"ENTERPRISE."

The Oregonian attempts to be funny by saying that the Democrat is humorous in calling attention to the misrepresentations of that paper concerning the effect of the flood in Linn county. However, the paper may regard its will, fanciful story that the raging Santiam had carried everything away that the hand of man had put across it, and that the bridges on all the small streams in Linn county had been washed away, yet, could it have heard the criticisms of people here for publishing such open palpable falsehoods, it would have felt that its story was regarded as anything else than humorous. The Democrat told the exact truth about what the Oregonian said and it drew the only logical conclusion from its own words. That paper makes this quotation from the Democrat:
"The Oregonian exhibits a species of studied animosity towards this town." This a willful misquotation and perverse misrepresentation of what the Democrat said. After relating what that paper said about the loss of bridges and wheat the Democrat said: "It looks like a species of studied animosity towards this town by that paper." From this it will appear that what we did say is quite different from what it attributes to us. If the Oregonian's enterprise consists in thus falsifying and misrepresenting, then, indeed will honest, fair-minded men regret that it has any enterprise at all.

The impression is beginning to get out from Washington that there will be no tariff legislation at all by the present congress. The Republican leaders are not only hopelessly divided about sugar, but the proposal to abolish it happens to be a multitude of other duties are prolific of disagreement, while the great line of cleavage is every day becoming clearer between the great manufacturing and mining corporations that poured out money to carry the election, and the depressed agricultural interests that demand relief from over taxation. The responsibilities of legislation are a very different thing from the mere yell of "free trade" to enthusiasm and disapproval. What an impotent and disgraceful conclusion it will be if the Republican majority allows this congress to adjourn leaving the tariff as it is!—Rhode Island
