

GOVERNOR HILL.

Governor Hill is the subject of very marked attention from the leading republican newspapers just at this time. Every impartial observer of the movement being made from day to day on the political chess board of this great nation will agree with us in the statement, that the governor is entitled to much marked attention from the public generally, and from republicans in particular. He is a highly interesting figure on the political chess board just now. Of course, we do not mean to say that the governor is a candidate for the presidency, for we have had no correspondence with the distinguished, able, assidue governor, nor have we had the honor to meet him, but, somehow, when republicans and democrats begin to "wonder in their mind" who is to be the next democratic candidate for the presidency, their mental vision turns their attention in the direction of the executive mansion of the state of New York. Well David B Hill is one of the ablest men in the country. Since he has been in the executive chair of the Empire State, he has been the subject of attacks in most all conceivable shapes from the republican legislature of that state. Single handed, and alone, he has uniformly proven his statesmanship and diplomatic tact by putting these gentlemen of the republican legislature "in a hole," using the choice vernacular of New York politicians. It is not a matter of wonder, then, that men use the name of David B Hill in connection with the presidency, for the universal verdict must be, that he would make a rattling, aggressive campaign that would call out the support of every democrat in the country, but not withstanding all this, there is another highly interesting personage who comes to the mind of every thoughtful man when speculating upon presidential probabilities. This personage, though "known of all men," quietly pursues the even tenor of his way in his law office in the great commercial and political metropolis of the nation. This distinguished American citizen is the embodiment of the idea of "tariff reform, and material reduction in the burdensome taxes now needlessly imposed upon the labor and business of the country. For, this reason, men, every where, look to Grover Cleveland as the most probable leader of the democratic hosts in the, to be, ever memorable campaign of 1892. Whoever the candidate is to be, he must occupy no uncertain position on the question of tariff reduction. The democratic party can well afford to be beaten on this subject, but it can not afford to yield one jot or tittle of the advance grounds which it now occupies on that question. But it can not be beaten on this issue if it be true to itself and loyal to the issue it has raised. Success on that issue is written on every political sign-board in the country.

DETERMINED TO NULLIFY.

Evidence crops out day by day that the leaders of the republican party are determined to establish the policy, if possible, that the states shall have no rights which the federal government shall be bound to respect. The Oregonian expresses the sentiments of these leaders when it says: "Nobody denies the right of the states to elect their own officers in their own way, but the states have no right to do as they please in the election of congressmen and president." Section one of article 2 of the constitution of the United States has this outspoken, plain unequivocal provision: "Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress." So far as words in the constitution are concerned, the power of the state to regulate the manner of electing presidential electors is more clearly defined and pointed out, than is the power to elect state officers. Notwithstanding this, the Oregonian says, substantially, that congress has the right to regulate the manner of electing presidential electors. In the earlier and more patriotic days of the republic, men sought to understand the provisions of the great Magna Charta of American liberty and freedom, in order that they might intelligently obey them. Now, the purpose seems to be to find a way to evade the provisions of this great palladium of constitutional liberty. Every patriot in this broad land should raise his voice day by day against this dangerous tendency and purpose of republican leaders to destroy the very autonomy of the states.

The Wasco county Saw is much confused over the different results obtained in multiplying $5 by $5 and 500 cents (which is equivalent to $5) by 500 cents. The first result it says is $25, and the second 250,000 cents or $2500. The absurdity of the Saw's proposition is found in the fact that $5 can not be multiplied by $5. A concrete number multiplied by a concrete number can not produce a concrete number. If however, we call the 5 that we multiply by, an abstract number, it will be seen that in the multiplication we took the $5 five times which makes the $25. Now, to maintain the equality of the two quantities 500 cents must be also taken five times and not 500 times as the Saw does.

Rank ingratitude is a tame word for Governor Penoyer who owes his election to republican votes and yet has appointed a democrat in Judge Bean's place in a strong republican district.—Roseburg Plaindealer.

Our cotemporary must admit that only republicans who voted for Penoyer would have a right to complain. The Plaindealer did all it possibly could to defeat the governor, and now it is the first and only one to complain of the appointment of a democrat. The Plaindealer should further bear in mind that these republicans who voted for the governor did so as a conscientious duty, and not because they hoped, expected, or were promised, any favors in return for such support. There was no ingratitude in the matter at all.
