

POPULAR FALLACIES.

It is a mistake to labor when you are not in a fit condition to do so. To think the more a person eats the healthier and stronger he will become. To go to bed late at night and rise at daybreak, and imagine that every hour taken from the sleep is an hour gained. To imagine that if a little work or exercise is good, violent or prolonged exercise is better. To conclude that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in. To eat as if you had only a minute to finish the meal in, or to eat without an appetite, or continue after it has been satisfied, merely to gratify the taste. To believe that children can do as much work as grown people, and that the more hours they study the more they learn. To imagine that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better (as alcoholic stimulants) is good for the system, without regard to the after effects. To take off proper clothing out of season because you have become heated. To sleep exposed to a direct draft at any season. To think any nostrum or patent medicine is a specific for all diseases the flesh is heir to.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

Tin cleaned with paper will shine better than when cleaned with flannel.

Lard may be made perfectly sweet by boiling a pared potato in it.

If sassafras bark is sprinkled among dried fruit it will keep out the worms.

Flowers can be kept fresh for some time if a pinch of soda or saltpetre is added to the water. Wilted roses will regain their freshness if dipped a minute or two in hot water.

A solution of equal parts of gum arabic and plaster-of-Paris cements china and earthenware.

Ham should be broiled very quickly and just enough to cook through.

Tea leaves are good to scatter over carpets before sweeping, not only to freshen the colors, but also to prevent the dust arising.

To cure felons mix one ounce Venice turpentine with one ounce of water, and with a smooth stick mix and spread a thick coating of it around the finger; bind on with a cloth and renew daily.

To take ink stains out of a mahogany table, dip a feather in a spoonful of water mixed with eight drops of nitre and apply to the stain. Rub with a wet cloth immediately. Very deep stains require a stronger solution.

Oil cloths will last longer if one or two layers of wadded carpet lining are laid under them.

Lay a piece of thick cotton flannel under your tablecloth. Even coarse naryery will look a much better quality with a sub-cover than if spread directly over the bare table top.

Fight your own battles. Hoe your own row. Ask no favors of any one, and you'll succeed a thousand times better than one who is always beseeching some one's influence and patronage. No one will ever help you as you help yourself, because no one will be so heartily interested in your affairs. The first step will be such a long one, perhaps; but carving your own way up the mountain you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had $5000 given them to start with, but boys who have started fair with a well earned dollar or two. Men who acquire fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in friendly spirit. They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart. Men who win love do their own wooing, and I never knew a man to fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for money or for anything else, work with your hands and heart and brain. Say "I will," and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have it to say, "I have dragged you up." Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none at all.

The Aseel or Indian game cock, whose domestic history is to be traced back to many generations of Eastern potentates, is no bigger than the ordinary English game bird, but in every other respect, says an English authority, is entirely different. Instead of having a long snake head and beak, a thin neck covered with silky feathers that he can throw back as a young lady does her curls, profuse plumage, soft, broad-spreading tail, in fact, everything that would go to pieces in an hour's encounter, he is possessed of precisely the reverse attributes: in short, he is adapted for nothing else but the combat. His neck, strong and muscular, almost devoid of flesh, his beak strong and slightly curved, his eye like that of an eagle, his comb small without wattles or ear-lobes, his back broad, with a fine, close tail consisting of pointed feathers set on and carried low, the root being stout and full of muscle, his wings set well apart from his body, and the whole frame of the bird feeling in hand as if made of wood, whalebone and whipcord.

The first early strawberries always come from plants two or more years old; hence it's often well to have an "old patch" somewhere to furnish the first family supply. But of course the largest and finest fruit comes from the new bed of younger and more thrifty plants. In testing new varieties of strawberries for earliness, we always plant with them, and at the same time several of the old standard sorts for comparison.

Early Summer planting of strawberries pays, while neglect of a few weeks, just at the proper season causes almost a total failure. Here we have plants, put out the first of last August (only ten months ago,) that will pick fully a pint of berries to the plant, while others of the same variety put out the last of August or early in September are growing only a few inferior berries. Very early Spring is the best time in the whole year for strawberry planting; but, if it was neglected then, and you want berries the next year in June, you may have them if planting is done very early in August. But don't fool yourself into thinking that they may be planted any time in the Fall and then fruit to any extent the next June. They will not do it.

The bulk of the water of the ocean has a low temperature. It is ice cold at the bottom, even under the equator, but on the surface within the tropics there is relatively a thin film of warm water, with a temperature of from 70 degrees to 84 degrees F.

The greatest snug-taking country in the world is France, though it shows a decline in the habit. In 1869 the consumption was 13,000,000 pounds, or seven ounces per head. Now it is five ounces.
