HOW THE GRAND OLD MAN READS.

Mr. Gladstone usually has three books in reading at the same time, and changes from one to the other when his mind has reached the limit of absorption. This is a necessary corrective to the tendency to think only of one thing at one time, which sometimes in politics leads him to neglect that all-round survey of the situation which is indispensable to a Prime Minister. During the beginning of the Irish question in 1880 he was so absorbed in the question of the coercion of Turkey that he could hardly be induced to spare a thought for Ireland; now it is just as difficult to get him to think of any political question but that of Ireland. Mr. Gladstone complains sometimes that his memory is no longer quite as good as it used to be, but, although that may be true, it is still twice as good as anybody else's for Mr. Gladstone has an extraordinary faculty of not only remembering those things he ought to remember but of forgetting those things it is useless for him to remember. His mind is thus unincumbered with any unnecessary topkammer and he can always so to speak, lay his hand upon anything the moment he wants it. This retentive memory was no doubt born with him, but it has been largely developed by the constant habit of taking pains. When he reads a book he does so with pencil in hand, marking off in the margin those passages which he wishes to remember, querying those about which he is in doubt, and putting a cross opposite to those which he disputes. At the end of the volume he constructs a kind of index to his own, which enables him to refer to those things he wishes to remember in the book.

There is no reason whatever, why any one should suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, torpid liver and loss of appetite, when Dr. Hentley's Dandelion Tonic, which every one knows is a certain cure, can be so easily obtained. Sold by Foshay & Mason.

The Canada blizzard was disastrous enough, surely; but the worst thing about it was its coming at about the time Wiggins had set for such a visitation. It was a terrible blow in more senses than one, but it did not last long, while the way Wiggins blows beats the blizzard out of sight.

A Light House.

Hard Winter.

PORT TOWNSEND, W. T., Jan. 29.—Advices from Alaska say the winter there has so far been a very discouraging one to the people of the territory, owing to the severe storms. The heaviest snow storm since 1875 occurred this winter, and owing to the depth of snow upon the ground, traders and hunters have undergone a great deal of the delay in preparing for the coming hunting trips.

A Fishing License.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—It is reported in official circles that the government will shortly announce its abandonment of the modus vivendi which authorizes the issue of a fishing license to American vessels. The existing license will continue to hold good until they expire.

A Strike.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—With two exceptions every line of street cars in the city is tied up. When the last night trip was made each car was run into the stable, and at 4 p. m. the great strike commenced. Up to this hour no disorder has been reported.

Big Fire.

HELENA, Mon., Jan. 29.—Fourteen buildings were destroyed by fire at Missoula, Mont., at an early hour yesterday morning. The flames broke out in a dwelling occupied by Sallie Lee, a courtesan, situated on the western end of Front street. The buildings adjoining were all frame and the fire spread rapidly westward. The fire department was powerless to stop the flames, owing to the insufficiency of the water supply and part of the fireplugs being frozen. Jim Lee's banking and gambling house was also consumed, and $8000 is reported buried beneath the ruins. The loss will probably reach $40,000. A railroad man was seriously injured by a fall during the progress of the fire.

Looks Like War.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Stanhope, secretary of state for war, addressed a meeting in Lincolnshire last evening. He said a thunder cloud was hanging over Europe and that soon or later it would burst, bringing the fiercest and most horrible war ever known. It was impossible to view the preparations for war now being made throughout Europe without feeling that war was approaching. He hoped, that the wisdom of England's statesmen would prevent that nation being involved.
