"The Volunteer Organist."

"The Volunteer Organist", which comes to Albany Monday night was written for the express purpose of exposing hypocrisy especially in its dealings with the liquor question. William B. Gray surely must have had Uriah Heap in mind when he drew the picture of "Hubbard Griffin" in "The Volunteer Organist". The American public, quite rightly, has always held in detestation hypocrites, liars and drunkards. There may be some sympathy for one addicted to strong drink with the hope that he will reform, but a better man but with a hypocrite, we lose all patience and feel that to regenerate him it will be necessary like Nicodemus that he be born again.

Everett and Bellingham, Wash., have gone dry.

L. M. Curl is in the east on a business trip.

Dr. Mary C. Rowland has opened an office in Lebanon.

J. A. Drexel, an amateur, saw 9970 feet high, a new record.

Al Saylor and family returned this noon from a Wren visit.

F. M. French ate turkey at the home of his daughter in Portland.

Miss Gene Waddle, of Dayton, arrived this noon on a visit at R. Schultz.

William Ritchie was called to North Yakima by the death of a brother.

Dr. Ed. Stewart came up from Portland for the annual family dinner.

Ralph Stewart and Earl Fortmiller, U. O. students spent Thanksgiving at home.

Ida Maxwell Cummings, of Halsey and Helen Crawford, of Lebanon, were here last night to attend the old maids' convention.

Mrs. George Washburn came up this noon for a visit at her her's H. L. Lasselle, George will be up also for some turkey.

Campaign expenses: F. J. Miller $227, I. H. Van Winkle $248.35, democratic central committee $4081.10, anti-saloon league $10,058.

Martin Miller, of Eugene, was in the city yesterday on a visit with his three sons, and helping Louis to get started in his new shoe repairing factory.

Jos. Webber Jr., insurance man, has been in the city today. Mrs. Webber and daughter Margaret are visiting in Oakland.

T. H. C. Brasfield and wife, of Shedd, arrived here last night from an eastern trip, going as far as Washington, being mostly in Missouri and Ohio.

Mrs. G. W. Hollister, of Alameda, Calif., after a visit with Mrs. R. Veal and family left today for Centralia, Wash., for a visit before returning home.

Miss Dunkel went to Corvallis this afternoon to put the Old Maids' Convention and Tom Thumb Wedding on there, which will mean fun galore for Corvallis.

Judge and Mrs. Palmer returned this noon from Salem, where they spent Thanksgiving with Judge Palmer's brother, of that city, and Mr. and Mrs. Bevan of Woodburn.

The Thanksgiving services at the Christian church yesterday were enjoyed by a good many, the real thing being thanksgiving. Rev. Geil preached a thoughtful sermon, appropriate and inspiring. $18.92 was raised in a collection for the aid of the poor of the city.

Yesterday was the fourth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Lucas, in honor of the happy event Mr. and Mrs. Lucas entertained in a Thanksgiving dinner, with the following present: Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Richards, Mrs. Wilkerson, Miss Edith Smith, Miss Carroll Richards and Frank Smith.

AMATEURS Made a Hit in the Old Maids' Convention and Tom Thumb Wedding.

The entertainment at the opera house last night for the benefit of the new Presbyterian church fund was a decided success. The opera house was packed. Under the able direction of Miss A. L. Dunker the Old Maids' Convention and Tom Thumb Wedding were presented in a manner to cause immense amusement, and as well bring out some excellent talent.

Tom Thumb's Wedding was first presented, a pretty and very amusing affair. Hubert Fortmiller was master of ceremonies, doing his part well, as did all of the youngsters following. Ross Fletcher and Mary Davis were the bride and groom, Glen Jackson and Salome Casick parents of the groom, Cornell Bradley father of the bride, Edith Duncan flower girl, Olga Jackson the maid of honor, little Johnnie Pollak a great cupid, Melba Newey, Jean Welch, Barbara Proctor and Leona Will bride's maids, George Geselbracht, Baxter Fish, Laurence Schmitt and Lynch Palmer ushers, Horace Ritchie and Wilma Junkin President and Mrs. Taft, Marcel Austin and Violet Nutting aunts from Mexico, Neis Wheeler best man, Kentner Tracey and Ianthe Smith Mayor and Mrs. Wallace, Aileen Stevens the German governess, Henrietta Davis the baby sister, Mary Warner and Muriel Stover twin sisters of the groom, Alden Thompson, Esther Lough and Chas Anderson the newly weds and Shookums, Margaret Catherly the aunt from N. Y., Spencer Saunders and Louise Mason Aunt Amanda and Uncle Reube of Maine, Leila Watson the French maid, Beulah Stover and Redfield Payne the bride's grandparents, and Donald Warner the chauffeur. The ceremony was a complete one.

Between acts some fine tableaux were presented, the rivals, cupid and dollars, looking backward, the sacrifice, home sweet home, love's dream, and sleep waiting of flowers.

The costumes in the Old Maids' convention were startling and elaborate. Oley Woodworth as Josephine Jane Green presided, a good one. A. C. Schmitt was the secretary and F. H. Pfeiffer treasurer, under appropriate names. G. E. Sanders made a hit as the giggler, Prof. Hans Flo was the suffragette in new apparel, Clem Irvine was the star of the occasion as Frances Lucretia Loshope, H. N. Bouley had a stunning costume, Chas. H. Stewart's make-up as Gloriana Gadabout was captivating. Joe Berry was there as Faithful Blossom, Mrs. E. P. Bradley shone as the old maid with a trumpet, and the parts of the foreign delegates were splendidly carried out by Mrs. P. A. Young, from London, heard in a well rendered solo, Mrs. Elmer Dannels of Paris, Mrs. A. C. Schmitt a good one from Cork, Mrs. Geselbracht with the original brogue from Berlin, Mrs. G. E. Sanders from Japan, and Mrs. H. B. Casick an Indian girl.

The things of the convention were laughable in the extreme. Then came Prof. Makeover with his machine transforming people according to their wish, introducing Mrs. Russell Wallace as a bride, Miss Adna Smith in a popular solo, Miss Louise Blackwell as a reader, Miss Evah French with a darkey face in a solo, Mrs. Judgo Kelley in a well rendered solo, and Prof. Hans Flo as a real man, whom they all grabbed for, and he rushed from the stage followed by the man hunters, and the curtain closed on one of the most entertaining amateur performances given here.

Miss Dunkel made good as a director, and whoever gets these entertainments will secure a housefuler.

News from Albany's Six Early Trains.

A. C. Schmitt and Henry Fish, left for Hillsboro to attend the annual convention of boys' clubs of Oregon. Last year it was held in Albany.

Mr. Will Lindau, a former Albany boy, now with the North Bank at Portland, left for home after a visit with his mother Mrs. Fred Grimm. His wife and sister, Mrs. Hornscha remained for a longer visit.

Rev. Jamison and family, of Brownsville returned from a Stayton trip.

Bert Stevens went to Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner, of Portland, returned home after a Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mrs. Turner's mother, Mrs. Chris Howland.

R. S. Shaw returned to Mill City.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. H. Rudd and Mrs. J. K. Haight and daughter returned from Lebanon.

Mrs. Neale went to Salem.

A. L. Ryder and family went to Jefferson for a visit at Mrs. Ryder's sister.

Hugh Cummings of Halsey, went to Scio after stock.

The Corvallis foot ball team returned home after a Lebanon trip.

Caused a Laugh.

While a milk man was delivering milk this morning Connie Sullivan stepped in to the wagon and took possession. The horse started off on a five kite. Connie yelled lustily, but the horse kept on. A young man on a bicycle sprinted and stopped the horse. The milk man helped Connie out amicably, and the last seen he was running like a candidate after the rig, while those who saw the incident were laughing as loud as the audience at the Old Maids' show.

Superintendents Organize.

The superintendents and principals of the Linn county schools have organized a Principals Club, with Supt. Briggs as president, and Prof. Marquam secretary. A committee on constitution was appointed, consisting of W. L. Jackson, chairman, Prof. Stottler of Lebanon, and Prof. Bolin and Smith of Brownsville, to report at a meeting in Albany Saturday, Dec. 3.

BIG MEN At the Development League Convention.

The coming session of the Oregon Development League at Seaside, Nov. 23-24 promises to be a hummer. The program will be an elaborate one. Led by the faculty of the best men who will speak in the convention.

C. C. Christian, secretary of the league, publicly elected and manager of the Portland Commercial Club.

Howard Elliot, president of the North Pacific B. R.

The Volunteer Organist Monday night at the opera house.

Foot Ball.

Multnomah defeated U. O. yesterday afternoon 5 to 0 in a sensational game. A fumble forward pass by U. O. did the work. At Salem Willamette defeated Forest Grove 12 to 0. At Seaside the O. A. C. was defeated by Washington 22 to 0.

The game between the Albany high and Chemawa was a disastrous one. In the third quarter Chemawa made a touchdown. Albany claimed the referee had not done the right thing and downs and left the field, with the score at 1 to 0 as a forfeited game. Anyway there was nothing to gain in the game one way or the other.

Vancouver high defeated Eugene 5 to 0, and Corvallis high Lebanon high 22 to 0.

The above was the distorted version of the Oregonian. The true facts were that Albany was 11 to 0. Multnomah was snugging and the referee gave four downs for Chemawa, when Albany left the field and Chemawa made a touchdown after part of the game was off and on. No more Chemawa for Albany.

Will Sing Sunday Evening.

Master Wills Golden and Willard Harris, who are with the Volunteer Organist at opera house Monday, Nov. 29th, can be heard singing at the Christian church Sunday evening, Thanksgiving eve. Come and hear them.

Married.

Samuel W. Hartcock, a popular Corvallis druggist, formerly of this city, and Miss Gertrude Leedy, of Canyon City, were married at the home of the bride yesterday and will be in Corvallis tomorrow. They will have the best wishes of the many warm friends of the groom in Albany.

Bowling at the Alco Club.

Bowling has become a popular amusement at the Alco Club and other games are enjoyed with a large attendance. During the past month there was a contest in twenty games, with two turkeys up, ending Wednesday night. Roy W. Nutting won the turkey in the first class and Olin Douglas in the second. A. Flood was considerably the highest bowler, but a handicap prevented his getting the gobble.

The management of the Club has ordered a new set of balls, and as a good many wish to bowl evenings from 4 to 6, hereafter pinsetters will be on duty then as well as at 7 o'clock.

The Alco Club is a clean place for sport and there promises to be some thing doing this winter. Indoor base ball, hand ball and basket ball are being started.

THIS MORNING News From Albany's Six Early Trains.

Thirteen prominent Brownsville men returned home after spending the night in Albany. They brought down four candidates for the Royal Arch degree in masonry and the Albany lodge put on the work well equipped for the interesting performance. Here is the crew: Geo. Finley, N. P. Crume, J. E. Coppock, C. E. and Wayne Stannard, J. P. Cooley, Richard and Robert Thurston, R. W. Tripp, W. B. Blanchard, E. A. Evans, Clark Spencer, and R. F. Richardson.

The Armstrong Company arrived from Corvallis and left for Aberdeen, Wash., after doing the valley. One of the Company is Marjorie Mahr, the pretty Portland actress who lost her legs in an accident on a trestle at Portland, a very sweet girl.

Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Bridgford, of Olympia, Wash., left for home after a visit at the home of Dr. Bridgford's folks. Dr. Bridgford, a former Albany young man, has built up a fine practice at Olympia, where Dr. and Mrs. Bridgford stand high in social circles.
