Eugene, April 28.—Eugene has a hard time trying to get the University appro-priation, and the dog law settled. The Sage Rooster will continue to vote for both if he never lives to see Eugene get either. There are five things the Rooster would be glad to see accomplished before he shifts off this mortal coil, viz., a large appropriation for the University, keeping the dogs off the streets, running ships through the Panama canal, the election of a democratic president, and Vannie Smith sheriff. A good many buildings are going up in Eugene and grading continues on the several R. R. lines leading into Eugene. The Democrat is siways a welcome back yard in the city, a neat and very pretty place.

There is a force of men working there and the coming summer he thinks will show up big things for that locality. This mine is not far from Quatzville and is owned by Mr. Weatherford of Albany and John Savage and W. D. Mohney of Salem. Another interesting report is that there is talk that the road building this way from Ontario will eventually cross the mountains along the Lebanon wagon road through those large hold-ings. Shinh, Nutting, van winkle, Conna, Cox. A letter from Lethbridge, Canada, acknowledged the receipt of hop vines sent from Albany, with a flowery zug-gestion. A report of the committee showed a net expense of the recent Made in Linn exposition of only $8.40, and it was worth a fortune to the city. Bills amounting to $31.70 were or-dered paid.

L. D. Malone, secretary of the Na-tional Mining Congress was present and spoke comprehensively. We have four great industries, agriculture, mining shing and timbering. His theme was mining, covering a wide field. Out of a mining laws of 1866, 54,000,000,000 have been added to the wealth of the country, and another law later, nearly as much more been added to the wealth of the country, and another law later, nearly as much more The homestead law, reclamation law and irrigation law have all been con-structive. Putting land into the hands of the people has cost the government only 5 cents an acre The natural resources should be un-der control of the states themselves. In Minnesota the University is kept up from the resources of the state without a cent of tex, and Oregon has sufficient resources for supplying our colleges without taxes. All of the public lands should be opened up. We need more liberal laws The mines last year pro-duced $176,000,000. The gold and cop-per mines declared more dividends than all the banks and railroads. The manner in which patents have been held up through special agents was energetically exposed. In its leasing sysnem in Alaska out of $5,000,000 the government has re-ceived, not a dollar has gone back for school houses and other improvements.
