

SHOWING OF STYLES FROM ABROAD

WE DO NOT WAIT UNTIL STYLES HAVE BEEN "WORN OUT" BEFORE WE OFFER THEM TO OUR PATRONS, BUT OUR CONNECTIONS ARE SUCH THAT JUST AS SOON AS THEY APPEAR AT FASHIONS SOURCE WE HAVE THEM ON DISPLAY IN OUR ESTABLISHMENT. ALL OF THE LATEST MATERIALS AND MODES FOR EASTER ARE READY. WE RESPECTFULLY INVITE YOU TO PAY US A VISIT.

PRE-EASTER DAYS AT THE HAMILTON STORE. A GOOD TIME TO TEST THE STOCKS AND THE SERVICE OF THE STORE. BOTH WILL STAND THE SEVEREST ORDEAL SMILINGLY. WE ARE READY.

Veiling

We have often tried to look behind veiling—to find out the REAL reason why women wear them. They say the wind tosses and tumbles the hair if they go forth without a VEIL, and the while THERE IS NO WIND—only a dead calm—not a breath a-stir.

THINGS THEY NEVER SAY: Veils cast soft, mysterious shadows around eyes, giving them a wistful, dreamy expression. Veils impart a bloom to cheeks and frame faces alluringly. The fact we wish to emphasize is that the newest designs are here. All the latest Paris meshes may be seen here as nowhere else.

Millinery

The pulse of Paris beats in the millinery department. The over-sea novelties light here soon after they are unfastened in New York. The wizards of fashion haven't a secret that isn't revealed in our display.

Small Hats, medium-size Hats, large Hats—you may be fancy-free—please your individual taste without involving your headgear in a quarrel with fashion.

Personal becomingness! that's all you need consider!

Women's Neckwear

The Spring crop calls you to the counters. Something for tailored wear? Embroidered stiff collars, high stock softened by a small pleated jabot, sword-shaped jabot, side frill—or just a simple mannish bow.

Irish crochet lace and fine French batiste or Marquise are exquisitely combined in the fancier, dressier, fluffier styles. Round Dutch collars, jabots, tabs and other effects. Clumsy, American and Valenciennes laces figure in others. Beautiful embroidery is also a feature.

Chic conceits mixed with French and Austrian wits.

SOME WASHINGTON EVENTS.

After two weeks' recess the supreme court convened on the 3rd inst. There was an impression abroad that a decision would be rendered and as a result there was a grand rush to the court room. Three minutes after the doors were opened all the available space assigned to the public was taken and before the court convened the space given to attorneys was filled and attorneys standing and the reporters' bench filled double. The rush was said to break all records.

Many do not know that a court recess is a time of hard study and work formulating decisions. This was clearly proved at this session. Many decisions were read but the one we were most anxious to hear did not appear. Court convened at 12 m, precisely as usual and in a few minutes Justice Hughes was giving the court's decision on the "drug state cut rate" case. He read for half an hour and established the principle that the manufacturer of proprietary remedies could not compel the purchasers of his goods to sell, at a price fixed by himself. He said the proprietor could charge for his goods so as to secure for himself a satisfactory profit but that he has no control of the goods when once sold. The retail druggist can fix his own profit. The principle is very wide in its application and in direct conflict with customs in business long practiced and regarded as legitimate. The decision was not unanimous. Justice Holmes read a dissenting opinion for ten minutes arguing for the largest liberty in trade contracts. Justice Day read three decisions, two were unanimous and to one Justice Harlan and Justice Holmes dissented. Justice Harlan read two decisions on railroad cases from Oklahoma. There is a growing opinion that the spirit of the court is changing, that instead of listening to every little technicality that can excuse crooked business the court is now rather disposed to go for the monopolies and trusts and railroads. I was interested in these cases for I had heard them argued about a month ago. In the course of his argument for the railroad the attorney hinted that the profits of railroads in Oklahoma were less than elsewhere. One of the justices asked, "Why less?" The attorney said, "an account of adverse legislation." Another justice said, "What specific legislation?" This rather staggered the attorney, but he replied referring to an Oklahoma law. "How does that law diminish profits?" This bothered the attorney, but the best he could say was that it increased the office work and force of clerks in accounting and preparing the required reports. There was a near smile or near sneer on the faces of the nine gowned justices and I was sure the attorney had lost his case and he had. There were five other decisions rendered so we all came to understand that the judges had been busy during the two weeks' recess. It was not easy to realize the importance of the decisions in that little court room, not as large as the Linn county court room. The cases decided were from all parts. One was from Manila. Pages rush every few minutes from the reporters' bench to the telegraph office and the words are scarcely spoken until they reach the far distant parties interested.

Our representative, Hawley, on invitation addressed the Washington Ministerial Association at their monthly meeting last week, about one hundred and fifty preachers. His address was excellent and kindled a good deal of enthusiasm. I was much pleased for I had commended him and was his only constituent present.

I need not write a line about the opening of the 62nd congress. The papers are full of it, but I may say I was there too.

The evening of the 4th I attended the annual banquet of the "Twenty-four-Hour-a-day Club," a missionary club of men of the Y. M. C. A., which is very large here, several thousand members. The name is intended to express that their work never ceases round the world. It was an elegant affair, you might say a swell affair in the most elegant banquet hall of the city, $2.50 per plate (a friend paid for mine), and was followed by very stirring addresses presenting the wide world work of the Y. M. C. A. South America was presented by the general secretary of that continent. Enough in itself for one evening. He was followed by Mr. Tong Kaison of China. He has been for years an active Y. M. C. A. worker in China. He is accredited ambassador to Hague Conference, but his particular work in this country now is to place about one hundred and fifty Chinese boys in American homes and schools. When the Boxer trouble arose in China some years ago and much damage was done to foreign legation and other property an international commission assessed the damages alleged to have been sustained by the different nations. They assessed $22,000,000 to meet U. S. loss. When all the claims were in they only amounted to the half that amount. The U. S. declined to receive more than $11,000,000 in the Chinese treasury. This money had been appropriated by China to pay all claims in full and the U. S. was the only nation to decline the full allowance. Then the Chinese government determined to spend that eleven millions in America educating Chinese boys. The boys are brought from 50 to 100 per year and placed in homes and schools to complete university or technical courses. They bring young boys so that they may imbibe fully the American spirit. This will be continued until the eleven millions is expended. He was followed by Mr. Y. Minakuchi of Japan. His address was very emphatic in drawing the contrast between Christianity and all heathen systems of faith in its uplifting power and the betterment of the race. He tried to make us see that we did not half appreciate our own Christian civilization.

The last speaker was Mr. William Jennings Bryan on his impressions of missions around the world. He began by suggesting that before Mr. Minakuchi returns to Japan we should have him travel over this country and wake us up. Mr. Bryan has high ideals of Christian character, is evangelical to the core and is a truly spiritual man—a fine preacher though he may never be president.

is sure to come. It comes in finance as well as in climate. We aim to conduct, not only a fair weather bank, but one that will withstand the storms.

A bank's assets and liabilities always balance. We have $1.33 for every dollar that we owe depositors.

Our aim is to be safe, rather than big. We conduct no other business, and have no preferred depositors.
