

LOCAL RECORD.

A FINE THRESHING OUTFIT.—Yesterday evening a DEMOCRAT man with hay seed in his hair, visited the seventy acre wheat field of Mr. D. D. Hackleman, just west of the city, where Mr. Hackleman had set his threshing machine and begun his summer's run. For about a month Mr. Hackleman is at the head of a big establishment. He has a 33-inch Massillon Cyclone thresher, with a capacity of 2500 bushels of wheat a day that fairly gorges on wheat stalks. Two wagons are unloaded at a time, and the two band cutters, one on each side of the feeder, are kept rustling to meet the demands of the machine. In this field the stalks were large and heavy but the thresher gulped them down by the wholesale. Six wagons are kept running, and twenty-five men in all are required to do the business. Mr. Ulysses Hale runs the traction engine in good style. A cooking outfit is taken along and the men eat and sleep in the field. The outfit is a model one and is well managed by Commander in Chief Hackleman. The field in which the start is made yields about thirty bushels to the acre, the wheat being plump and healthy. The great trouble is too much stalk. Mr. Hackleman has orders ahead for a long run. He is in great demand for his machine absolutely saves every kernel.

A BAD MAN ANYWAY.—The examination of James Lannigan took place before Justice Humphrey at 4 o'clock yesterday. There was not being sufficient evidence to hold him he was discharged, though there is little doubt he was the man. The following letter found on him and shown to the Court shows what kind of a chap he is:

PORTLAND, June 2nd, 1899.
Friend Dan:—I am in Portland. Arrived here from Seattle about five weeks ago. I got in with a young fellow that goes by the name of "Shorty." He is a good grafter and a number 1 shell worker, and he is going to San Francisco. I will send him to you. He has handled some good "stuff" up here and in Spokane. You may have a chance to make some money with him. We have been working the picnics here, a fellow called Smiley, this man and myself, expect to work the fairs. It is a pretty good country, better than California, I think. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain
Yours respectfully,
H. L. WITZKY,
Address No. 67, Taylor street, Portland, Or.

THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD.—Mr. J. V. Talt is canvassing the city for the sale of the "History of the Johnstown Flood." This is a neatly, well bound volume of 400 pages, 25 illustrations taken from photographs. The book embraces a history of Johnstown from the date of its settlement to the time of the awful catastrophe which befell it, being replete with thrilling scenes, heroic behavior, sad tales of desolation, loss of life and destruction of property. This is far more authentic and full than the reports published in the newspapers and is well worthy of perusal. Buy one.

HOW TO ENJOY LIFE.—Very few people know how to enjoy life. Some say to themselves: "I do this or that, therefore I am amused; I have paid so many pieces of gold, hence I feel so much pleasure;" and they wear away their lives on that grindstone. People who buy their groceries and produce of Conn Brothers, though enjoy life best, as they get not only good goods but bottom prices.

TIREDF OF LIFE.—On Sunday evening Frank Crow shot himself through the heart about nine o'clock in the evening near the residence of Mr. Levi Henkle, near Philomath, in Benton county. The reason given is the old one, "I am tired of life and do not wish to live any longer." He was a steady, reliable young man, which makes his course the more mysterious.

A CONDUCTOR'S LUCK.—Mr. Al Bell, who is conductor on the West Side freight met with a painful accident yesterday. He was having a lay off, but volunteered to couple the passenger cars at noon, when his left hand was caught and mashed severely. The little finger was split down its length and the middle of the palm torn and lacerated. Leader.

PRIVATE SALE OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS.—Mrs. W. B. Rice offers at private sale her entire lot of household goods, consisting of two chamber sets, bedsteads, kitchen furniture, carpets, stoves, etc. The goods are in care of Mrs. C. J. Stuart.

HAY WANTED.—Mr. L. Senders, of this city will buy all the clean timothy hay brought to him in tightly compressed bales, for which the market price in cash will be paid. Deliver at stables.

MISSING.—Several days ago the DEMOCRAT was informed of the loss of the brother of the local editor of the DEMOCRAT in the mountains of Crook county while inspecting stock in the northeast part of the county; but hoping news of his being found alive and safe would come said nothing about it. Private information and the following from the News make it look as if some calamity must have fallen him: "About the first of last May Geo. Nutting, Crook county's stock inspector, went over into the Upper Trout creek county to inspect the numerous bands of sheep in that locality. He visited Knox Huston's, Phil Brogan's, Finlayson's, O'Neil's and Thos Jones's places, and possibly others. His horse gave out or got sick, and was left, we believe at Jones' place, Geo continuing his way on foot. He was last seen or heard of near Finlayson's place, on or near Currant creek. As the settlers over there live some distance apart, nothing strange was thought of his long disappearance until the lapse of six or seven weeks, they all supposing that he was either still on his official round of duty or at home. This week Geo. Nutting went over there, and with the assistance of others, search was made for the missing man, but without avail. Next week regularly organized parties of men will renew the search. It is feared that the missing man is dead, and numerous theories as to the probable cause of his death are merely vague conjectures, scarcely worth repeating. Diligent search will be instituted for him, and whether dead or alive, he will most likely be found."

A FINE COURT HOUSE.—The new court, says the Corvallis Gazette, is finished, excepting a small amount of work to be done in placing the boiler, used for the steam heating purpose, in position. To view the inside of the building the expression is that it is an elegant piece of workmanship. From the front to the back entrance everything has a rich looking color and shows that the work has been done with care and precision. The county clerk and sheriff have moved in their respective rooms—the former occupying the first three on the left and the latter the last one on that side.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.—Prof. Letcher, of the Agricultural College, of Corvallis, has been in the city to-day, and reports the prospects of the college to be very flattering. In a short time the members of the faculty will make a tour of the state in the interest of the college and hope to be able to advertise it so that its merits will be appreciated. With a talented faculty the school should take a front rank as an Agricultural college. The catalogue is at hand and speaks for the college in strong language.

HAVE A TRAIT.—A trot between local buggy horses for a purse made up of entrance fees, etc., is being talked of to take place on the fair ground. One might be arranged and conducted so as to excite considerable general interest and draw a crowd. There are some good horses here, and this would tell their merits. The track is said to be in good condition. Horsemen desiring to bring their stock before the public should take the matter up.

HALF STARVED.—A Corvallis editor's wife in writing from Yaquina Bay says: "I stopped at the Yaquina Hotel the first night, where I met a number of friends. You would have smiled to see how stately I walked into supper with my train following me—a train of children I mean. My! how they did eat! It is always said that an editor's folks don't get much to eat and the way those "kids" got in, you would have thought they hadn't had a square meal for a long time."

4TH AT LINKVILLE.—Here had a big time at Linkville on the 4th, and here is the way Peter the poet describes part of the celebration: "After the splendid fireworks had coquetted with the stars and jilted the man in the moon, the two halls filled with gay waltzers, music struck up, and dancing, except during the interval for supper, was kept up till the blue cranes poured over the reddening lake their solemn orisons. Linkville is full of business, culture, cash and—Judge Smith."

TUNNEL ABANDONED.—Work on the tunnel on the O P near Breitenbush has ceased, it having been decided to go around the hill. One hundred feet had been dug. The tunnel would be over 500 feet long, and it was found that over a month's time and considerable expense could be saved by changing the course in this way, hence the decision.

A PROLIFIC COW.—Mr. Jesse Brown has a five year old cow that has had seven calves within the past three years. All of them lived and he has sold four of them for $75 and has the other three and the cow left. There were three pairs of twins and one single calf. Mr. Brown lives in the Soap Creek neighborhood below this city.—Benton Leader.

A RELIC.—On the DEMOCRAT's table is a photograph of First Street eastward taken from near the old Young store. It was taken by Mr. A. B. Paxton in Sept., 1864, and was purchased by James Atkins at a Congregational Church fair the same year. At the Stewart & Sox corner was W. W. Parrish & Co's store, now located opposite the former site, and used as a furniture store. Mr. Parrish is now a resident of Sodaville. On the French corner was John W. Cleaver's meat market; next came Wash Anderson's wagon shop; then Jos. Nixon's blacksmith shop. Mr. Nixon now resides at Lebanon. After another little frame came Foster's store, the only brick in the city, now occupied by Will & Strick. Upstairs was the County Clerk's office and Court room; D. W. Wakefield's drug store was about at the site of the Foster block. It is now part of the Pioneer House. Mr. Wakefield is in the real estate business in Portland. On the corner now occupied by G. V. Smith was Cheddie's store. Dr. Miller's office and residence was at the site of the McIlwain block. The old building is now nearly opposite the DEMOCRAT office. Jas. Elkins residence was opposite the present Revere House and Judge Baber resided opposite the present Russ House. Julius Gradwohl's grocery store is seen at the present site of the O P temple, and the same building is now occupied by Max Baumgart. Freeland's book store and the P. O. was adjoining it. The corner opposite Stewart & Sox's was then a "burned out" district. The picture shows in fine shape Albany of twenty-five years ago, and brings to the mind of old residents many reminiscences of the days of '64.
