THE FATAL THIRTEEN REASONS.

There are some solid reasons why D P Thompson should not be elected governor and, singularly enough, they number the fatal figure of thirteen:

1. He is interested in the Willamette Locks Company, which will try to sell the locks at Oregon City at the next session of the legislature to the state at an enormous figure. Thompson will thus make up for the "sack" he intends to sink in the present campaign.

As incontrovertible evidence of the above scheme, it is only necessary to scan the facts that several parties interested in the Electric Light Works at Oregon City (namely, Morey, Eastham, Cross and others,) are now candidates for the legislature, and that the Electric Light Company spent about $15,000 in carrying the primaries at Portland for Thompson. It is stated by good authority that they have contributed the further sum of $10,000 for a campaign fund.

2. Thompson has boasted that he will spend $100,000 to secure his election and thwart the will of the people.

3. He favors Chinese as his record shows; two months ago he opposed, emphatically, a discussion of the question of removing the Chinese from Second street, one of the best streets in the city of Portland, which is now practically ruined by the filth of the Chinese and is a menace to the lives of her citizens by the frequent brawls of the highlanders. Also when in the legislature he voted against the memorial to congress for the abrogation of the Burlingame treaty.

4. Thompson, while receiver at Welder's Mill reduced the wages of the employes on an average of thirty cents a day, and at the same time asked $30,000 for his own services as receiver, as the records of the supreme court show.

5. He voted for the bill exempting water bonds from taxation "six times." These bonds, if exempted from taxation, would allow Thompson and his kind effectually to escape all taxation; on the other hand, if not exempt, they will be sold outside of the state, and will therefore bring so much extra capital into the state.

6. He owns seventeen banks and clinches the borrowers in a two per cent per month style; furthermore if elected he would stuff his seventeen banks with the funds of the state treasury, and make the people pay him interest on their own money.

7. Thompson while mayor of Portland had an ordinance passed extending wharf limits in front of his own property out into the river, thereby increasing the value to the extent of $200,000 without paying the city one cent of compensation. (This is an example of how he regards a public trust.)

8. He is one of the richest men in the state of Oregon, yet he only gave $10 to the Johnstown sufferers, and he has never contributed a cent towards helping any enterprise for the interest of the state.

9. He laid the foundation for his present immense fortune by his surveying contracts, which he was wont to fulfill at the rate of some twenty miles a day on horseback, as some of the surveyors of this state have repeatedly stated.

10. He promised to raise the money to relieve the Holladay estate, at Portland, for a bonus of $20,000 and then received from the Bennett-Larabee syndicate $20,000 in order to allow them to obtain the property at about one-fifth of its real value.

11. He shows his ability and dignity of character to properly fill the exalted position of governor by his speech accepting the nomination when he said "I'll get there, and don't you forget it."

12. He is owner of the electric system that now furnishes light for the state, and at the last session of the legislature he tried to sell the system to the state at three times its actual value.

13. Thompson, while one of the wealthiest men in the state, is one of the most artful dodgers of taxes. A list of his real and personal property in Multnomah county at a low valuation foots $1,159,200 which was assessed in 1889 at $171,000, and this was reduced by $51,000 indebtedness claimed by Thompson and $300 exemption, leaving the total of taxable property returned by him $1,159,200 as against an actual value of $1,159,200. This is the man that asks the tax-burdened farmers and the oppressed laborers for their votes,—a man whose creed is greed, whose god is stoop shouldered Mammon, whose conscience is mummified with years of disuse, and whose heart is as devoid of humanity as a bull frog is of leathers.

J R A Miller was one of the courageous members of the legislature who stood up manfully and helped sustain the governor's veto of the non taxable bond water bill. Enlarge him by giving him your vote for congress.

Wm M Townsend for secretary of State, G W Webb for state treasurer, B F Bonham for supreme Judge, A LeRoy for state superintendent of public instruction, J O'Brien for state printer and J J Whitney for district attorney are names that should have a place on every democratic ballot.
