MISFITS

Most of us have our cranks.

Who will believe Abe Ruef now?

A great political mixup this year for a fact.

Did you ever try to write when your head felt empty?

The umpire who could satisfy a batter would be a bird.

The Jefferson Review says Grangers know a whole lot.

Now for fifty-two blocks of pavement before the machines stop.

Some difference between the Albany of 1912 and the Albany of 1880.

Prof. Harold Weider has returned home from Foster, where he has been teaching the past year. Next year he expects to enter Willamette University.

A good many people say the real estate business is already overdone in Albany; just think of Albany's future. As a matter of fact the real estate business has hardly gotten well started in Albany.

ELECTRIC PUMPS UNCOVERED THE BATTLESHIP MAINE.

Raising the Maine in Havana Harbor was one of the great engineering feats of the decade.

A vitally important part of the undertaking was pumping millions of gallons of sea water out of the cofferdam enclosure.

Every gallon of water was pumped out by great electrically operated pumps stationed on huge barges.

Switching the power off and on was the only physical labor involved.

For pumping of any kind, anywhere, the electric motor driven by central station power excels in reliability, economy and low cost of investment.
