DAILY DEMOCRAT.

WASHINGTON.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3, 1890.
The republican senators received an unexpected shock when the news of the action of the convention of the National Farmers Alliance in protesting against the passage of the Force bill reached them; it staggered them for a time, and when they recovered their wits they began to abuse the alliance. But it is believed that this protest will have great weight with the northwestern republican senators, and together with the movement of a number of republican senators, who are said to be determined not to vote for that bill unless Speaker Reed will promise to allow a bill for the free coinage of silver to be voted on in the House, which he has so far refused to do, it will certainly jeopardize the infamous measure.

The feature of the debate last week in the senate was Senator Gray's argument against the constitutionality of the most obnoxious clauses of the Force bill and much to the surprise of the democrats, and also, I suspect, of the republicans, Senator Teller agreed with all that he said relating to the clause providing for domiciliary visits. The republicans have caucused on the proposed change of the senate rules for the purpose of forcing the bill through, a la Reed, but they failed to agree. It is now believed that if the bill passes at all, which is far from certain, it will be greatly modified.

The democrats in both House and Senate, satisfied of the justness of the demands of the farmers alliance for an increase in the amount of money in circulation, stand ready to vote for the free and unlimited coinage of silver whenever they can get an opportunity, and so many republicans are ready to vote with them that the passage of one of the many bills that have been introduced would be a certainty were it not for the opposition of Speaker Reed, who has so far been able to absolutely control the legislation that goes before the House. It is stated that Mr Harrison would veto it if passed, but that doesn't worry anybody. If it should be passed and he should veto it, good bye to him politically. He would be as dead as Rutherford B Hayes.

Notwithstanding the snubbing he got from the republicans of the senate finance committee at the last session, Senator Stanford has introduced again, under another name, his bill for loaning government money upon farm mortgages, and requested that it lie on the table until he makes a speech in its favor. He has an idea that this bill may nominate him for President in 1892.

Unless Commissioner Raum has a hide as tough as a rhinoceros he must have smarted all over at the allusion to his management, or rather mismanagement of the Pension Bureau made during the discussion in the House which preceded the passing of the pension appropriation bill. Several dramatic incidents occurred, one of the most striking being when Representative Morrow stated that the amount carried by the bill—$133,000,000—would be sufficient to pay all pensions during the next fiscal year. "Bet you $2,000 to $500 that it will not," yelled Representative Biggs rushing down the center aisle. In a moment the House was in a good natured uproar, which Mr Biggs added to by saying: "Ask the people of California who stand foremost among them W W Morrow or Marion Biggs and the answer will be Biggs by 50,000 majority." He sat down amid shouts of laughter.

Secretary Noble has undertaken the task of fighting the pension sharks, and bets are already offered that they will be able to drive him out of the cabinet. He has aimed a blow at their most valuable point—the pocket—by having a bill introduced in the House to reduce the fee of securing an increase in pension from $10 to $1. Corporal Tanner, who has been growing richer and richer ever since he was kicked out of the pension office and hung out his shingle as an attorney, is particularly bitter against Mr Noble, who, he says, at the beginning of the trouble which led to his retirement from the head of the pension office, approached him with these words: "Why, they tell me, sir, that you are granting more pensions and paying out more money than Black did."

In Berlin are what are called "milkers," or milk stations. In the basement of an elegant block of buildings a few cows are kept. These are well fed and cared for, and furnish excellent milk for the patrons in the neighborhood. They water the cows instead of the milk, and it is a better quality than most city milk.

THE REASON WHY.—Why is it that Klein Bros. can afford to sell boots and shoes so reasonable? Because they are both practical shoe makers and make part of their expenses by working on the shoe bench, any boot or shoe you buy of them, no matter what kind it is man, woman's or child's, that rip, run over or the sole rips loose they repair them for you free of charge, and as they do all the work themselves, they don't charge you 25 to 50 cents a pair extra for a warrant to pay some shoemaker to repair them for you. They also make a specialty of repairing rubber boots.
