

THE DAILY DEMOCRAT.

WAGES AND DUTIES.

It is pointed out by a clever correspondent of a contemporary that in 1889 there were imported into this country hosiery and knit goods of the value of $6,560,950, the duty of which was $2,384,848. The McKinley bill would increase this latter sum to more than $5,000,000, which is within a little over $1,500,000 of the total wages paid by the American manufacturers of hosiery in 1880.

These are very striking figures, but they can be duplicated many times in our protected industries. Under the existing law, for example, the maker of pig-iron is protected by a tariff tax which is nearly if not quite double the whole amount paid by him for wages. In fact, the average rate of protection last year was between 20 and 21 per cent. more than all the wages paid by the beneficiaries of the law. In other words, if the wage earners had really received the benefits of the protective duties their incomes would have been greater than they were by between 20 and 21 per cent.

If the tariff is really for the protection of "American labor," as the claim now is, why not add a section to the law requiring protected manufacturers to pay their workmen the full amount of the duties?

Having practised on southern districts with smaller adverse majorities, the republicans in the federal house are getting ready to obliterate the $419 democratic majority in the tenth Tennessee district and seat the republican candidate who makes a contest. It is assumed that the district ought to be republican. For want of a better reason, the New York Tribune prints figures showing that in five wards of the city of Memphis, which is in that district, the democratic vote at the municipal election this year fell 3,707 short of the democratic vote for president in 1888. The same sort of "argument" would seat the prohibition candidate in the third Pennsylvania district at the election last week, for although he received only 67 votes the total democratic vote fell more than 11,000 below what it was in 1888.

Chairman Dunn, of the Democratic State Cen. Com., of Iowa, believes the sentiment of the committee is for calling the State Convention at Cedar Rapids some time in August. Mr Dunn is confident of a democratic victory in Iowa this year and a gain of several congressmen. He believes the prohibitionists will have three-fourth of the delegates in the Republican State Convention, and he has assurances from many anti-prohibitionists in that party that they will hereafter act and vote with the democratic party. He also states that the democratic position upon the tariff will win thousands of votes to the party. Altogether the prospects for democracy in Iowa were never before so promising.

On May 31st 1890 J. L. Cowan while at Lebanon, was asked to make an estimate of what he thought the vote in Linn county on governor would be. He did so, setting out the precincts and marking his estimated majorities for Penoyer or Thompson in each. The total majorities for Penoyer was 820, and the total for Thompson was 143 leaving a majority in the county for Penoyer of 680. The official count shows Penoyer's majority to be 682. Remarkably close figuring, that.

The senator from Rhode Island, Mr Aldrich, is between two fires. A large number of manufacturers in his state are in favor of free raw material, while others are demanding extreme protection, but the people, now being out of control of their employers by the adoption of a new constitution, are squarely for a reduction of the tariff, for the abolition of a tax imposed during the war. Senator Aldrich fears it is the fate of Rhode Island to fall into the ranks of the conquering democracy in 1892 and feels that his term of office is uncertain, no matter how he votes.

An exchange suggests that Senator Carlisle, having voted against the tariff bill in the senate, can illustrate the political maxim of "vote early and vote often." It is probable that no such case has ever before occurred where an eminent man goes upon the record as having voted in both houses of congress upon one and the same important measure.

Col. W. W. Dudley has been so prospered, since he opened his pension office in Washington that he now has fifteen clerks, equal to three "blocks of five," and will make large additions as the new laws are passed.

One hundred million is the estimated deficit consequent on this session of congress. No wonder that the party leaders begin to cry, "Hold up."

Sunnyside Fruit Farms.

Salem continues to grow and the building industry never was so actively pursued in this city before. This activity extends to the section adjoining the city, and each contributes to the others prosperity. This condition of affairs gives added value to those ten-acre fruit farms at Sunnyside, four miles south of Salem, for sale by the Oregon Land Co., and renders them increasingly desirable to those who wish to engage in any farm speciality.

DESERVED COMPLIMENT.

The Portland World bestows upon Barney Goldsmith, chairman of the democratic state central committee, the following deserved compliment:

"The democracy of Oregon owe a debt of gratitude to Hon. B. Goldsmith for the faithful, earnest and able manner he managed the late campaign. He has few equals as an executive and no superiors. Had he been sustained by the necessary means for the party and a longer time to perfect organization, the result would have been more favorable to the democracy. Mr F. A. E. Starr, the county chairman, is also entitled to considerable credit for his management of local matters."

Even after the election is over the West Shore indulges in a mess of republican slush by saying that the campaign that resulted in the triumphant election of Governor Penoyer was one of pure demagogism. It is evident that the West Shore is so deeply chagrined at the defeat of the republican candidate for governor that it is unable to distinguish between great questions of public policy and demagogism.

The average democratic majority in Linn county on the legislature ticket is 301. On the senatorial ticket it is 304. On the state ticket the average majority is 330. On the county ticket the average is 450.

It looks very much like the immigration to Linn county since two years ago has been in favor of the democrats. In the "Forks" this is true beyond question.
