THIS MORNING

News From Albany's Six Early Trains.

Mark Hulbert of the state fair board, went to Salem to attend the annual meeting, when the election of officers will occur. The present board has been a very harmonious one, doing splendid work, and there will probably be no changes, certainly should not be.

J. B. Gentry, who was up to attend the Masonic banquet, returned to Salem, where he has been at work several weeks, negotiating a large class of about forty in the A.O.U.W., which continues to grow notwithstanding the fact that it is the oldest of all of them. It is getting its second breath.

D. N. Williamson, the teacher, and daughter, went to Portland, where the latter is receiving special treatment for her eyes. He will take in the Selwood settlement of former Linn county people.

Hon. and Mrs. J. K. Weatherford went to Portland.
Lawyer C. E. Sox went to Salem, also Commissioner Miller and Judge Kelley.

Harry Schlosser went to Salem.
W. E. Parker went out to the farm to kill hogs.

W. H. Goltra left on a trip to his Goltra farm.

Dr. Leweaux went to Corvallis on her regular every other day trip.

Mrs. Lillian Crawford Rader, of Portland, and Mrs. Harry Crawford went to Lebanon for a visit at Donny Brook.

Ed. Barrett went to Portland.
Henry Ohling left on a Portland trip.

Col. J. B. Eddy returned to Portland after a visit to his Lebanon farm.

Mrs. Kate Vaughn, of Lebanon, left on a Portland visit.

Harry Hawkins went out to Linnhaven.

A Live Bunch.

The glee club of Willamette University is the liveliest organization in the institution and competition for places on it is keen. To secure places, the voices must be good, and Dean Mendenhall of the college of music, has picked out the best in the University.

A SWELL BANQUET.

St. Johns Lodge A. F. & A. M. last night held its annual banquet, enjoyed by the members and their families nearly three hundred in all. It was served in three sections, each guest being presented with a carnation upon entering the banquet hall, a neat favor and saving confusion. The decorations were very pretty and the spread was one of the finest ever presented in Albany. Mr. and Mrs. H. Pfeiffer, the caterers, received many compliments for the splendid menu, and as well the neat manner in which the service was conducted. Here is the menu:
Lobster salad mayonnaise, Long Branch crackers.
Olympia oyster soup
Oregon celery sweet pickles
Roast turkey, 32 of them
Eastern oyster dressing
Cranberry sauce
Asparagus French peas mashed potatoes
Current jelly
Butter Swiss cheese
Coffee
Ice cream with cake
Mint wafers Salted almonds
Fruits and cracked nuts
During the evening there was a continuous social session, the whole proving an enjoyable reunion of the Masons and their families.

A Family Reunion.

A happy holiday reunion of the Shaw family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Shaw in Mill City. The home was nicely decorated and there was an old fashioned Xmas tree, with a turkey dinner following, which was fully appreciated.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John A. Shaw of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Angus A. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. J. Royal Shaw, and Cyril and Laurence Shaw of Mill City, and last but not least—Mrs. Watts of Lafayette, grandmother of Mrs. Robert Shaw, this being her 62nd wedding anniversary and at 84 years of age enjoyed the Yuletide as much as the younger members of the family.

oiding Up the Interurban

Lebanon people are preparing to hold up the Albany Interurban, and the probability is that it will skip that city. This road will undoubtedly be built in time and it will mean a good deal for Linn county, a proposition deserving the support of the people of the county generally.

Business Change.

George Neeley and George Thompson, of this city, have leased the lower part of the Royal Restaurant property, which they will run as a first-class chop house. Harry Turner has rented the rooming apartments above.
