RESTORING POWER TO THE PEOPLE.

Editorial in the Examiner:
The people of Arizona have adopted a constitution which is designed to restore to the people the power seized or absorbed by the special interests. It includes the initiative and the referendum, an amendment to the constitution by a majority vote of the people upon the initiative of 15 per cent of the voters; the recall of all elective officers; direct primaries; a direct advisory primary for United States Senators; an anti-lobbying clause; non-partisan election of the judiciary; a juvenile court, with the age of criminal responsibility fixed at eighteen; a rigid corporation regulation, with a provision designed to abolish "wildcatting;" the physical valuation of railroads as a basis for rate regulation; a corporation commission, with wide powers; an employers' liability provision abrogating the fellow servant doctrine, and the elimination of probate courts.

This constitution is as thoroughly progressive as that of any state in the American Union.

And the majority of the people of Arizona had a perfect right to adopt it, because no part of it is in violation of the constitution of the United States.

The effort to halt the march of the progressive idea in American politics will fail, as it ought to fail. Neither presidents nor party majorities can stay it.

The people of this country are in favor of progressive policies, and they are going to express them in government. The people have a right to rule, and they are going to rule.

President Taft cannot refuse to admit Arizona on this ground without insulting over twenty states which are already committed to this doctrine, including Maine, California, Massachusetts, Wisconsin, Montana and Illinois.

Neither in Oregon nor in California nor in any of the recall states has the righteous principle been abused or strained.

All the states of the Union have heard the call of the people, and their constitutions are changing to answer the people's demand.

The republican majority of the senate has faded out of the possibility of thwarting the will of the people in these states. The republican senators who are going out are following the rebuke of the progressive people of their states.

And the president of the United States, if he is wise in this important matter, will consider carefully before he dashes his political aspirations against the thick bosses of the popular ballot, which is the people's shield.
