

From our regular correspondents.
WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17, 1890.
Republican audacity can stretch farther than it did on Saturday when one of the door-keepers of the House, claiming to be acting under instructions from the Speaker, attempting to use force to prevent Representative Enoch leaving the House for a few minutes. Mr. Enoch, as any other American citizen would have done, insisted upon his right to go and come as he pleased. Later, Mr. Enoch brought the matter before the House as a question of personal privilege, and very naturally wanted to know if the speaker had issued such instructions, and if so, by what authority.

The speaker denied having issued such instructions; but at the same time asserted as his opinion that the door-keeper had done right. Saint Joseph's Canton, who is second only to Mr. Reed in audacity, defended the action of the insolent door-keeper. Mr. Enoch protested that if officers of the House were to be given the authority to keep members in the House against their will, they would some day keep them out of the House by the same authority. The matter was finally referred to the committee on the judiciary and a majority of that committee being republicans the title is to be reported in the shape of a bill.

Every one might ask, under what form of government do we live? Oliver Edmundson found it necessary to use a regiment of soldiers to disperse the English Parliament; but the members of Speaker Reed, without the slightest of an armed body, attempt to control the actions of democratic members of the House by sheer audacity. What a spectacle for a free country!

It is now apparent that the infamous Federal Election bill is to be galloped through the senate by force of the party whip lustily wielded by that saintimonious, but unscrupulous son of New England, Senator George F. Hoar. It has been reported to the senate and put on the calendar, and in order to facilitate its passage the resolution providing for the adoption of a gag rule, to cut off debate, has been introduced and referred to the committee on rules. The talk about the bill having been modified by the committee is hoax; it has been simplified to a certain extent, but it remains one of the most obnoxious measures ever attempted to be forced upon a defenseless people. History will rightly characterize it as an attempt to Polandize the south.

Senator Vance stirred up the republican Senatorial Menagerie on Saturday by showing how unjust the tariff bill as it now stands is to the agricultural interests of the country. Mr. Vance made an unsuccessful attempt to have certain causes amended and the republicans, as if to make the bill still more unjust to the south, adopted an amendment raising the duty on cotton ties.

Mr. Blaine's reciprocity idea is ahead and the indications are that it will certainly be adopted by the senate, but in the House, where speaker Reed who is bitterly opposed to it, is sole monarch it may possibly be defeated. Messrs. Reed, McKinley and others of the republicans will high protection wing of the republican party are trying to convince Mr. Harrison that it will be ruinous to him and his party for him to send a message to congress favoring reciprocity as he has promised to do.

The republicans of the House, particularly Mr. Reed and his cozier, have persistently antagonized the workingmen of the country during this entire session of congress, and if they do not learn from it at the coming elections it will be strange indeed. The employees of the government printing office are threatening to make trouble because an amendment providing for the erection of a new building for that establishment was stricken out in the House. The need of this new building is conceded by all, but it is refused in order to enable the republicans to pose as economists.

Senator Morell, who has gone away ill, is not in favor of reciprocity; he says its only logical out come will be free trade.

Mr. Wainmaker says the new style of postal cards in several sizes will be almost equal to penny letter postage. Mr. Wainmaker is mistaken; there is as much difference as there is between the present Postmaster General and Statesman.

The entire administration and all of the Washington pension attorneys, either in person or by proxy have gone to the G. A. R. encampment at Boston. The first named is in search of political capital, and the last of hard cash in the shape of applications for pensions.

A venerable-looking walking stick, inscribed "Andrew Jackson, the friend and defender of his country, opposed to a bank monopoly, an unjust and unequal tariff," is shown in the window of a downtown candy store. It has a well established pedigree, having come from an angel negro, who was General Jackson's body servant and who vouched for the fact that "Old Hickory" used the stick when he was president.

The wife of Senator Davis, of Minnesota, is able to make this extraordinary statement: "When I was ten years of age my aunt bought me a pattern, some navy blue cloth and some black velvet, and told me I must make myself a gown, which I did greatly to her satisfaction and my own and the envy of my little playmates. From that time to the present day I have never paid one cent to a dressmaker or a milliner, nor has any one else done so for me. Every dress, hat and bonnet I wear is made and trimmed by my own hands." No wonder Mr. Davis is so rich.

Never fails.
