The old saying that you should do like Romans is often well put into force, of that you should dissemble; but that you should adapt yourself to surroundings and not pigheadly try to change surroundings to your own ideas. The Man About Town hears of a brilliant (?) youth from somewhere else, who says Albany people don't know much of anything because they fall to do everything just the way they did in his forner city; yet the sample indicates that something is wrong in Denmark and that we must be ahead of the times.

THE HAN ABOUT TOWN.

There is a prevailing sentiment in Albany, the Man About Town learns, in favor of working for Albany and less for tide land districts in other sections of the state. This is a good city, with bright prospect; and the live element in it are solid for the advancement of its interests. The Democrat, by the way, has been universally commended for expessing the tide land sale.

Sometimes the rising generation ache to know something about the world. Perhaps a dime novel did that the world. Perhaps a dime novel did that the world, perhaps a dime novel did that the world. Perhaps a dime novel did that the world when they bergain edfor, and return home; or, continuing, become life long wrecks. The greatest ambition of a boy should be to do well his part, secure a good education and prepare himself for a useful life; not to be a tramp, tin horn gambier or a built.

The old saying that you should do file. A FAMOUS BEAR .- The old bear who found in his body, two passing through his heart. He measured ten inches between the ears and 18 inches from nose to top of head. The toes were cut off in a trap seven or eight years ago, which gave him the name of "club foot." His track was unmistakable, and he has killed hundreds of dollars worth of cattle in this vicinity and Southern Oregon, in the past twelve years. He weighed 1,400 pounds,
