

DAILY DEMOCRAT.

WASHINGTON.
From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24, 1890.

Mr Harrison and Mr Blaine cannot continue their present relations much longer, unless there is a radical change on the part of one of them. That becomes plainer and plainer every day to those familiar with the inside workings of the administration. Mr Harrison has finished his message, and it has been shown to every member of the cabinet, except Mr Blaine. The reason for this action on the part of Mr Harrison is that he has gone directly contrary to the views of Mr Blaine on at least two important matters dealt with by the message, and he has delayed showing the message to Mr Blaine, fearing that it might cause an open row between them. Of course it will have to be shown to the secretary of state before congress meets, but there will be no trouble, so far as Mr Blaine is concerned. He made up his mind when the McKinley bill became a law that the republican party was doomed, and since that time he has not bothered his head with matters outside of his hobby, reciprocity.

The leaders of his party have nearly all turned to him as the Moses to lead them out of the wilderness, and that is what is so galling to Mr Harrison, who wants vindication in the shape of a renomination; but one of Mr Blaine's warmest and closest personal friends told me that unless there should come a great change in the prospects of the republican party before 1892, Mr Blaine would under no circumstances accept the nomination. One defeat being quite enough for him.

Unless a prominent government official is off in his predictions, there will be a vacancy in the office of commissioner of pensions between this and January. Mr Harrison having fully decided that Raum shall go.

The congressional lame ducks among the republicans are all trying to pick out something under the government that will enable them to keep hold of the public trust after the 4th of March, but it will be a difficult matter to provide for even a small number of them.

One of the principal occupations of the republican leaders just now is stiffening up political backbones of the small fry congressmen as they get in. About three out of four of them want to revise the McKinley tariff law at the coming session. That, the leaders are determined to prevent if possible.

Several of the candidates for speaker of the next House have opened headquarters here, but there are not enough of the members-elect of the fifty-second congress yet here to make anything like a lively contest. But they will all be here a little later, as an extra session is believed to be almost certain, which will make it necessary to elect the speaker about nine months earlier than if there was no meeting until December next.

The farmers alliance and its future movements is much discussed by returning congressmen, and many of them believe that a consolidation of the labor organizations will take place before the next presidential campaign. The republicans fear the organizations most, because it antagonizes the principals of that party most. With two or three exceptions any good democrat could support the platform of the alliance.

The fight for free and unlimited silver coinage is to be renewed as soon as congress meets and a powerful weapon, in the appointment of a successor to Chairman Conger of the House committee on coinage, weights and measures who resigned to go to Brazil as U. S. Minister, is in the hands of Speaker Reed. Mr Reed is one of the bitterest opponents of free coinage, in the House, but for all that it is not certain, although it is probable, that he will put an anti-silver man at the head of that committee. The committee is said to be now evenly divided on the question, so that in deciding upon the new member of the committee, Speaker Reed will really decide whether the committee shall report a free coinage bill.

Speaking of Mr Reed, the republicans are very much worried because certain democrats have determined that a democratic committee of the next House shall investigate the methods by which he was elected. There is no contest, nor is there to be, but it is believed that an investigation in that district will show up a great deal of republican crookedness, and the democrats propose doing it.

Many democrats think the republican congressional appointment bill should be opposed on the ground that the census has not been correctly taken. Of course, if the republicans can keep a quorum of their own men on the floor of the House no amount of opposition can prevent its passage but it may not be amiss to show up certain things about the census.

In some hospitals in Europe it is customary to allow visitors to converse on certain days, by means of a telephone in a waiting-room, with patients in the wards, and this arrangement has been found to work admirably in allowing communication without possibility of contagion.

An Albany dealer in French plate glass says he has to pay, since the passage of the McKinley bill, as much at wholesale for that article as he has heretofore retailed it for. And we are told that quality of glass is not manufactured in this country at all.
