all the republican supreme judges and other state officers.

Judge Galloway is reelected, and the contest for the other judges is between Kelley of this city, ahead here, and Van Winkle, considerably ahead in Marion county, with Folk, Yamhill and Tillamook to hear from.

MISFITS.

Linn county will remain dry.

Right will prevail in the end.

It is fun to vote a big ballot.

The majority rules, that's all.

How's your conscience anyway.

Of course Portland is whiskey ruled.

After all the people had no trouble voting.

Some more added to Linn county's dryness.

Governor West sounds very well, thank you.

The Oregonian's infamous mud-slinging helped West.

The election of West is a great victory for the people.

If you wish to be elected have the Oregonian fight you.

Teddy Roosevelt will now take a rest. He should have done so before the New York campaign.

Assemblyman received a terrific blow in the defeat of Bowerman, the head of the move away from the people.

A Little Girls Party.

Clarissy Hand was permitted to entertain a few of her little girl friends, and their dolls, in an enjoyable affair Monday afternoon, at her home on E. Seventh Street.

Little Americi Thompson assisted the hostess in serving refreshments consisting of milk and crackers, bread and jelly, red stick candy, animal cookies and apples. Each child was given a dish dolly to take home with her.

Those present were: Gracie Watson, Lullily Junkin, Dolly Missall, Hesteretty Austin, Minny Carter, Purly Mame Werrill, Lucy King, Silvy Green, Mandy Fromam, Mamie Dumond, Americi Thompson, Annie Powell, Dodo Powell, Eloy Hand, Clarissy Hand, and poor little Flossy Bruce. M. MAXWELL, Administrator.

MISFITS.

Vote yes or no on every amendment.

If it is in the Oregonian guess something else.

Annianias can now come forth. The campaign liar has retired.

A little rain should make no difference to the man putting character into his vote.

For political rot the campaign of the Oregonian has been the worst in the history of Oregon.

The Oregonian claims Bowerman's election by only 7,000. That means at least 7,000 for West.

A man runs his own machine when he gets into the booth, free from the wire pulling of the world.

On election day no one can be solicited to vote for any one or for any measure. That's the law.

Some men who are too smart to be worked and too shrewd to labor go into politics for the sake of good government.

The principal capital of the Home Rule Association and its speakers has been falsehood. The saloon has nothing to stand on anyway.

At just 9:13 today the sun shone out gloriously, beating its way through the clouds. Signs indicate nothing, but there is a dry look to things in Oregon.

Some men are so afraid of some one knowing how they stand on the question of prohibition they don't dare look in a glass when they are thinking on the subject.

Reading people have to have the Oregonian because its news service is one of the best anywhere, in its completeness, but on moral questions it is a leper.

This excellent advice was found on the Democrat's table today: "North Dakota is dry. It is generally considered the best state financially in the U. S. Why not make Oregon the second best." More, it would then be the best.

About the smallest, dirtiest politics ever perpetrated in Oregon was that slung at Oa. West by the Oregonian and Telegram, in reference to convicts mailing campaign literature. His royal master in Hades wouldn't stoop to that kind of slush.

Down in Montavilla, Portland, Bowerman spoke to a small crowd of fifteen men. After he had gone they took a straw vote and 14 were for West, one for Bowerman, a sample of the manner in which Bowerman is sweeping the state, as reported by the Oregonian.

After all liberty is simply prohibition. The ten commandments are mostly prohibition, most law is prohibition, homes are run on the prohibition plan, everything is prohibition, and that is where we get our liberty, prohibiting wrong, commanding what is right.

Mrs. S. H. Strahan, in Washington now for a while, a resident of Atlanta, Ga., for a good many years, formerly of this city, in writing, after expressing her appreciation of the vigorous fight the Democrat has made against the liquor traffic, states that she has ruled in both wet and dry cities and the advantages are far in favor of the dry city.
