Daily Democrat

PROMISES NOT FULFILLED.

The promises of prosperity in the event of republican success, and the prophecies of national disaster if the democrats remained in power, so freely bandied about during the last campaign, are still fresh in the ears of the people. They have not forgotten the screams of the stump orators or the appeals of the republican party press, nor are they likely to do so while events continue to remind them that the promises were empty and the threats idle. Thousands of men who voted for Harrison, protection, home markets and prosperity, are to-day out of employment, while thousands more are toiling along on wages that have been reduced since the 6th of November. Last Monday the warden of the Illinois state prison sent 200 loaves of bread to the miners at Braidwood, in that state, who are on a protracted strike against a reduction of wages below what is claimed to be the limit of subsistence, and the incident reminds the Springfield Republican that just a year ago this month a delegation of bituminous coal miners visited General Harrison at Indianapolis. They carried banners inscribed, "Give us Harrison and Protection," "Protection and Plenty," "Free Trade and Starvation." The spokesman of the party, on being introduced to General Harrison, said: "These men want such a policy as will enrich us rather than that other policy which tends to the pauperism and destitution of our people. In short, they want high wages, plenty of work and good bread and butter."

General Harrison in reply said: "It is not clear that that policy which secures the largest amount of work to be done at home is the policy which will secure to laboring men steady employment and the best of " In one short year the deluded men, who, doubtless believed that a duty on the bituminous coal of Nova Scotia was absolutely necessary to keep their own mines working, find that they have Harrison and protection without plenty, and starvation without free trade. Nor are the Braidwood miners alone in learning the bitter lesson that ante-election promises bear no relation whatever to the possibilities of past election fulfillment. The iron workers of Pennsylvania are out on strikes or are working at reduced wages, while the manufacturers, taking a mean advantage of the increased demand by reason of destruction by floods, are raising the price of their products. New England, too, which contributed as much to sustain the high tariff principle as any other section of the country, has failed to realize on the stock of promises with which it was flooded by the Home Market club. Bradstreet's reports of business failures for the first six months of the year show for Massachusetts the remarkable exhibit of 564 failures with liabilities of $17,673,000, against only 394 failures for the corresponding period of last year and liabilities of only $3,976,464. Vermont has had 26 failures with liabilities of $200,650, against only 17 failures and liabilities of $71,480 for the first six months of 1888. Maine shows a similar increase of risk in business. Both the number of failures and amount of liabilities have increased throughout the country in the last six months as compared with last year, and while it may not be fair to charge existing conditions wholly to the fact that Harrison, Wanamaker and company have industriously superintended the peddling of public patronage for the past four months, these same conditions do show most emphatically how much of impotency and hypocrisy there was in the republican pretensions of the remarkably lying campaign of 1888.

CANADA'S PROPOSITION.

It is stated, on no less authority than that of Sir John Macdonald himself, that the Dominion government has made a most important proposition to the United States. It seems that while statesmen on this side of the line have been discussing reciprocity in a general and theoretical sort of way, Canada has taken the initiative by making a positive and definite suggestion, which it is ready at any time to carry out. The proposition is that the governments of the United States and Canada should consider the propriety of removing the import and export duties on lumber of all kinds, or, in other words, that the Canadian government will abolish the import and export duties on lumber, provided the Washington authorities will reciprocate by placing Canadian lumber on the free list. In the meantime, as an earnest of good faith, the Canadian authorities have reduced the export duties on pine logs from three dollars to two dollars per thousand feet, board measure, the latter being the figure at which the duty stood in November last, previous to the Canadian lumbermen asking for the increase. Of course it may be safely regarded as already known how this proposition for free trade with Canada, so far as lumber is concerned, will be met by the partisan advocates of high protection, but it will be interesting to see what reply will be made by those prominent republicans of the John Sherman stamp who are definitely committed to the policy of reciprocity and ultimate annexation.

Neither a reduction in wages nor a reduction in prices will enable the northern iron masters to complete with the southern product. As a matter of fact, competition is impossible. This being so, the inevitable will have to be accepted with as good grace as may be possible under the circumstances. In the course of a very few years the south will be the center of the iron industry and of cotton manufacture. The The hour has struck.

The German emperor lately visited the barracks of a dragoon regiment, and while the men were in readiness the commanding officer was half an hour late. He expected immediate disgrace, and when evening came he opened with a trembling hand a small parcel from his majesty. It contained an alarm clock.
