

SNAPPY GARB FOR SPRING

WHEN CLOTH IS CUT IT MIGHT AS WELL BE CUT RIGHT. OUR ALREADY TAILORED GARMENTS ARE FROM THE SNAPPIEST MODELS. OUR STYLES ARE NEVER JADED FASHIONS, BUT UP-TO-THE-MOMENT, AND ALWAYS POSSESS THAT LITTLE "SOMETHING" WHICH MAKES THEM DIFFERENT. OUR STOCK IS FULL OF "NICK-NACKS" INNUMERABLE AND DRESS MATERIALS, PROPER IN SHADE FOR THIS SEASON. WE HAVE WHATSOEVER YOU WISH.

SPRING SUITS

The materials call for old names, but there are odd and pretty effects never seen before. Worsteds in dainty plaited basket weaves; plain and two-toned, unfinished hairline striped fabrics, men's suitings refined for women's wear, crisp voiles, Scotch homespuns, frizes and crases that celtic fancy has brightened with delicate tints.

The coats have the jauntiness of Eton shortness—ranging from 23 to 26 inches. Semi-fitted styles that you'll hear referred to as "FRENCH BACK."

Some of the fronts are straight—others swerve—"cutaway." The seams have been changed since last season. They now run full length of the garment.

The first freshness about skirts is their high girdle tops. Not only "smart," but sensible, too. Plain flare, box-plaited backs, open at side. Other suits show other marks—low lapping rivires, shaped slashing, peasant sleeves, others continuous with the shoulder; braiding and piping or bare of trimmings.

We've written a few lines, but remember, we've HUNDREDS OF NEW SUITS from which to choose. Let them get before you and they will change your mind about WAITING.

LINGERIE WAISTS

Don't dispute. If the momentous question arises: "Where are the most beautiful Lingerie Waists to be found?" and the answer comes quick as a flash: THE HAMILTON STORE—don't argue. If you are a woman of taste and judgment, and if you've looked 'round—YOU'LL NOT TAKE ISSUE. Prices ranging up to $5, and the garments are works of art in filmy materials and trimmings.

SOMETHING WORTH READING.

A valuable aid to the voters of Oregon in sizing up their servants in the legislature is furnished by a book just published, "Behind the Scenes at Salem." It was written by Carl Smith and H. P. Edward, correspondents for a Portland newspaper during the session. In this book, attractively arranged and pleasingly phrased, things are told of intrigue and log rolling that have never before been printed. Supplementary to the story of the session, which is told by giving a chapter to each important bill, striking comment on the result, or lack of result, of the lawmakers' work is found in contributions by prominent members of the legislature of both parties and by four newspaper correspondents, aside from those who publish the book. That politics marred the session is the nearly unanimous view. Speaker Rusk, Representatives Eaton and Brownhill, Senator McCulloch and Col. E. Hofer are among the contributors.

Not less interesting than fiction is the history of some of the legislation and attempted legislation at Salem. Indeed, this book shows that some of the most interesting things transpired in connection with bills that failed to pass and the secret ramifications of the political game, played by seasoned veterans of staid politics. Important roll calls are given, so each voter can tell where his senator and representative stood at a glance.

"The Old Guard in the House," "The Senate and the Oregon System," "Did Berman Play Politics," "The Flat Salary Bill," "The Speakership Fight," "How Selling Won," "Amending the Initiative Laws," "Rural Suspicion Kills Good Roads," "What the Corporations Killed," these chapter titles give a good idea of the meat that lies within the 80 attractive pages, which are printed on good paper and carry half-tone cuts of Governor West and prominent lawmakers.

The closing feature of the book is a personal estimate of each member of the house and senate with regard to his fidelity to progressive ideas and his value as a legislator. Here is found some pointed comment, for it is the habit of the writers to deal with plain English. It is a book the voters will relish, for it gives information they cannot otherwise obtain, and it tells the things they want to know about the men sent to Salem to represent them.
