THOMPSON AND THE WORKINGMEN.

One of the proud boasts of the republican leaders in their advocacy of protection is that it sustains the wages of the laboring classes, and preserves them from ruinous competition with the degraded pauper labor of Europe. This point is the chief argument they use when they desire to hoodwink the working people, and it is one too, that has an influential effect. Of course it is the sheerest, shallowest pretence, and is made only like the razor poor hog bought "to sell." In the first place, it is the height of absurdity to believe that the big, high priests of plutocracy, whose coffers have been swollen by frying the fat out of the poor through the instrumentality of the tariff gridiron, could have any sympathy with their employers. They want the labor employed at the lowest possible point, and if the latter object and strike for higher wages, their places are filled by importations from that same "pauper labor of Europe." Mr Powderly, the head of the Knights of Labor, has recently shown up this system, in a series of letters to the N Y World. He relates that the average wages of the employees of the mills and mines of Pennsylvania, a state in which the so called benefits of protection should be more especially felt, are on an average of about $20 a month. He gives a fearful picture of pitiful distress of the people, and describes how their main article of diet is mush and milk and not enough of that. Another very significant thing he related was that one day he saw thirty young Welshmen take passage for their former homes in Wales, where they told him, they could get better wages and five more comfortably. To show more clearly that this cry of the protection leaders to preserve the wages of labor is mere hollow mockery, let us cite a case nearer home. Let us in fact see how D P Thompson, the republican candidate for governor, regards the laboring people. We will only give incontestable facts that can easily be verified by consulting hundreds of men at Portland. When D P Thompson was several years ago made receiver for Welder's sawmill at Portland, a part of the Holland estate, one of his first acts was to reduce the wages of the employes an average of 30 cents a day. The men had to stand it, for the times were hard, and they could not afford to strike, as they could not find employment elsewhere. Now was this act of D P Thompson dictated by motives of economy? Not a bit of it. For there is the official record of the supreme court of this state which shows that he brought suits, amounting in the aggregate of $30,000 for his own services as receiver. In other words, D P Thompson reduced the wages of the men of Welder's mill, took the bread out of the mouths of their struggling families, and for no other purpose than to put the money in his own pocket. This is the man that now stands on the platform of protection to American labor, and he serves as a fine specimen of the rest of his class who have homed phrases for working men and farmers around election time, and nothing but cuffs and kicks when in power and place.

SAME IN LINN.

A prominent republican farmer who was in the city Saturday said that he could not see how politics could be considered by the farmers as between such men as Pennoyer and Thompson. For his part he should unhesitatingly vote for the former, and some of his republican neighbors would do the same.—East Oregonian.

It is no longer a question of politics. Whether "Dollar Mark" will be able to literally buy the state is the question.

If Mr S P Thompson is elected next June he will sell his Willamette locks to the state before his term of office expires. Then he will be rich enough to give a bit or two to the next calamity sufferers of the northwest. But God pity the unfortunates upon whose homes he holds a mortgage, if he is defeated. He will nail them to the cross until he gets back the bundle he is spending in this campaign—with 12 per cent interest.

Albany has three restaurants, all being well patronized. This fact speaks loudly of the transient residence in the city. It is larger than ever before.
