

"NECESSARY" SCOUNDRELS.

"There are, we suppose, some 'necessary' scoundrels, so-called, in all parties, but the democratic party is the only great party that invites their vulgar rascais to a seat on the throne and worships a political knave and municipal handit for the sake of the spoil he has gathered under the name and sign of the party.—Oregonian.

Ah! indeed! And since when did this public slanderer and wicked defamer of the best men this country ever produced find out the above? And pray, whom, in times past, has the republican party called to the throne and worshipped for the sake of the spoil they gathered under the name and sign of that party. Has the Oregonian forgotten the names of the political handits and ballot box robbers that deliberately stole the presidency in 1876? Has it forgotten that J Madison Wells, the arch conspirator, who committed the damnable fraud in Louisiana of counting that state for Hayes, when it had cast 8000 majority for Tilden was called to the "throne" by giving him the office of collector of customs in New Orleans? Has it forgotten that Tom Anderson was made deputy collector of that port? Has it forgotten that Kenner, Casenave, Vernon, Abell, Woodward, Green, Blanchard, Davis, Hill, Grindley and Ray, all members or clerks of the Louisiana returning board, were given fat offices in recognition of the "valuable services" they rendered in consummating one of the most diabolical frauds ever committed against a civilized people? The evil men do lives after them. And who consorted lovingly with this band of free-booters in rendering nugatory the will of the people of a great state? They were those who continually stand nearest the "throne" of that party. John Sherman, E W Stoughton, John M Harlan, Eugene Hale, J R Hawley, John Coburn, Wm, H Robertson, E C Noyes, J A Kesson, Lew Wallace, W E Chandler and other visiting statesmen who lent valuable aid in carrying out this fraud, first made triumphant in American history." These men always held high places in the leadership of the republican party and we take it are the "necessary scoundrels" to whom the Oregonian refers, as belonging to its party.

All events such scoundrels were "necessary" to consummate the great fraud of 1876. The scorching and burning words of J S Black before the commission would have eaten into the very hearts of conscientious men but they had no effect upon the commission: "Well may you say, "we have made a covenant with death, and with hell are at agreement, when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us, for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves." The Oregonian and its party are estopped from raising any complaints like the above. See the course of "Boss" Lotan in perfecting the political skull duggery at the primaries in Portland some weeks ago. After all the bribery and fraud therein practiced by Lotan and his followers, had been made public to the world by the Oregonian itself that boss was called to the very throne of the Oregonian's party in Oregon. Verily those who live in glass houses should be careful about throwing stones.

We hope that the work of spraying orchards for protection of the fruit from the codling moth is going on wherever the trees are bearing. Neighborhoods should combine in this matter, and if all the bearing trees were sprayed for two years in succession in any locality, the moth would be stamped out, making further spraying needless unless the enemy were again introduced. Most of the moths will be destroyed the first season, but a few may escape and render a second trial necessary. This stamping out cannot be done by one or two farmers, though fortunately any one can thus protect his own fruit, however negligent his neighbors may be. Six ounces of London purple are enough in 100 gallons of water, and thus diluted the poison can hardly be considered dangerous, except to the insects that it destroys.

"The McKinley tariff is too high, the senate tariff is too high, the present tariff is too high, any tariff is too high.—Oregonian." Is the Oregonian a republican journal, or has it been bought with "British gold?" It very lately advocated "the protective policy of the Republican party." To-day, its utterances favor the putting of American labor in competition with "the pauper labor of Europe!" What "change has come over the spirit of its dream?" Is this a notice to the Protection League that some "fat" must be fied out for its benefit? Has the editor of that great journal any principles whatever, or does the weather bureau indicate to him when to change? Verily it is trimming its sails for the strong, but invincible current now blowing so steadily in favor of tariff reform.

Secretary Blaine presents to Congress an appeal for reciprocal free trade relations with the other American nations. If the logic is good why does it not apply equally well to European nations? The Central and South American Republics are not blood relations. Why should there be sentimental partiality in trade.
